CHAPTER 1

FALLEN ANGELS & SERPENT PEOPLE THE ADVERSARY BY ANY OTHER NAME

AN EXAMINATION OF MYTHOLOGY & HISTORY PART II: WHEN CONTINENTS SUBMERGE

by Rick Martin 6/16/98

Editor's note: Part I of this series began in the 6/2/98 issue of CONTACT. We continue here with Part II.

Myths do not come from a concept system; they come from a life system; they come out of a deeper center. We must not confuse mythology with ideology. Myths come from where the heart is, and where the experience is, even as the mind may wonder why people believe these things. The myth does not point to a fact; the myth points beyond facts to something that informs the fact.

—Joseph Campbell, An Open Life: In Conversation with Michael Toms

How is it possible to jump throughout history spanning such huge pieces of time? By choice, I guess. In this instance, I've chosen to stick with historical sequences that have been pretty well documented by those involved in such matters or, in the alternative, to statements made by representatives of the Hosts.

Symbology is something which reoccurs throughout history in a wide variety of forms, and here the focus of attention will be primarily (but not exclusively) upon the serpent and the serpent people.

So, with that said, let's take a look at some aspects of Mu, Lemuria, and Atlantis that many of you may have missed.

PAN/MU/LEMURIA

In Colonel James Churchward's The Sacred Symbols Of Mu, we read: [quoting]

In the Sacred Inspired Writings of Mu 70,000 years ago the deity is frequently designated as "Heavenly Father" and "Father in Heaven". This name is more frequently used there than any other. Religion itself was based on the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. [End quoting.]

symbol

In The Rainbow Masters—The Magnificent Seven, a Phoenix Journal, we read: [quoting]

Truth lies deeply in the laws of The Creation, and there man shall seek it and find it. He who truly seeks shall not stop seeking until he finds. When he finds he will be deeply shaken and astonished, but then he will rule over the universe as his Creator intended, for man must recognize that the kingdom is within himself and also outside himself. He must also know that he is sent as a guardian for those other wondrous creations within The Creation.

So be it; man would better turn from the black hand for that is the symbol of destruction. The “Lost Cities” of your South America and the newly arriving space visitors are greatly connected and both play a most vital role in your present circumstances.

Lemuria is the label for the last part of the great Pacific continent of Mu. The destruction of Mu and its submergence began before your year 30,000 B.C. This destruction continued for thousands of years until the final portion of Mu, known by then as Lemuria, was submerged in a series of disasters. This occurred just prior to the destruction of Poseidonis, the last remnant of the Atlantic continent, Atlantis.

Just as you ones are informed, today, of how it will be and turn away, those people, too, continued their blinded ways. Those working on the Left (Black) Hand Path continued diabolic experiments and heeded not ‘MY HANDWRITING ON THE WALL’ just as today, on your sickened Earth, millions of inhabitants are continuing to involve themselves in every degradation possible, even though the signs of the times are clearly discernible.

snake

The Masters and Entities working on the Right (Red) Hand Path began to collect the precious records and documents from the libraries of Lemuria. Each Master was chosen by the Council of the Great White Hierarchy (Lighted Brotherhood) to go to different sections of the world whereby scientific and spiritual knowledge of the past sequences could be placed in secure preservation. Those wondrous treasures are preserved unto this day. At the time of upheaval, as these continents make changes, certain other places will be thrust upward, just as were the Peruvian areas of Titicaca and no man will recognize of it. But it will be those same places which were preserved from the going down of Mu that will be sustained and thrust even higher into the safety from the ocean depths. [End quoting.]

In Cry Of The Phoenix—Death Rattle Of Freedom: “The Plan 2000”, we read: [quoting]

I am Sananda to speak of remembering when the Motherland of Mu sank beneath the waves of the mighty ocean which overflowed her. This, before the passing of that place you ones call Atlantis. We shall speak first of that which was known as “Pan”. Pan has meaning which is “it is finished”, therefore, it was finished from its beginning.

In the aeons which passed she was given unto much glory—she was indeed birthed into greatness. She was next given to be recognized by the label of Mur and finally as that which you must remember as Mu and this place was to be known as a Motherland. Ah, but man is blind and filled with self-indulgence and greed and ’twas not until after the passing of the Motherland was she known as Mother. “Mother” means “from the beginning”, and therein is the word “Mazma”, or “Mu” or “Mama” which is “the beginning”, the feminine cause of beingness.

Because so many of you came forth from that Motherland and have later served in other times of passing Motherlands, we shall speak first of this Mu.

There were many ones who had escaped from the devastation and moved unto the portions of the land mass which was given unto them as “safe”. Those who listened brought forth with them the sacred histories and oral teachings so that there would again be a time of remembering. Many of these ones came into the land which is now the mountain area of that which you call the South American Continent.

They gave a pledge unto the Mother, for they have been true unto their Source. They built safe-keeping places for the records and vowed to the Father/Mother that they would teach the precepts. Ones had been taught in the laws which you are to come to understand if your eyes and ears be opened.

hiertic letter

These ones were given power over the elements and over the gravitation of the Earth. Ah, but they were not given freedom of separation from all attractions of the heavens.

Soon they gave no credit unto them which were their supporters and they gave credit only unto themselves for what they considered their wondrous achievements. Then it came to be in some 30,000 or so of your counting years, that it was given unto them to forget and thus was also lost these memories and placements of the wondrous truths of your lineage.

It was given unto them to be men of rather medium to smallness of stature and to be much as the Asiatics in the coloring of the skin. They began to lose their way and they prayed to idols. They gave but little heed unto the warnings which were given unto them from the higher realms of Light and they sank into lethargy and laziness.

Then, as is the fortune of him who forgets his covenant with the Father/Mother, on a great feast day it became dark and the Sun gave off no light. On that day it gathered a part of the firmaments into the whole of the area, and it shook the Earth from without that their handiwork was tossed and broken. It split asunder the idols, and it turned and twisted their great and beautiful wall and portals into ruins and rubble.

This was but the beginning. For in that place of valley would be raised as the mountains around it. For it shall shift within the interior and it shall crack and it shall blaze forth as a great volcano. That place which is the valley shall reach into the heavens and shall be prepared for a new portion.

So shall it be with other placements to the north and unto the west wherein the places which are yet in the appearance of deserts and valleys shall be filled with the waters and yet the places of the Motherlands which remain unscathed unto their day in your age, shall be thrust upward and most places shall be given unto being island placements. In these places the waters shall come forth from within in sweetness and shall purify the place, and it shall be hot and pure. But these waters shall be healing in their touch and many there will be who will need of the healing for the tribulation shall have been great indeed.

Ones of the ancients shall walk again among the men who are remained and come again into the teachings of the Father/Mother and pull the peoples back into the path of Truth.

It is come now that the days within this place are few and it is the time that man know of the truth of his roots that he can prune of his branches which have grown in wildness without discipline—away from the teachings of the Father/Mother Creator/Creation. [End quoting.]

SEMJASE

Wisdom is the light and wherever the light flashes up, there darkness and ignorance disappear. Ignorance is the essential darkness and can only be overcome by the light of wisdom.

Wisdom is the mark of the existence of the spirit and disguises itself in the qualities of truth, poise, knowledge, beauty, harmony and peace.

Wisdom is also the mark of a human who has recognized the existence of his spirit and works with it according to the Creational laws, for wisdom and the spirit are two factors which react as one, much in the same way as the Sun and sunlight...both give warmth and light.

50,000 YEARS PAST

Turning to Creation, The Sacred Universe—The Incubation Of The Phoenix, a Phoenix Journal, we read: [quoting]

It is strange that man wishes to contradict that which he has no basis for judging. How can man know, for instance, that some 50,000 years ago in Earth chronology, our home world found peace and liberty. Shortly before this time, 70,000 or so human beings fled under the leadership of one labelled Pelegon. They used spacecraft and they fled through the cosmos and settled on Earth. Under Pelegon were 200 sub-leaders, scientists, competent in their special fields of knowledge. By these, and others, Pelegon was acknowledged as what you might call the “King of Wisdom” and he was, at that time, regarded as God and regarded as such for he taught the word and law of God and The Creation.

Wondrous things were brought forth upon Earth. Regrettably, this lasted well for only a narrow span of some 10,000 years, until desires for power and control prevailed once more, and a deadly war raged over all the Earth. Without exception all was destroyed, and only a remnant, a few thousand human beings, survived on Earth while others fled once more into the cosmos and settled faraway worlds. Does this sound like a rerun, chelas?

For some 7,000 years none returned to Earth, and the humans left behind degenerated and became wild. Then descendents of those who had settled on faraway worlds returned. They were again under the leadership of God, under whose command they built on Atlantis and Mu. They built huge cities on each of the two separate continents.

For thousands of years they lived in friendship and peace, until a few scientists were again overcome by the old thirst for might and power, and tried to seize the government. But having tired of wars, the nations rose up against them, and they again occupied ships from space and fled into cosmic space some 15,000-20,000 years ago in Earth chronology. For some two millenniums they and their descendants lived in a neighboring solar system. Why is this hard for you of Earth to conceive in understanding—do you actually have such little faith and belief in God? Do you so limit God that you cannot believe beyond the physical features of your nose and that which the “controllers” would have you believe?

Oh dear ones, there were two millennia during which they had become very evil and only maintained order under strictest control; but, by mutation and their sciences, they extended their lifespans to some thousands of years.

Overcome by their thirst for power, they then left their world about 13,000 years ago, in your counting, and again returned to Earth. Now, hold your breath, chelas. Their highest leader was one who was called “The Barbarian”. Like the God before him some 40,000 years, IHWH also had some 200 leaders and sub-leaders who were competent in special fields of science for as you re-inhabit a planet where only a remnant remains, it requires much diversified knowledge and abilities.

In two groups they settled in the high north and the present Florida of North America, while they continuously attacked Atlantis and Mu in war following war. In only a few millenniums after their occupation of Earth bases, they succeeded in destroying the civilizations of first Lemuria, Mu and then Atlantis. The few survivors went into servitude, while many great scientists were able to flee, and return to their homeworlds in the Pleiades. But centuries before this point in time, the intruders boasted of their conquest of Earth, and IHWHARUS led a severe and bloody regime.

Still his sub-leaders assumed for themselves many things and became more and more independent. Within only three decades they had gone far in their own decision making, even though they feared the punishments of the IHWHARUS. They advocated a code, to under all circumstances maintain their own race and not allow it to fall to mutations away from themselves. In a most forbidden manner and secretly, they went out and caught wild Earth creatures and mutations who were distant descendants of former human beings. These evil tricksters called themselves “Sons of Heaven” and corrupted according to their own race. It would come to be that these ones were put away into other places for they formed mutated tribes and did not follow the laws of God and/or The Creation.

It was at this time that ADAM was birthed—ADAM, (meaning “Earth human being”). Meanwhile, others similar had been produced, who formed groups and tribes. From these, present Earth mankind developed.

This action angered IHW HARUS, and the sub-leaders were exiled, when he could catch them. In time he changed his mind and recognized a new power he could exercise over the Earth beings.

With newly appointed sub-leaders and guard angels, he brought three human races under his absolute control. These were the ancestors of those who today are known as “Indians”, then the fair-skinned inhabitants who had settled around the Black Sea; and the third were the “Gypsies” along the south of the Mediterranean Sea, who were called Hebrews. IHW HARUS subjected these races and forced them under his control. As the highest ruler over them, he allowed himself to become venerated and adored as human ego-man is prone to do and promptly forgot the Creator. He allowed them to venerate him above the Creation itself, and his sub-leaders were treated as “assistant” creators. He imposed most harsh and severe laws demanding the blood of the guilty. Does it not sound like a re-run of a scenario?

Ah ha, then came his son, JEHAV, who took over this dominion. He was little better for he, too, demanded only blood and death from the three enslaved races. The later descendants of the “Gods” became more humane and developed a degree of spirituality. I would guess it is time to straighten up and begin to fly according to the rules, little chelas!

Their spiritual evolution changed their minds and they decided to leave the development of the Earth beings to their natural course, and retired to their home-world, so they departed Earth and returned as peaceful creatures again to the Pleiades, where their own mankind had reached most advanced states of development.

United, we live together today and are an allied population in peace and liberty, under the Laws of God and acting in balance and harmony within The Creation. Precious ones, it is most essential that you ones come into truth of this writing for you have so many gaps and missing pages in your historical documents and the unknown causes you great fear. Because your brethren of Pleiades feel responsibility and kindredship with your human Earth species, they come with the Hosts at this time to assist, to evacuate—to do whatever is required to help you in your transition. They feel that they have vested interests in your place and are feeling great concern that they caused some of your own chaotic past and present circumstance. They, and we, are come to assist wherein we might serve in the service, first of and to God—in balance and truth within The Creation and unto you, our relations. May we come into understanding, one with the other that we might work toward truth and again bring peace and wondrous magnificence unto the species. [End quoting.]

THE TALE OF CREATION

Turning now to The Sacred Symbols Of MU: [quoting]

The following is what I found in the old Oriental Naacal writing, supplemented by the Mexican Tablets:

Originally the Universe was only a soul or spirit. Everything was without form and without life. All was calm, silent and soundless. Void and dark was the immensity of space. Only the Supreme Spirit, the Great Self-Existing Power, the Creator, the Seven-Headed Serpent, moved within the abyss of darkness.

The desire came to Him to create worlds, and the desire came to Him to create the Earth with living things upon it, and He created the Earth and all therein. This is the manner of the creation of the Earth with all there is within and upon it:—The Seven-headed Serpent, the Creator, gave seven great commandments. [End quoting.]

NAGA, THE SEVEN-HEADED SERPENT

Turning, once again, to Colonel James Churchward's The Sacred Symbols Of MU, we read: [quoting]

The ancients had numerous figures, always conventional, symbolizing this attribute (of the Almighty). Apparently the most popular were adorned serpents. Many designs of these serpents are found in ancient carvings and literature.

Two of these serpents are especially prominent. One was the cobra, called in the Motherland, Naga. This one had seven heads. This number was given to correspond with the seven stages of creation, the seven mental planes, et cetera.

The seven-headed serpent originated in Mu and was there called Naga. In various Mu colonies it received added names. Judging from the geographical position of the colonies where we find it, I think that the lower western half of Mu was where it was used. The people using this symbol were called after it—the Nagas. [End quoting.]

When we turn to A Dictionary Of Symbols by Jean Chevalier and Alain Gheerbrant, we see that: [quoting]

The finest and most numerous examples of this seven-headed serpent are depicted on the temple at Angkor Thom in Cambodia. To the Khmer, the naga was 'the symbol of the Rainbow, regarded as the magic bride entry to the abode of the gods'. In this, the most famous temple in Southeast Asia, the gods at the south gate hold one end of the naga which writhes symbolically round the Meru (the Indian holy mountain, which the temple itself is supposed to represent) while its other end is grasped by the demons at the north gate. Taking it in turns to tug, they can rotate the central mount and churn the sea to obtain ambrosia. From time immemorial the Khmer kings were compared with Vishnu churning the Sea of Milk to obtain amrita, that is, plenty.

The rubbing motions of the serpent wrapped round the sacred mount stimulate secretions of prosperity. Khmer beliefs laid great symbolic stress upon the churning of the Sea of Milk, whence came the apsara and the phenomenal world.

Furthermore, like the python, the naga is the symbol of the mouth which swallows either the individual or the Sun itself at one end of the horizon to vomit them up at the other, and is therefore an initiatory symbol of death and rebirth. The significant facts in the traditions quoted above are the north-south axis and the naga's seven heads, the latter being the symbol of fulfillment and especially of human fulfillment. The naga is often depicted in India at the foot of the majestic stairways of stupas, re-echoing the gaping crocodile-mouths found at the foot of stairways on Central American pyramids. [End quoting.]

Now, on a slightly different note (but not really), we have:

EVIL IS IGNORANCE

In The Golden Scripts, Chapter 23:12, we read: [quoting]

12. Evil hath an emptiness, it cannot construct, it ignoreth the ways that lead unto happiness, it seeketh out no goodly situation but taketh the world and giveth it a weeping.

13. Evil hath no crown, it hath no distaff, it hath no divining rod that pointeth out riches; evil hath only confusion and ignorance and manifest impoverishment; it hath shortage of compassion that ye do call intolerance.

14. Verily I say unto you, beloved, evil is man's enemy above all other enemies in that it seeketh to do him no improvement, naught hath it to do for man but to pull him down to vomit; it proclaimeth his smallness, it maketh a god of his ignorance and humbleth him before it.

15. I say ignorance is evil and evil is ignorance.

16. There are no other gods of darkness before Ignorance.

17. That which cometh of me hath a radiance, behold it is tolerant and beauteous and tranquil; all things making for good, for happiness, for delight, for peace, for alms-giving, for benediction on others, these are the diadem stones in the crown of mine eternity.

18. I say unto you, beloved, in that ye have taken knowledge unto yourselves ye have traveled in a progress; in that ye have triumphed over ignorance so hath the Dark One fled before your footsteps. [End quoting.]

DARK ROBES

In Other Kingdoms, Hilarion writes: [quoting]

robed person

The Dark Brothers are allowed to have an influence upon those humans in incarnation who permit the influence to occur. It is a question of complete free will. Humans who follow the base teachings of materialism and selfishness are opening themselves up to the overshadowing of the Dark Brothers. It is these humans, the ones who have been cast into shadow by their own choice, that have been responsible for most of the carnage, slaughter, war, torture and outright evil in the world. It is true that they choose to do these heinous acts by their own free will (in most cases) but their actions are usually influenced by the Dark Brotherhood in such a way as to make them worse than they otherwise would be.

One of the ways in which the Dark Brothers gain easy access to a human begin is through over-indulgence in drink. Naturally, any other besotting over-indulgence will also allow the darker overshadowing to gain a hold, but alcohol is by far the worst substance in this regard. The individuals who change their personalities for the worse when under the influence of drink can be assumed to be literally under the control of these darker forces while they are inebriated.

What happens in such cases is that an access at the back of the head (in the aetheric body) opens up and allows darker forces to enter. The access is directly opposite the Anja or third eye center, and becomes wide open under the influence of alcohol in the system. [End quoting.]

In Dark Robes, Dark Brothers, Hilarion writes: [quoting]

The dark ones do not seek to cast any soul “into hell”, as the popular religious notion has it. Rather, they act as testing agents for the race of man, as forces whose task it is to weed out from among the human flock the souls whose dedication, wisdom and insight are not developed enough to allow them to move forward into the higher ground of spiritual achievement.

This can be compared to the effect of the wolf on a herd of caribou. Among the caribou are the old, the sick, the congenitally weak specimens. The wolf attacks only these defective caribou, and would never think of wasting its energy trying to chase or bring down healthy specimens. By weeding out the weaker ones, the wolf ensures that the herd remains strong.

So it is with the Dark Brotherhood. They know that many human souls would not be taken in by their seductions, that many individuals can perceive clearly whatever attempts are made to draw them away from the light. But they know too that multitudes of incarnated individuals on the Earth have allowed the attractions of pleasure and materialism to sway them, have permitted the negative emotions of hatred, resentment, grief, worry and self-pity to cloud their days. And it is against these stragglers that most of the Dark Brotherhood’s efforts are directed. They can only influence those who allow them the necessary access, and they would not waste their energy on souls who remain firm in the truth. [End quoting.]

THE TAO

Stanislav Grof, M.D., in The Holotropic Mind—The Three Levels of Human Consciousness and How They Shape Our Lives, states: [quoting]

Probably the most famous statement about the futility of attempting to capture the essence of the cosmic source in thought or language comes from Lao-tsu, a Chinese sage who lived in the fourth century B.C.:

The Tao that can be told is not the eternal Tao.

The name that can be named is not the eternal name.

THE KHAN

In Mu, the ancient Serpent Symbols were divided into two categories: the first an adorned Serpent symbolizing the creative attribute of the Diety; the second, quoting now from Churchward's The Sacred Symbols of Mu, "plain unadorned Serpents were symbols of the waters. The symbolic water symbol was called Khan."

kh

Turning to The Garden Of Aton by Nora Boyles, we read (about a much later historical period): "...the leader of the Khazars is known as the KHAN."

ATLANTIS

Gordon-Michael Scallion notes in his 1998 summer edition of the Earth Changes Report, "Atlantis lasted almost 250,000 years from its first age to its final days, the last of its islands going beneath the seas around 9,000 years ago."

In Trail Of The Serpent, written by Inquire Within, we read: [quoting]

The early Lemurians are described as eyeless, mindless, vapoury hermaphrodites, ruled by planetary gods, guided by angels, and aided by Luciferian spirits. Later the sexes were separated, bringing terrible sexual disorder, and finally Lemuria was submerged. According to Schuré the priests of Ancient Egypt preserved the tradition of a vast continent which had formerly occupied a great part of the Atlantic Ocean from Africa and Europe to America, and of a powerful civilization which was engulfed in some prehistoric catastrophe. The priests claimed to have received it from the Atlanteans themselves through some far-back connection; in turn they told Solon of the tradition, and Plato, borrowing from him, wrote of it in his dialogue, the Timaeus. The whole tradition is a vast legend, although there are scientific proofs that such a continent had probably existed. Some of the Lemurians, it is said, survived and settled in Atlantis, which, as Schuré explains, was a tropical Eden with a primitive humanity; then came a long period of wars, followed by a Federation of Initiate-Kings, and finally decadence and a reign of black magic, and the continent was gradually rent and destroyed by subterranean fires.

These primitive people, according to Schuré, were powerful psychics: “His sparkling serpent-like eye seemed to see through the soil and the bark of the trees and to penetrate the souls of animals. His ear could hear the grass growing and the ants walking”; they spent their nights in astral dreams and visions, believing they contacted and conversed with the gods. Again Steiner says that the Atlantean Kings had spirit guides in human form, “Messengers of the Gods” (Elder Brothers), who actually ruled men through the kings. As he explains, these guides were under Luciferian influence, but used it progressively to free themselves from error by becoming initiates of the Solar-Christ Being—they became Illumines! They imparted the mysteries to disciples and in fact became Christ-oracles. Matter in the form of Ahriman came along and intellect was born and the gods receded from among men. In the later Atlantean evolution the mysteries, he said, had to be kept secret so that the knowledge of how to control and direct Nature’s forces should not be used for evil and sensual purposes, but in time these powers became known, black magic became rampant, and Atlantis was destroyed. [End quoting.]

VENUS

There are those who hold forth the theory that Lucifer/Satan is, actually, Venus—the bright and perfect “morning star”. This statement is interesting, at the very least, in that there are others who attempt to link Poseidon and Atlas with Venus, as well as Quetzalcoatl. Let’s take a closer look.

ATLANTIS—POSEIDON

In the scholarly work The History of Atlantis, written by Lewis Spence, we read: [quoting]

The Azilian people were undoubtedly the forerunners of the Neolithic race, the people of the New Stone Age, and brought with them to Europe an entirely new mode of living, a new art, new religious beliefs. They invaded Europe at a period which, broadly speaking, can be successfully collated with the date given by Plato. They must have poured into Europe in their thousands, dispossessing the older Aurignacian or Cro-Magnon inhabitants and destroying their relatively high culture.

[Still quoting, later on...]

It is from the writings of Diodorus the Sicilian, as well as from those of Plato, that we are enabled to glean the little we know concerning the royal line of Atlantis. Plato, indeed, assures us that such a succession existed, but he leaves us in the dark concerning the names of any of its members, with the exception of the sons of Poseidon: Atlas, Gadir or Eumolus, Amphisus, Eudemon, Mnesus, Autochthonus, Ellassipus, Mestor, Azaes and Diaprepus. Let us examine these first, and see what we can glean from them.

In other myths Atlas is alluded to as the son of Iapetus and Clymene, and brother of Prometheus and Epimetheus, the Titans, along with whom he made war against Zeus. Defeated by the Hellenic Allfather, he was compelled to bear the skies upon his head and shoulders. According to Homer, he is, indeed, the bearer of the long columns which hold the heavens and Earth asunder. Indeed, he is what students of Mexican mythology, following the late Professor Eduard Selere, would now call a “sky supporter”, one of these genii who uphold the roof of the world. The idea probably arose from the belief that Mount Atlas, in Africa, like other lofty mountains, actually upheld the skies. Other mythographers, as we have seen, represent Atlas as a wise astrologer, a monarch who first taught men the science of reading the stars. There was, of course, more than one Mount Atlas, and we find mountains similarly named in Mauretania, Arcadia and Caucasus. The Pleiades, Hyades and Hesperides were his daughters.

[Again, still quoting, later on...]

Diodorus tells us that Uranus was the first King of the Atlanteans. Uranus was the Greek god of the Sky, and father of Iapetus the Titan, the Biblical Japhet, of Oceanus, the Cyclopes, and many other mythical figures, including the Giants. His most celebrated Atlantean children were Basilea (which simply means “queen”) and Rhea and Pandora. Atlas, Saturn and Hesperus are also mentioned as his offspring. The Atlantides became the constellation of the Pleiades. A certain Jupiter—not the god of that name—later became King of the Atlanteans, displacing his father Saturn with the aid of the Titans.

It becomes clear that the mythical history of Atlantis is in some manner associated with the incidents of the war between the Gods and Titans, which bulks so largely in Greek mythi-history and art. The story of the Titanomachia, or divine war with the Titans, relates that Uranus, the first ruler of the world, cast his sons, Briareus, Cottys and Gyes, the Hecatoncheires, or Hundred-handed, into Tartarus, along with the Cyclopes, “the creatures with round or circular eyes”, gigantic shepherds of Sicily. Gaea, his wife, indignant at this, urged the Titans to rise against their father. They deposed him, and raised Cronus to the throne. But Cronus, in turn, hurled the Cyclopes back into Tartarus, and married his sister Rhea. Uranus and Gaea had foretold that he would himself be deposed by his own children, and as these were born he swallowed them, all but Zeus, whom his mother concealed in a cave in Crete. When Zeus came to manhood he gave his father a potion which caused him to disgorge the children he had swallowed, and these turned against Cronus and the ruling Titans. Gaea promised victory to Zeus if he would deliver the Cyclopes and Hecatoncheires from Tartarus. He did so, and the Titans were overcome and themselves cast into the Tartarus.

We find, then, the self-same personages connected with the war of the Gods and Titans as with Atlantis. Indeed it is clear that Diodorus actually applies the story and personnel of the war of the Gods and Titans to the history of Atlantis. On what grounds did he do so? He could only have done so because of an existing tradition. He certainly did not invent the tale of the Titanic War, which was in circulation centuries before his time. It seems reasonable to suppose, then, that a tradition actually existed of a great war in the Atlantic Ocean. The Gods, thought the Greeks, had their origin in the West. Thence came the mysteries and all cultures. The Cyclopes and Titans are likewise connected with the West, the former with Sicily and the Mediterranean isles, the latter with other islands. Pomponius Mela states that Albion, the Titan, son of Poseidon, and the original tutelary god of Britain, was a brother of Atlas, and assisted him with Iberius, god of Ireland, to contest the Western passage of Hercules. Albion is that Alba from which Scotland takes her ancient name of Albany. There was thus a distinct race of Titans connected with the Atlantic, and if Albion and Iberius can be identified with the British Isles it is only reasonable to assume that Atlas was also once the tutelary divinity of a western land in the ocean with which myth persistently connects his name.

[Still quoting, further along...]

We find then that Poseidon, the culture-bringer, arriving in Atlantis some centuries prior to its final submergence, allied himself with the remnants of the Cro-Magnon aborigines and gave their dying culture a more modern tendency, precisely as did Quetzalcoatl in Mexico. Indeed the myths of Poseidon and Quetzalcoatl are practically identical. In Atlantis In America I adduced proof that the personalities of Atlas and Quetzalcoatl are the same and this applies with equal force to Poseidon, the father of Atlas, who possesses the same attributes of the culture-hero. We know that Quetzalcoatl came to Mexico from some locality in the Atlantic. But whence did Poseidon come?

Poseidon, I believe, was the leader of the Azilian or proto-Azilian band of invaders who conquered Atlantis, and colonised it some centuries prior to making their great raid on Europe. He is usually described as a god of "Pelasgian" origin. Now this name Pelasgian, is usually employed to denote a race who colonised Greece at an early period, and who built immense structures of solid stone. They were, indeed, the Mykenean race, the bringers of the mysteries of the Cabiri to Greece, a people of Iberian stock. The Azilians, as we have seen, were proto-Iberians. We, have there, good grounds for the statement that Poseidon was the leader or priest-king of the Azilian invaders of Atlantis. That the whole Iberian race is distantly of North African origin scarcely admits of doubt, and it seems probable that Poseidon, "god" of the Mediterranean Sea, must have led his people from the Atlas region of North Africa to Atlantis, whence, some centuries later, they were to invade both Europe and their original home.

[Quoting, still later...]

Quetzalcoatl, for example, can be identified as the planet Venus, and it is notable that several of the gods in this calendar can be equated with certain members of the Atlantean pantheon, Quetzalcoatl, for instance, with Atlas, as has already been demonstrated, and Coatlicue with Cleito, whilst Tlaloc, Tezcatlipoca and Xochiquetzal have all an Atlantean significance, so far as their myths and symbols are concerned, as has been proved in other parts of this work.

We find, too, that the method in which the Aztecs and the Maya of Central America computed the synodic revolutions of the planet Venus has a distinct Atlantean connection, as that planet was particularly identified with the god Quetzalcoatl, who was said to have come from some locality in the Atlantic Ocean, and who, like Atlas, bore the world upon his shoulders. He was also regarded as the inventor of the tonalamatl, which was thus looked upon as the sacred divinitory book or table of a culture-hero who had come from some region in the Atlantic Ocean. [End quoting.]

We will be exploring far more about Quetzalcoatl later in this series, in sequence.

ATLANTIS DESTROYED

In Cry Of The Phoenix—Death Rattle of Freedom: The Plan 2000, a Phoenix Journal, we read:

Cayce points to the island-continents of Atlantis “in” the Atlantic and Lemuria “in” the Pacific as examples of advanced civilizations that were destroyed because they had become corrupt. Atlanteans, in particular, stand out as a people who had evolved great mental and intuitive abilities as well as being very technologically advanced. Cayce said that they understood spiritual laws better than you do today, and worshipped the One God, Aton. But the society was destroyed from within by “those who served the dark forces”—the forces of ego, repression, anger, hatred and division—any of this sound familiar?

The destruction of Atlantis was foretold by its prophets well in advance of the actual event, so there was ample time to prepare for it. Thus the important documents and records of Atlantis were gathered together and put in the Hall of Records in Egypt. The Atlanteans knew that the very existence of their culture and civilization would be unknown for centuries, but they also knew that eventually—in this age—their records would be rediscovered and all things would be revealed. Just, dear ones, as these records shall some day aeons from this “time” be discovered and your legacy to history will complete its cycle—AHO!

Indeed, recent discoveries in the Atlantic support claims of the previous existence of the continent of Atlantis. The reader, herewith, must know that a portion of the submerged Atlantean Continent has resurfaced near the Bimini Islands, the underwater divers have brought back pictures of a massive symmetrical sea wall that was obviously made by human hands and probably was one of the walls surrounding the ancient continent or parts thereof.

There are several portions of the lands of Lemuria which still stand unsubmerged today and those will remain above water level in the new configuration.

Survivors from Lemuria and Atlantis were scattered East and West depending on the fortunes of the winds and the seas. At least this is what historians wish to believe and it makes for a good fable—in fact, I should tell you the fable so you can enjoy what happens when facts are absent! Many of those survivors are said to have gone to Egypt, conquering the native peoples there, and ushering in the Golden Age of Egypt where the arts and sciences, philosophy and religion, and even beautiful architecture such as the Sphinx were greatly emphasized. The co-mingling of the Atlanteans caused a quantum leap in the evolution of the Egyptians, both materially and spiritually.

Other survivors from the two continents (which by the way, were some thousands of years separated) are said to have landed on the shores of the Americas. This theory is supported by the American Indians whose legends say that they are the descendants of the survivors of the now-lost Red Land of Pahn, which was broken up, destroyed and covered over by the waters of the great seas. It is also reported that those Atlanteans who were the most spiritual and, therefore, the most highly evolved, transformed themselves into dolphins to escape the cataclysm that engulfed Atlantis. This would help to explain why the ancient Creeks considered it murder to kill a dolphin, and also helps to explain why the Hindu scriptures state that dolphins are so spiritual and highly evolved.

[Still quoting] Edgar Cayce: The experience of Atlantis, then, is a lesson to this generation in the evolution of the Earth, and man's capacity for making a total shambles of his sojourn here. For not only has this happened to the Atlanean civilization, it has happened to many before it!

“‘You remember a single deluge only,’ states the Egyptian priest, in Plato's REPUBLIC. ‘There have been, and will be again, many destructions of mankind arising out of many causes... You remember a single deluge, only, but there were many previous ones.’” [End quoting.]

THE HORSEMAN & THE SNAKE

In Tales Of The Dervishes, written by Idries Shah, we read: [quoting]

There is a proverb that “the opposition” of the man of knowledge is better than the “support” of the fool.

I, Salim Abdali, bear witness that this is true in the greater ranges of existence, as it is true in the lower levels.

This is made manifest in the tradition of the Wise, who have handed down the tale of the Horseman and the Snake.

A horseman from his point of vantage saw a poisonous snake slip down the throat of a sleeping man. The horseman realized that if the man were allowed to sleep the venom would surely kill him.

Accordingly he lashed the sleeper until he was awake. Having no time to lose, he forced this man to a place where there were a number of rotten apples lying upon the ground and made him eat them. Then he made him drink large gulps of water from a stream.

All the while the other man was trying to get away, crying: “What have I done, you enemy of humanity, that you should abuse me in this manner?”

Finally, when he was near to exhaustion, and dusk was falling, the man fell to the ground and vomited out the apples, the water, and the snake. When he saw what had come out of him, he realized what had happened, and begged the forgiveness of the horseman.

This is our condition. In reading this, do not take history for allegory, nor allegory for history. Those who are endowed with knowledge have responsibility. Those who are not, have none beyond what they can conjecture.

The man who was saved said: “If you had told me, I would have accepted your treatment with a good grace.”

The horseman answered: “If I had told you, you would not have believed. Or you would have been paralyzed by fright. Or run away. Or gone to sleep again, seeking forgetfulness. And there would not have been time.”

Spurring his horse, the mysterious rider rode away. [End quoting.]

TRANSITION THOUGHTS

Continents have come and they have gone. Entire land-masses have shifted as Mother Earth has evolved, changed, and grown. Man is often so ego-filled that he does not believe it has happened, or at the very least, that it could happen again. With the erratic weather patterns around our globe, including rapidly increasing winds, with the prediction by many of massive geophysical Earth changes looming in near the future, these great tectonic plates may once again start their shifting, their movement, their participation in an ever-changing and evolving Earth. As we turn our vision briefly backward, perhaps we may glean a few lessons from that which has gone before, lest we be destined to repeat those lessons. Change is the only constant in this old world. And let's not forget, please, that everything truly is connected to everything.

CHAPTER 2

LANTO: “DISASTERS” PROVIDE GREAT TEACHING TOOLS

6/13/98 LANTO, THE SAGE

Greetings, my scribe. It is I, Lanto, the Sage (one who has gained wisdom through experience). I come in and of the One Light of Creator God. I am most closely associated with the physical harmonic frequency of the color yellow, though I am hardly limited to any one vibrational frequency in any one realm. We are all created in the image of Creator’s broad spectral expression and thus are limitless beings. Be at peace, for you know me well.

I have come as directed by Our Father, The One Light, so that His promise to your world will be fulfilled, and so that you ones may have insight into that which is fast approaching into your reality of experience.

Know that there is balance in all of Creator’s thought projections. Even the most seemingly horrible of events have reason for occurring, whether or not you can see the Greater Wisdom unfolding before you.

Your planet as a whole is in a state of great unbalance. There are many reasons for this condition, and perhaps the greatest one reason is because you, the inhabitants of Earth-Shan, have not stood up and exercised your God-given right to demand accountability from the so-called rulers of your planet.

How, you may be asking, has this come to be?

This has come about mostly through self-ignorance of the masses, but also through deliberate and calculated manipulation throughout the past several thousand years. What you are now experiencing is the sum total of your planetary population’s refusal to awaken to a greater awareness of the God-self within each. This awareness includes the realization that you are each responsible, both as individuals and as a planetary species, for the kind of energy you allow to propagate from within you, and subsequently contribute to the total consciousness of your world.

The lack of conscious attunement to balance creates a “polar” charge in terms of energy flow. This is because every mis-guided step in the “wrong” direction necessarily generates a counter-pressure toward a condition of balance.

There are several ways in which to re-balance this “polar” charge. The preferred method would be to come back into balance by systematically relieving the “pressure” by allowing TRUE knowledge to flow into the world.

Many of your so-called elite controllers have hidden truths and subsequent technologies from you-the-people. These gifts were originally meant to liberate your planet from the need to RAPE her of her natural resources, which would eventually lead your planet towards a greater freedom.

Ones such as Nikola Tesla were sent to bring you the fundamentals of “free energy” that would put a halt to the world’s pollution, starvation, and eventually, your preoccupation with materialism. This technology was severely suppressed by the greedy power-brokers who would not look past their personal agenda, to allow a greater recognition of the true evolutionary importance of such gifts. It was (and still is) equally suppressed by the ignorance and lack of forthright demands by the general public to insist that this type of evolutionary technology be exploited and utilized.

The masses were kept in the dark for the most part, and believed the half-truths and lies which their news-media sources told them to believe. Not much has changed and the masses are still influenced and controlled as they have been for quite some time.

But what about YOU?! Here I am referring to anyone and everyone reading this. What have YOU done to demand that a greater Light shine upon, and thus expose, such atrocities?

For the most part, the average reader of these messages has done little more than get themselves upset. Some of you have researched a little to see if there is anything to this free-energy “stuff”. But beyond that, what have you done?

Have you written your Congressmen with an intelligent letter containing documentation and proof? Have you gone to your news-media sources with the same documentation and proof? My point here is simply that, though there are a few who do all of these things, most of you have done nothing-to-very-little to change the prevailing shackles of control.

Why? FEAR!

This is the major reason why your world is in need of such great awakening experiences. The average person does little-to-nothing to demand that true KNOWLEDGE, which has been gifted to this planet, be shared. When the preoccupations of living change from where to get one’s nails done or what the latest basketball scores are, to where the next meal is coming from—then there will be a desire to overcome your fears and take meaningful action!

There are MANY military men out there who are sworn to “secrecy” as to the existence of various technologies that could be utilized in such manners as to provide the necessary resources to, for instance, water the deserts and thus feed your starving world. These ones are usually chosen after extensive psychological testing exactly because of their ability to be manipulated and controlled. These ones are nearly incapable of formulating an independent thought for themselves, and thus you have the source of the phrase “good men who do NOTHING”.

When your world is faced with the great needs of survival of your species, these ones and YOU ones will be forced (from your own inner desire to survive) to take action. The ones with the knowledge will realize that there is a greater need and use for the “secret” technologies.

Many will proclaim, in ignorance, that God is somehow punishing them. This, again, is so that they will not have to face responsibility for their own actions and in-actions. All who are reading this, even if you are Ground Crew, have contributed in some way to the current conditions of your planet and thus you have a “need” to experience the balancing effects of the Universal Law.

These forthcoming events, about which I speak, will be in ALL areas of physical experience! For those who place great importance in the stock markets or other financial arenas, your “nightmare” will be the collapse and subsequent shift in the value system of your world. When a loaf of bread fetches more than a hundred pounds of gold, you will be caused to go within and question your personal values.

For those of you who place great value upon physical things, such as houses, cars, and the latest clothing styles, you will be caused to search within when the massive Earth-changes destroy the stick houses and factories which manufacture your material goods. You will experience, perhaps for the first time, the inner beauty of ones who offer to assist you in your time of need, no matter how dirty or disheveled they may be.

There will not be any place on your globe that will not be affected by this great re-balancing cycle. All who survive will have been caused to look within and ask for Guidance. There shall be the Guidance and there shall be a great resurgence of inner connectedness to that Guidance.

Ones will put aside their differences and recognize the value of community sharing. No one will be able to survive for very long in the physical without the assistance of a community effort.

Great intellectual “wizards” who are used to their luxurious lifestyles will become the students of the pauper who has lived homeless for years and knows how to survive. The net effect upon your world will be a great resurgence back into that which has TRUE value—the inner world wherein all is connected to ALL. Each person will realize that there is great value in sharing with everyone the gifts they possess, for in doing so all will prosper in many ways— physically, emotionally, and spiritually.

Will the economy collapse before the great earthquakes commence?

Will the nuclear wars start before the planet enters into the full effects of the Photon Belt?

These questions can only be answered in terms of probabilities. There are many possible scenarios and you would be wise to prepare for each as if they were going to happen tomorrow.

I am not here to be a fortune-teller; I am here as a Teacher and Guide. Can your parents possibly prepare you for all of the possible scenarios that you could encounter during your lifetime? No! But they can give you enough information (tools) so that you can prepare in general ways so as to be able to come to your own answers when a challenge arises.

God has sent we of the Hosts to help those of you who so desire the help, so that you may have the Guidance necessary in order to prepare. The net effect of the coming major experiences will be of great positive value—in terms of the TRUE inner values that really matter! Let it be known that very few at this time give much thought to these inner values. But they WILL!

Prepare yourselves with those things that will aid in your physical survival. If you have prepared for yourself and your family, and you have the means to do so, help another to prepare who may not be as able, such as an elderly neighbor.

There are many things that may be of individual value. You each should go within and listen to what your Guides are telling you. Perhaps an axe or a chain saw or even an oxyacetylene torch will be on YOUR list. There are many devices which may help you rescue someone who may eventually return the favor and save YOUR life with the skills or knowledge that they possess.

I am Lanto, the Sage. I come as Guide and Teacher to any who wish to hear. I come within the One Light of Creator Source.

The final clarion is ringing and will continue to do so from here on out! How will you respond to the call?

Salu.

CHAPTER 3

THE TRUTH IS OUT THERE IF YOU LOOK WHAT'S STOPPING YOU?

This is not meant to be a sermon, but a short reflection instigated by the national release, this week, of the X-Files movie based upon the popular television program.

What is it that has made The X-Files so popular that it has acquired, as labeled by the ever-analyzing media, a—oh, no—”cult” following? The answer is simple.

Even among the many who are seemingly asleep, deep down the public psyche knows we-the-people have been lied to concerning just about everything that is truly important in our lives. There is a part (called conscience) within every Lighted being which is gasping for air as each new lie piles upon the rest. It's that part of you which instinctively KNOWS Truth and can sort it from baloney.

When a television show comes along which offers some fresh air or “scratches” that “itch” for Truth—even if done in a sometimes ridiculous or circular or disinforming fashion—then there is a drawing of attention, just as the hungry person is attracted to food, even junk food. (At least it's food for thought rather than yet another lame sitcom hyped as genius.)

The X-Files, however, is also a “safe” indulgence in that one may vicariously explore the “preposterous” notions of government conspiracies and cover-ups and really far-out high-tech stuff without being laughed at or considered a political insurgent or worse. One night a few months ago on Art Bell's late-night radio talk-show, a caller innocently and correctly referred to Art's fenced-in residence and broadcasting studio, out in the Nevada desert and not far from infamous Area 51, as a “compound”. Art was very quick to retort, only half jokingly, “No, this is NOT my compound, but my home! Janet Reno blows-up compounds!”

There was a hint of the FEAR of Truth that paralyzes many conveyed in that reaction by Art. You longtime CONTACT readers know this reaction all too well whenever you take the chance of introducing family and friends to The Truth. That's what inspired the third line, the question, in this week's Front Page headline: What IS stopping so many from acknowledging the clues that are all around us now? Of course it's fear—in one or another of its blinding and paralyzing forms. The adversary ALWAYS knows which buttons to push in each of us.

And how many of you watch a show like The X-Files, or some of the early dynamite dialog in a production like Mel Gibson's movie Conspiracy Theory, and think to yourself, “Gee, it looks like someone working there reads CONTACT!”? I know I say that frequently enough when I see our material quoted back to us, even if a bit garbled, through so many different media sources. But who cares, so long as it gets out there, one way or another.

The disinformation spin-doctors work hard to turn The Truth inside-out and upside-down. But how many of you are now getting pretty good at, for instance, taking the EXACT OPPOSITE of the government's official pronouncements—and thus getting some darn good information?! What you “decode” might not be very comforting, but it is pretty accurate. Remember that The Truth always comes out, eventually.

I wanted to simply take a moment, upon the release of the X-Files movie, to pause and express a token of thanks to all those who work in so many different ways (and sometimes within very confining and vigilant censorship parameters) to wake-up the public and, even if in a more entertaining than accurate way, light the fire in their minds that, indeed, The Truth is out there—IF you look!

— Dr. Edwin M. Young, Editor-In-Chief

CHAPTER 4

THE NEWS DESK

HEARING TOLD OF S. AFRICA'S CHEMICAL WEAPONS

From FAX, 6/12/98: [quoting]

by David Beresford in Cape Town

A hearing of the South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission into the country's chemical and biological weapons programme was yesterday shown instruments of assassination produced by scientists working for the apartheid government.

Ian Lourens, a bio-engineer who worked on the programme, told the commission that devices for killing opponents of the government included walking sticks and umbrellas which fired lethal pellets, syringes disguised as screwdrivers, and rings with cavities for poison.

The hearings began after the government failed to persuade the commission to stage them behind closed doors. President Nelson Mandela's legal adviser, Fink Haysom, argued there was a danger that the hearings, if held in public, would lead to the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. But a panel chaired by Bishop Desmond Tutu ruled that most of the evidence should be heard in public.

Scientists, doctors and military personnel have been called to testify. They include Wouter Basson, the cardiologist who headed the programme. He faces prosecution on charges including conspiracy and incitement to murder, the manufacture of illegal drugs and fraud.

Dr. Lourens told the commission he had been transferred from the air force to a "special operations" unit within the army's special forces in 1984.

The unit was staffed almost entirely by doctors. He recalled how he had put together a special radio network for members of the unit, and supplied them with souped-up cars and compact assault rifles.

He described experiments at top-secret laboratories involving testing a "new generation" of tear gas on baboons and attempts to develop ways of reducing the birth-rate among blacks. But he insisted that the work was done on a need-to-know basis and he did not know the details.

He said he had been involved in the production of the assassination instruments, which he described as applicators. Several of the devices, including "needle tubes", were produced as exhibits. Dr. Lourens said the tubes, which could be incorporated into an umbrella or walking stick, were spring-loaded and used to inject poison.

A second version of the umbrella/walking stick fired a small ball. “This ball would have a number of holes drilled into it, so you would be able to pack a toxic substance into the ball,” said Dr. Lourens.

The ball would be fired into the back of the victim’s leg and “the person would feel something like a bee sting”. Polycarbonate was used because it was difficult to pick up on x-rays.

Dr. Lourens recounted how he had taken one of the instruments and two vials of a chemical to Britain with instructions to deliver it to a man called Trevor whom he was to meet at a railway station. They went to a South African safe house near Ascot, in Berkshire.

“At the cottage I demonstrated to him how the mechanism worked. I opened one of the vials... I somehow spilt some of the substance on to my hand. I don’t know how it happened, but I wiped my mouth. I lost consciousness very quickly. There was a bathroom. I recall going into the bathroom and there being a bottle of Dettol, which I drank. With hindsight I have no idea why I drank the Dettol. At that stage I, to a large extent, lost my sight and the Dettol of course induced a lot of vomiting. I woke up a period later.”

He said he had reported what had happened to doctors at the special operations unit but they did not believe he would have survived.

Dr. Lourens told the commission he had been involved in negotiations with foreign buyers for the sale of weapons technology. One was a customer who wanted a nerve agent called VX but the deal fell through. He did not know which country the would-be buyer was from.

He also met a Syrian who was buying technology. He introduced him to another South African scientist who, he believed, visited Syria,

The hearing continues.

TOP BRASS SAY
DESERTERS MURDERED

Is It Possible That American POWs
In Vietnam Were Murdered
By Their Fellow Countrymen?

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/22/98: [quoting]

EXCLUSIVE TO THE SPOTLIGHT, by MIKE BLAIR

For some 25 years now this writer and newspaper have been delving into the subject of American POWs and MIAs still unaccounted for from the Vietnam War, as well as wars dating back to at least World War

II.

U.S. military involvement in Vietnam was ended in 1973 and the war ended in total communist victory two years later. At present there are, officially, 2,093 American POWs and MIAs still listed as having an unknown fate as a result of the Vietnam War and an additional more than 8,150 from the Korean War.

In all of those years covering the POW-MIA issue, stories have emerged again and again about American captives of the communists in Vietnam being killed, or perhaps a better word would be assassinated, by special American “hit teams”.

When the stories surfaced they were dismissed by most as the rantings of immoral charlatans. Surely, most reasoned, such activity was totally unthinkable. That the U.S. military could purposely murder its own must be Red propaganda.

‘TAILWIND’ EMERGES

Now, however, there has emerged evidence of “Operation Tailwind”, a program adopted at the very highest levels of the U.S. government to kill American servicemen who had defected (deserted) to either the North Vietnamese or Viet Cong communist forces during the war.

According to the unfolding story, U.S. Special Operations units, in this case specifically studies and operations groups, commonly referred to as SOG, were sent into enemy territory to kill American deserters.

Very disturbing has been the revelation that such hit teams may have used sarin, a deadly nerve gas developed during World War II, to complete their grisly tasks.

That such operations took place have been confirmed by no less of a honored and respected authority than retired Adm. Thomas Moorer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs staff.

In addition, retired Army Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, who for a period served as SOG commander in Vietnam, has stated in reference to Tailwind that often it can be more important to the survival of U.S. troops to kill deserters than enemy soldiers because the knowledge that they possess “can be damaging”.

HOW MANY?

Although the government now claims that there were only two known deserters, it is a highly questionable issue, since the government’s own list of POWs and MIAs still missing, a copy of which has been in The SPOTLIGHT’s possession for some time, indicates about 20 known deserters or turn-coats.

It is also a fact that for the most part those who became deserters are low-level personnel, types hardly in possession of classified material, described by Gen. Singlaub as “damaging”. Some desertions were actually drug related, also a known fact.

Most troubling about Tailwind, however, is that many who have come forward with information about it, indicated that it was intended to eliminate Americans who were “believed to be deserters”. The word “believed” appears again and again.

A belief, no one needs to be reminded, is not a certainty

It can also be taken for granted that anyone seen in the presence of the enemy during a war is not necessarily a deserter. POWs are also in the presence of the enemy, and if, as an example, they are detected in aerial spy photographs it is not improbable that mistakes in identifying their purpose in being there could have been made.

UNKNOWN FATE

It is also very troubling that most knowledgeable POW-MIA activists have known for years that the communists in both Vietnam and Korea never repatriated many POWs who were known to possess highly technical information.

As an example, the so-called “backseaters” of U.S. jet aircraft, those who manned the highly technical electronic gear, were not returned by the Reds.

In addition, Tailwind seems to have been directed at deserters in Vietnam’s neighbors of Laos and Cambodia, where “secret wars” were being fought against the communists, the truth being concealed from both the American people and the Congress.

This writer, as an example, spoke at length many times with the late Sgt. Fred L. Zabitosky, a SOG team leader in Southeast Asia during the Vietnam War and a recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Zabitosky liked to tell the story about how President Nixon mentioned to him in a whisper during the medal presentation ceremony at the White House about what would happen if Congress found out that the combat, in which he was recommended for the citation, had taken place in Laos where U.S. ground forces were not supposed to be engaged with the enemy.

Zabitosky, it is interesting to note, had deep convictions about POWs and MIAs being left behind in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, to the point of personally entering Laos on several clandestine, and dangerous, personal missions during the 1980s to search for information about them. This much to the consternation of high-level officials of the administration of President Ronald Reagan.

While others of higher notoriety about such secret private missions into Laos come to mind, the Zabitosky missions were genuine beyond all doubt and caused brass at the Pentagon, not to mention the CIA, considerable headaches.

In any case, according to reliable reports, orders came down, passing somewhere along the line through the White House, then occupied by President Nixon, that such “believed deserters” be killed.

This was accomplished, it has been reported, by individual servicemen making their own on-the-spot determinations, as well as orders coming directly from, or through, the Pentagon.

Now that the truth about Tailwind is emerging and the specter of a far more sinister fate met our missing in Vietnam than could have been meted out even by the brutal communists, it is time for a thorough investigation.

As one POW-MIA activist recently stated: “This is all becoming far too much. And it’s about time some [expletive deleted] was held accountable for it all.” [End quoting]

Maybe, finally, the truth of a lot of political-criminal activity will surface so the politicians who put us into their battles will receive their just rewards—and let’s don’t forget to include their slavemasters.

ZETATALK: HUBBLE TROUBLE

Excerpted from the INTERNET, 6/14/98: [quoting]

...What is it the public is not supposed to see, with all this Principal Investigator privilege, lack of access to hot-off-the-press Hubble shots, and even the lack of a precise Hubble schedule. The public can’t press to be invited to the party if they don’t know one is planned—that’s the theory. The public is not to see the UFOs that the astronauts saw with their bare eyes and the Hubble records regularly. The public is not to see the evidence that NASA and JPL hold like candy to dribble out when they need funding, such as evidence that planets suitable for life exist orbiting around other suns. The public is not to see evidence that NASA is publishing erroneous infra-red catalogs, so that the 12th Planet, a.k.a. Planet X, does not appear in the IRAS catalogs and so is not sought in the skies where it now rides. The public is not to see evidence that would tell the truth about any distractions, such as the Hale-Bopp fraud, that the establishment wishes the public to chase after [emphasis mine].

NASA is increasingly having Hubble trouble, but this will not cause them to openly share the pictures that the Hubble provides with the general public. Look for increasing withholding, and alternative excuses beyond the Principal Investigator excuse, as this one is wearing thin with the public. [End quoting]

I’m glad to see that someone on the Net is putting out the truth about Hale-Bopp and the 12th planet. This is the first I’ve found.

CODEX ALIMENTARIUS A TERM YOU WILL LEARN TO HATE

Bureaucratic Fees—
The Weapon Of Choice

Excerpted from SECOND OPINION, by Dr. William Douglas, 8/97: [quoting]

...If the FDA gets its way, here’s how the system will work: In Canada, if claims are made on a natural product, the HPB then requires that a “Drug Identification Number” be applied for. If this is done, and HPB deems the product safe, it can be marketed as long as the manufacturer, distributor, and retailer pay costs of up to $720 per DIN number.

If no one has applied for a DIN, then no one can sell the product, and you can even be arrested for selling such innocuous products as fish oil, hawthorne berry, and cranberry capsules. That may not sound like much to even a small American business, but if the DIN system were adopted in the U.S., these costs would be 10-20 times higher due to the market being so much bigger. Now you're talking about real money: $7,000 to $15,000 per number. Where does that leave the mom and pop operation? It leaves them with nothing to sell.

On top of this outrage, under a "Cost recovery" program, manufacturers will be years and any delegate can propose a change in its standards. The Commission's latest outrage produced an ominous new threat to health-conscious consumers the world over when the German delegation presented a bill called the "Proposed Draft Guidelines for Dietary Supplements".

The German plan calls for the following: (1) No vitamin, mineral, herb, etc. can be sold for prophylactic (preventive) or therapeutic use. (2) None sold as a food can exceed potency (dosage) levels set by the commission. (3) CODEX regulations for dietary supplements would become binding—eliminating the escape clause within the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) that allows a nation to set its own standards. And (4), all new dietary supplements would automatically be banned unless they go through the CODEX approval process.

If these draconian measures are adopted, any party to GATT (which includes the United States) that does not accept the new standards can be heavily sanctioned (fined) by the world Trade Organization (WTO). The WTO will have the right to levy enormous fines on any nation that gets "Out of line", with the potential to cripple entire sectors of that nation's economy.

The sole U.S. delegate to CODEX has been Elizabeth A. Yetley, PhD, RD, an FDA bureaucrat. So instead of the proverbial fox in the hen house, we have representing us, a fox in the fox house. Responding to political pressure in the United States, so far she has voted for health freedom, but little result—at the last meeting the vote went 16-2 in favor of the German proposal. I doubt we will hear much ranting and raving from our "representative" from the FDA. You're probably sitting back saying that nothing like this could happen to us in the U.S.—Congress wouldn't let it happen. If that's what you're thinking, you're wrong.

Congress, in fact, surrendered much of its power to deal with the issue when it passed GATT. Under the GATT agreement, member nations must "harmonize" their rules governing the manufacture of health and medical products with new international standards so as to be "in line" with them. (I wonder if anyone in Congress actually read that clause before signing the bill.) Republicans in Congress assured the American people, that GATT is not part of a world-government trap—do you believe that now?

Congress cannot rescind its vote on GATT—and, on the contrary, the single U.S. delegate to this international commission can be outvoted by delegates from other countries; it's called international democracy. Two steps have already been taken in the CODEX process, which is now at step three. The proposal is going to be formalized and written responses and debate over its specific features will be undertaken.

In September, 1998, the next CODEX meeting will be held in Bonn, Germany. It could easily be driven through to finalization at step eight unless enough countries oppose it... [End quoting]

Don't you think it's about time that all of us got on the phone, faxes, Internet, etc., and made our voices heard??

CULT HAZARDOUS TO HEALTH

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/15/98: [quoting]

ANOTHER VICTIM. Philip C. Gale at 19 had had a life of outstanding accomplishment. He entered MIT at 15 and at 19, when he killed himself, knew 20 computer languages fluently and was also outstanding in every field he entered. His mother, Marie, was a well-known Scientology activist and had raised her son inside the "church". Philip never took to Scientology in spite of his mother's dedication. Caught between two worlds and undergoing great stress, Philip apparently saw no other way to resolve the conflict. The Boston Herald reported that Scientologists are taught that when they leave the church they will kill themselves or have a serious accident. [End quoting]

That certainly is a powerful tool to keep ones under control.

MERCHANTS OF DEATH

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/15/98: [quoting]

In 1988 America had 16 percent of the World's arms business. Today it is 63 percent. Ironically, our own military is proportionally budgeted less than in the 1930s while American soldiers increasingly face enemies around the world armed with U.S.-furnished weapons, military technology and training. While our military is financed miserly, U.S. foreign military aid was a whopping $36 billion already in President Clinton's first year in office. [End quoting]

Exactly as planned long ago—rake in the money while selling our country into slavery. Read the Protocols!

WORLD'S PEACEKEEPERS

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/15/98: [quoting]

Often proclaimed the world's Policeman, America is the leading producer of instruments of torture used throughout the world. Of 100 firms listed by Amnesty International, 42 are U.S. companies. Most manufacture some sort of electric-shock "therapy". This type of policing aid puts "teeth" into police-state aspirations, an apt description of United Nations policy and programs on a global scale. [End quoting]

What nation could possibly compare with the U.S. in its hypocrisy??

SATAN'S MUSIC

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/15/98: [quoting]

In San Luis Obispo, California, Joseph Fiorella, 15, Jacob Dalashmut, 15, and Royce Cayse, 16, had a rock band modeled after the death metal group, Slayer. The trio raped, tortured and murdered 15-year-old Elyse Marie Pahler because she was “blond, blue-eyed and known to be a virgin—qualities they believed were needed to be a perfect sacrifice to the devil”. Cayse wrote the day after the deed, “I made the switch last night. [Satan] has taken my soul and replaced it with a new one. [End quoting] Why and how do you think the rock music bands have gotten away with their destruction of our youth for these last few decades without them being stopped?? Another marker of a decaying society, don’t you think?

THE OTHER FOOT

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/15/98: [quoting]

Curtis Clapp crossed the border into Mexico at Nuevo Laredo where his truck was searched by Mexican customs. In his tool box were some cartridges for rifles which are commonplace in a Texas rancher’s pickup, but considered “military” in Mexico. Clapp was arrested and thrown into a Mexican jail where every item for survival, food included, must be paid for on the spot in cash. His brother, attorney Randy Clapp, has been trying every angle from intercession by congressmen to a failed $5,000 payoff to a “Mexican of influence”, to get Curtis released. He will learn that his brother will be free only after every member of his family has been bled dry financially by Mexican officials. [End quoting]

Worse is happening in our own country. Furthermore if we don’t stop it here, how do we think we’re going to stop it there?

FEDERAL INSANITY

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/15/98: [quoting]

People in government-mandated, tiny, plastic and glass cars—not to mention the cars themselves—don’t fare well in accidents with larger, heavier machines such as GM’s famous Suburban. The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, always quick to tell others how to operate their businesses, wants to “level the playing field” by lightening the safer rigs to make them as dangerous as the thin-skinned high-mileage throwaways. Clinton appointee Ricardo Martinez, of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, is already strong-arming auto builders to comply. [End quoting]

Their game is not what it appears—it is to frustrate and confuse us, make lots of money, and gain control while doing so. The old cat-and-mouse game, with us always paying through the nose.

FARMERS PRAISE ETHANOL DECISION

Farmers are congratulating
Congress for extending the tax break for ethanol production.

From THE SPOTLIGHT, by Marilyn Wentz, 6/15/98: [quoting]

Producers and consumers alike will benefit from Congress' decision to extend tax incentives to blenders of ethanol through 2007, according to the National Farmers Union (NFU).

"NFU is extremely pleased with the strong support for ethanol tax incentives demonstrated by members of Congress in ... passage of the highway bill," said Tom Buis, NFU vice president of government relations. "This is extremely good news for grain producers and for rural communities that make ethanol." [End quoting]

I would highly suspicion that the reason congress did this is very bad for the American people because I think they're using it to do away with our SCARCE grain supply.

I suspicion that the huge grain elevator explosion was part of this plan also.

SILVER SEEN WITH SOLID $5.50 BASE

Excerpted from THE SPOTLIGHT, by Bill Haynes, 6/15/98: [quoting]

If what goes up must come down, must what goes down necessarily go back up?

The industrial demand for silver has grown every year since 1987, rising from 455.5 million ounces to 798.9 million ounces in 1997. In 1990, industrial demand overtook production and has exceeded newly refined production every year since then. This year's shortfall of 160 million ounces means a cumulative deficit of 1.2 billion ounces in only nine years.

The production deficit has been met by sales from above-ground stockpiles, from both commercial depositories and individuals who store their silver at home or at the nearby bank. Despite the shortfall, which has been widely known for years, both groups have been net sellers for years, and understandably so... [End quoting]

Silver could very well be ready for a big rise, but don't think the elite won't make a grab for all of it and your gold when they pull down martial law.

IBM: BROWSER BRAINS QBIC

From PC MAGAZINE, by Cade Metz, 6/9/1998: [quoting]

Computer hardware's progress is often defined only in terms of clock speed and bandwidth. But if not for the continued improvements in data storage over the past 40 years, Moore's Law would be trivial and 56-Kbps modem speeds would be excessive.

The center of hard disk innovation is the Almaden Research Center in San Jose, California, one of the seven IBM research labs in operation across the globe (www.research.ibm.com). Almaden (www.almaden.ibm.com) is home to about 600 researchers, each developing new ways to store data and handle it once it is stored. "We're about information," says Ashok Chandra, director of computer science at Almaden, "managing information, gathering it, saving it, searching through it, and distributing it in useful formats."

The world's first hard disk was developed in November 1956 in downtown San Jose, only a few miles from the current Almaden site. The RAMAC 305—a stack of 50 spinning platters, each 2 feet in diameter—stored a then-remarkable 5MB of data, the rough equivalent of 60,000 punch cards. Over the next four decades, IBM researchers have improved on this prototype nearly 2 million-fold. Almaden engineers last year set the standing world record for hard disk data-storage density, reaching 11.6 billion bits per square inch with their latest GMR (giant magneto-resistive) drive. The drive can store the equivalent of more than 725,000 typewritten pages in a space slightly larger than a thumbprint.

Almaden's Storage Systems & Technology division is advancing every facet of hard disk design, from the magnetic materials used in disks themselves, to the lubricants that coat the disks, to the heads that read the data, to the sliders that move the heads. GMR drives, however, cannot be improved in perpetuity. As GMR researchers approach the superparamagnetic limit—the data-storage density where temperature changes can cause random reversals in a bit's magnetization—other engineers are exploring alternative technologies, including holographic storage and molecular-scale devices.

Another Almaden division deals with types of data already stored. Continuing a project that began in Neil Gershenfeld's physics group at the MIT Media Lab, Tom Zimmerman of Almaden's Computer Science division is working with data sent not across computer systems but across the human body. His Personal Area Network (PAN) uses a small silicon card that sits in your back pocket and communicates with various people or machines by sending a low-frequency, low-power signal through your body. When you shake hands with someone, your cards could exchange addresses and phone numbers, for instance. You would only have to touch a telephone to give it your calling-card number or touch a car door to unlock it. An exercise machine at Almaden can accept a PAN signal and automatically begin a regime specific to you.

Dragutin Petkovic, also in the Computer Science division, has long been engaged with QBIC (Query By Image Content), a means of organizing and searching a database of images using actual color, shape, and texture rather than just keywords. With a traditional image database, you must catalog each image using a written description, then retrieve images by matching keywords within those descriptions. With QBIC, pronounced cubic, the cataloging is mathematical. "We index an image by examining individual pixels and extracting numerical color and layout information," says Petkovic. When searching a collection of stamps, for instance, you simply "show" the database an image whose color or texture resembles the stamp you're looking for.

Rob Barrett, an Almaden physicist cum computer scientist, is working on a software intermediary known as WBI (Web Browsing Intelligence). Similar to agents, intermediaries work in the background to “customize and enhance your environment”, Barrett says. Sitting between your browser and the Web, WBI augments each page you visit and uses various mini-applications to facilitate the browsing process. Regardless of where you are on the Web, small traffic lights sit beside each hyperlink to indicate the availability of the servers you’re about to visit. Advisors, terse annotations that pop up throughout a page, point to items in a predefined catalog (Yahoo! or a personal database, for example) that are relevant to the subject at hand. “In one sense,” says Barrett, “WBI is a lens through which to view the Web.” [End quoting]

If this is what is available in the publicly acknowledged research laboratories, take a guess at what is in use already at secret military installations—of course at taxpayer expense!

THE TRUTH IS OUT THERE!

From the INTERNET, 6/14/98: [quoting]

Thanks for the try-again—when these topics come to our attention, it could as well have been written about the situation here in S.A., which tells one: it’s a world food crises!

Another news flash appeared in The Citizen on Thurs., 11 June, about a Silo explosion in Kansas, U.S.A. Explosions can happen due to friction of grain when compressed but, as ‘we know’ that most of them are empty, a good excuse for not enough grain storage would be by exploding them on purpose—perhaps?

Quote:

WICHITA, Kansas—The severely damaged headhouse of the DeBruce Grain elevator near Haysville, Kansas. An explosion ripped through the structure on Monday, tearing through the reinforced concrete of the half-mile-long elevator, killing two and injuring 11. Four more workers are believed trapped in the tunnel beneath the silo. Then again [quote:] About 90 rescue workers from Wichita, Nebraska and Oklahoma rotated in 12-hour shifts, digging with shovels and bulldozers in a seven foot by eight foot (2.1 m by 2.4 m) tunnel, where wheat and sorghum from the silo was piled as high as 3m from the ceiling. —Reuters

Then the truth is out there for all ‘disbelievers’, as confirmation slowly catches up on them by exposing Technology to control the masses—Quoting, The Citizen Thurs., 11 June 1998.

PLAN TO WEAKEN MANDELA REVEALED

CAPE TOWN—The Truth and Reconciliation Commission yesterday released minutes of the apartheid-era State Security Council which recommended that Nelson Mandela be released from jail only after he became too physically weak to pose a political threat.

“Mandela must be in a relatively weak physical condition so that he cannot operate as a leader for long,” said the recommendations of a meeting discussing whether to release Pres. Mandela, who spent a total of 27 years in jail for fighting apartheid. (C.seperateness [??])

The minutes of the meeting in March 1986 were released during a hearing into the former government’s chemical and biological warfare program. Mr. Schalk Van Rensburg, a researcher at the Roodeplaat Research Laboratories (RRL) which produced chemical weapons for the apartheid security forces, said his boss Andre Immelman told him of a plan to poison Pres. Mandela. “He made the statement ‘You need not worry, his brain function will deteriorate with time,’” Mr. Van Rensburg told the TRC. “The intention was, as I understood it, to reduce his level of intellectuality and effectiveness through brain damage.” Mr. Van Rensburg said, “I thought it logical that they would use a toxic solution to achieve this aim.”

Mr. Van Rensburg said he had also read newspaper reports which alleged a plan to give Pres. Mandela small doses of the poison thallium, which would cause brain damage similar to meningitis. The researcher said the meeting minutes shown to him seemed to be consistent with what Mr. Immelman told him about a plan to harm Pres. Mandela, who was released from jail in 1990 and elected president in South Africa’s first all-race election in 1994.

But Jaap Celliers, lawyer for several senior scientists at the laboratories, said the minutes did not necessarily imply that the state wanted to actively harm Pres. Mandela. “There is not necessarily a sinister deduction to be drawn,” he told the hearing, adding that another section of the minutes suggested that Pres. Mandela’s health was more likely to have deteriorated naturally the later he was released.

The minutes showed that the State Security Council discussed how it could best release Pres. Mandela to limit his political impact, including releasing him to his former home area of Transkei.

The hearing also heard evidence from Wynand Swanepoell, former manager of RRL, who denied any knowledge that his company was involved in producing poisons, toxins and viruses for use in the apartheid movement. “RRRL had to do with the evaluation and analysis of biological and chemical agents to be able to analyze and trace them with the purpose to do decontamination and neutralization,” he said.

Mr. Swanepoel said he only dealt with the company’s finances and management and was not involved in the details of orders which came from Wouter Basson, who headed the special operations unit of the former South African Defence Force.

Dr. Basson has been provisionally charged with the manufacture of one tonne of mandrax and a ton of ecstasy and other charges including instigation to murder and conspiracy to murder.

Truth Commission lawyers confronted Mr. Swanepoel with a list of RRL products, including wiski spiked with toxic herbicide, cigarettes dipped in anthrax and poisoned chocolates. But Mr. Swanepoel said the laboratory could have made these products to test if poisons could be traced in them and said he could not speculate about what they had been used for. —Reuters. SPIELBERG’S STALKER
GETS 25-TO-LIFE TERM

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 6/18/98: [quoting]

A man convicted of stalking Steven Spielberg was sentenced to 25 years to life in prison Wednesday after the director told the judge he fears what would have happened if the defendant had confronted him.

Superior Court Judge Steven Suzukawa agreed, saying defendant Jonathan Norman was “obsessive and frightening, and I think he does present a danger to society.”

Spielberg addressed the court before the sentence was imposed on Norman, who was found guilty of a bizarre plot to invade Spielberg’s mansion, hold the director and his family hostage and rape him. [End quoting]

I only use this here to show you the severity of sentence to what many murderers and worse criminals get—when this man never committed the acts, but just threatened to do them. What might the outcome have been if the intended victim were not part of the elite?

CHARACTER

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

From THE AMERICAN’S BULLETIN, by Andrew Jackson, 1998: [quoting]

Hello again, after a brief hiatus. That column last month was a humorous e-mail message that I passed along to The American’s Bulletin editor. Was it okay for you? It was not intended as a column, but what the hey!

As we have mentioned, this column is intended to be introductory to those who contemplate the patriotic way of life. I want to make the point this month that such a decision is going to demand a whole bunch of that stuff I call character.

Let’s define character as that quality which makes us do the right thing at all times. That means that we do right even when it appears that it will work against us, make us uncomfortable, make us appear unsociable, or alienate us from the politically correct.

The most authoritative and solid list of rules which defines the “right thing” has to be the Ten Commandments, but I have shortened these a bit for your consideration:

- 1) Listen to God and keep Him first.
- 2) Tell the truth and keep your promises.
- 3) Don’t hurt others.
- 4) Give value for what you earn.
- 5) Keep your marriage commitments.
- 6) Think for yourself: stay healthy, sober, and alert.

It is of course not easy to measure up, and all of us will stumble on these rules from time to time. But these are the standards needed to be a patriot.

You need little integrity to go along with the crowd. If that’s your thing, be a bureaucrat. Be a working slob, putting in your time and watching basketball. Do not think carefully about what you are doing, who you are injuring, and whether you do the right stuff.

Here are a couple examples where we can readily apply the principles of character toward the duties of a patriot:

1) Jury duty. Juries were meant to protect people from oppressive government. There is substantial pressure on a juror to go along blindly with what the judge dictates. If these things are moral and past the point of doubt, fine. But when the government wants to railroad some hapless dude for actions or thought which you know are not criminal, it becomes a test of your character to prevent this if you can. Those of you who have been there can relate.

2) Tax “laws”. Our God and our founding fathers assembled principles for us defining legitimate government. Government is not supposed to trash stable families, life opportunities, and pride by stealing a huge chunk of the productive activities of people. That’s simple common sense, isn’t it? But what kind of character is needed to take definitive steps to correct this travesty?

3) Right to work. Do you realize that damn near every human activity from giving a massage to mowing a lawn has been made illegal? You have to jump through hoops and convince some bureaucrat that he should give you permission (license) to do these things! Frankly, I’m surprised we don’t need a license to walk down the street. How are you going to care for yourself and your family unless you can provide some sort of useful service for others? What kind of character is needed to battle the enemy on this level?

Only a few of us will make the commitment to be a meaningful patriot. At the same time, many, many idiots will work full time in government “service” finding ways to interfere with the free enjoyment of life; pulling productive others into the mud, and producing nothing but grief in the process. No, life ain’t fair.

Most institutions of government and many businesses fall far short of meeting the slightest test of character. So run down the list of rules above and see how they stack up. It’s easy! It’s fun! It’s not fattening!

That ought to give us something to consider for awhile! See you next time, dear friend! [End quoting]

We all ought to take a long hard look at how we think and act on a daily basis. We all will soon pay the consequences of our actions—if we haven’t already.

PAGER PANIC: STUDY SHOWS BLACKOUT’S IMPACT

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 6/16/98: [quoting]

In the first-ever study of the pager and its impact on people’s lives, researchers at the University of Southern California’s Annenberg School for Communication surveyed public reactions to the pager blackout of May 19.

At least one-third of Los Angeles households use one pager or more, and many one- and two-pager households have organized their work and everyday lives around the electronic device, the study findings show.

The USC study, based on a random telephone survey of 751 households in the five-county Greater Los Angeles area, took advantage of the Galaxy IV satellite's recent malfunction to conduct a "natural" experiment. The satellite glitch left most pagers useless for more than a day, giving researchers an opportunity to see what missing the pager would mean to the American public.

"The blackout uncovered how very central a role pagers play in people's lives," said project director William Dutton, a professor of communication at the Annenberg School for Communication. "They are not just a new gadget or fashion. Many people have expanded the geography of their workplace and household with this device." [End quoting]

Could this "failure" of a satellite have been a test-run on finding out how much control the elite will have to use over these devices when they rein us in.

ALBRIGHT RAPS TREASURY CHIEF

From The Bakersfield Californian, 6/13/98: [quoting]

In rare public display of high-level disagreement, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright has chastised Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin for failing to inform her about a money-laundering sting operation in Mexico.

"I would appreciate being kept personally informed of developing investigations in Mexico and other foreign countries that could have a significant foreign policy fallout," Albright said in a letter to Rubin, dated May 22.

"I do not wish to interfere with your law enforcement work, but I do believe we need to do a better job of coordination," she wrote.

The letter was inserted in the Congressional Record by Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa. It was not disclosed how Grassley obtained the letter.

Albright wrote the letter following an uproar in Mexico touched off by the disclosure that U.S. Customs agents working under Rubin's jurisdiction had carried out part of the sting operation without Mexican authorization. Mexican bankers were arrested after being lured into the United States under false pretenses. [End quoting]

We're really beginning to see the "kings" starting to fight each other over their perceived control of their various domains.

PAINKILLER SOON MAY TOP VIAGRA AS KING OF SALES

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 6/17/98: [quoting]

Drug makers, eyeing Viagra's runaway success with envy, expect the drive for arthritis relief will yield the next wonder drug.

Some industry experts believe Celebra, a painkiller that cuts inflammation but avoids the stomach-damaging effects of aspirin, ibuprofen and acetaminophen, could outsell the impotency drug by millions of dollars a year.

Drug makers' ceaseless efforts to stock America's medicine chest have long plowed research money into trying to ease such ills as cancer, obesity and chronic pain. But the road to a cancer cure is littered with promising treatments that fizzled. And last year's recall of two diet pills left many dieters wary of weight-loss drugs.

Now comes a new class of super painkillers with a singular advantage: They could be on pharmacy shelves within months. And industry watchers believe millions of Americans will gladly toss their bottles of common painkillers for an alternative that saves their stomachs. [End quoting]

The medications the elite have been holding back will probably start pouring forth as each "king" tries to out-grab a bite of the multibillion dollar money pie. Can't you see the sharks as they go into their feeding frenzy which Viagra set off? Temporarily they'll forget that they might help relieve some suffering by us so that they can join the frenzy.

But be very careful—this makes it an excellent time to slip in the engineered pills that will kill you—also!

SUBWAY SENTINEL

From ANGELS ON EARTH, NOV/DEC 1997, Guideposts, 39 Seminary Hill Rd., Carmel, NY 10512: [quoting]

New York City can be exciting and scary all at once. In 1970 I was a freshman at a design school, getting to know the Big Apple. After commuting from my parents' home in Irvington, N.J., for a while, I'd found a tiny apartment in Greenwich Village.

One Sunday evening in January I was waiting for the subway at West Forty-second Street. The station was deserted, and it made me uneasy. I was used to seeing the platform bustling with people. It's the weather, I thought, hugging myself against the freezing cold. Where's that train?

I glanced at the stairs, hoping another passenger would appear. Most of the time I wasn't afraid in the city. "There's no problem here," I would tell myself if I felt nervous in a crowd, or walking alone on a dark street. "God is always with me." It usually worked. But not that night. That night was creepy.

Finally, I heard the rumbling and roaring of an arriving train. The loud noise sounded like music to me. The train doors slid open, and I stepped aboard with a sense of relief. But the subway car was empty too, and I felt anxious all over again. I chose a seat near the door. Only three stops to Greenwich Village.

A man entered my car at the next station. He stood looking around for a moment, and then as the doors closed took the spot right next to me. God is forever by my side, I tried to tell myself.

The man sat calmly, staring straight ahead as the train began to move. He wore a knit hat pulled down over long, shaggy hair, and a scarf draped his shoulders. He wasn't a large man, but I was much smaller, and no match for him if he wanted to harm me. "You don't know this," he said quietly, "but I'm your guardian angel." What should I do? I thought frantically. I'm trapped on the subway with a crazy man.

Wham! The door between the cars slammed open. A gang of teenage boys stormed in, maybe nine of them, walking single file, shouting and cursing. They punched each other in some macho display, and kicked the seats as they swaggered down the aisle.

Trembling, I stared at my lap, clutching my purse. These guys were looking for trouble. The man sat silently beside me. When the gang passed in front of us, one of them said, "Aw, there's nobody in here!" They left the train at the next stop, and the man patted my hand. I wasn't sure what to say when we both got off at the station in Greenwich Village. My guardian immediately blended into the crowd on the platform. But the One who sent him would forever be by my side. —Evelyn Fehlber, Montrose, Pennsylvania [End quoting]

Hopefully we can learn from these types of episodes to live a life of faith in a Higher Source and ask for Their help to guide and protect us at all times.

CHAPTER 5

LATEST ANTICS STAGGER IMAGINATION GREEN LEGAL UPDATE

6/22/98 CONTACT STAFF

Just When You Thought You'd Heard It All!

Way back in April 1993, you may recall, George Green filed a lawsuit in the First Judicial District Court of the state of Nevada, in Carson City (Case 93-00322A, Dept. 1). This suit was against not only the Phoenix Institute for Research & Education, Ltd., E.J. Ekker and Doris Ekker, but was also against “space travelers from the constellation Pleiades, Gyeorgos Ceres Hatonn, Esu Immanuel Sananda (Jesus Christ), Germain, The PHOENIX LIBERATOR, etc.” You may recall the CONTACT headline: “George Green Sues Jesus Christ”. You may also recall that in the distorted AP news representation of this case, Doris Ekker was accused, somehow, of claiming to be Jesus Christ. Nothing, of course, could be FARTHER from the truth. It is remarkable how distorted things have become in the Nevada arena, but considering the forces at play, perhaps it really isn't.

In a recent legal maneuver that rivals that one, on May 26, 1998, George Green's attorney David Horton filed in the 9th Judicial District for the state of Nevada, in Douglas County (Case No. 98-CV-0130, Dept. II), a complaint against Defendants: [Quoting] Four Packages of Gold Coins (yes, the same gold coins that David Overton gifted to the Phoenix Institute), Paul Gilbert, Special Administrator of the estate of David Overton, the Phoenix Institute for Research & Education, Ltd. (a Nevada corporation), Doris Ekker, E.J. Ekker, Eleanor Schroepfer, Eleanor Schroepfer Family Trust, Teha, Inc. (a Nevada corporation), Leon Fort, individually and for Infinite Balance Corporation, and Does I-X, and Black and White Corporations I-X. [End quoting.] Jury trial was demanded.

Now, you may well ask the following questions: I thought Leon Fort was working WITH George Green? I thought the Supreme Court of Nevada has ruled two times now that George Green has no claim on the gold coins? Why is George suing Eleanor Schroepfer (elderly wife of now deceased John Schroepfer)? These and many other questions may be asked but little answers are forthcoming. In this nonsensical move as a last ditch effort to somehow delay the gold's return to its rightful owner, i.e., the Phoenix Institute, these despicable legal tactics have been employed by Green's legal team who have not heard, apparently, of the Code of Professional Conduct for attorneys. This is almost as brazen a move as petitioning the court for George Green to be the administrator for the very gold he STOLE from the Phoenix Institute and crossed state line. If you think all of this sounds too insane to be real, you're right. But the facts are, this is happening and it is happening in the Nevada courts RIGHT NOW. As if the Nevada courts haven't been made enough of a laughing stock by the likes of George Abbott and David Horton's previous manipulations of the system, this new move has taken the Nevada courts into the realm of theater of the absurd.

FALLEN ANGELS & SERPENT PEOPLE THE ADVERSARY BY ANY OTHER NAME

SUMERIA AND BEYOND PART III: UNTANGLING THE GORDIAN KNOT

by Rick Martin 6/23/98

The natural World Order, which is based upon the irrevocable laws of the universe, has been temporarily replaced on Earth by the unnatural World Order of the parasite. All of the programs and energies of the parasite are devoted to a single goal, maintaining his feeding position upon the host. Freudian psychology was developed by the parasitic order to neutralize the incessant efforts of the host to throw off or dislodge the parasite. Any move to dislodge the parasite is denounced as “reactionary”. It is defined and outlawed as an act of aggression, hostility, and alienation. In fact, the host is merely trying to survive by throwing off the parasite. Another law of Nature is that the parasite, not only by sucking off the life sustenance of the host, but also, by altering its life cycle, will inevitably kill the host. This process is called “the decline and fall of civilization”.

—Eustace Mullins, The World Order: A Study In The Hegemony Of Parasitism

It is not the purpose of this series to outline all of the events in any given historical cycle, but rather to identify those elements within a given segment who align themselves with the serpent mentality, or the adversarial side of the equation. Therefore, it will be necessary for the serious researcher to fill in the gaps through independent research. This series merely seeks to specifically identify factions that may have gone previously unnoticed or that, perhaps, weren't seen in this particular light.

At a certain point it even becomes difficult to separate Sumeria from Egypt, as there are so many overlapping “gods”, symbols, and beliefs. There will be, throughout this segment, a blending of the two regions. Nevertheless, let us begin our examination with Sumer, noted in the dictionary as: “an ancient country of S. Mesopotamia in present day S. Iraq.”

ENTWINED SERPENTS

No research into Sumeria would be complete without reference to Zecharia Sitchin, who writes, in Genesis Revisited: [Quoting]

In the biblical tale of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, the antagonist of the Lord God who had caused them to acquire “knowing” (the ability to procreate) was the Serpent, Nahash in Hebrew.

The term has two other meanings: “he who knows secrets” and “he who knows copper”. These other meanings or word plays are found in the Sumerian epithet BUZUR for Enki, which meant “he who solves secrets” and “he of the metal mines”. I have therefore suggested in previous writings that, in the original Sumerian version, the “Serpent” was Enki. His emblem was entwined serpents; it was the symbol of his “cult center” Erie (a), of his African domains in general (b), and of the pyramids in particular (c), and it appeared on Sumerian illustrations on cylinder seals of the events described in the Bible.

What did the emblem of entwined serpents—the symbol of medicine and healing to this very day—represent? The discovery of modern science of the double-helix structure of DNA offers the answer: the Entwined Serpents emulated the structure of the genetic code, the secret knowledge of which enabled Enki to create The Adam and then grant Adam and Eve the ability to procreate. [End quoting]

[Still quoting from Genesis Revised:] [Quoting]

It was the realization that a planet the Sumerian texts called NIBIRU (“Planet of the Crossing”) was neither Mars nor Jupiter, as some scholars have debated, but another planet that passes between them every 3,600 years that gave rise to my first book’s title, The 12th Planet—the planet which is the “twelfth member” of the Solar System (although technically it is, as a planet, only the tenth).

It was from that planet, the Sumerian texts repeatedly and persistently stated, that the ANUNNAKI came to Earth. The term literally means “Those Who from Heaven to Earth Came”. They are spoken of in the Bible as the Anakim, and in Chapter 6 of Genesis are also called Nefilim, which in Hebrew means the same thing: Those Who Have Come Down, from the Heavens to Earth.

And it was from the Anunnaki, the Sumerians explained—as though they had anticipated our questions—that they had learnt all they knew. The advanced knowledge we find in Sumerian texts is thus, in effect, knowledge that was possessed by the Anunnaki who had come from Nibiru; and theirs must have been a very advanced civilization, because as I have surmised from the Sumerian texts, the Anunnaki came to Earth about 445,000 years ago. [End quoting]

Turning to Calvin Burgin’s The Worldline Heptameron, we read: [Quoting]

The Encyclopedia Britannica says that Anu was a Babylonian deity that was regarded as the father and king of the gods.

Zecharia Sitchin can read the ancient clay tablets and has written a popular series of books on what he believes the tablets to say. In The 12th Planet (Avon Books), he says, “The head of this family of Gods of Heaven and Earth was AN (or Anu in the Babylonian/Assyrian texts). His wife was ANTU and great-granddaughter was IN.ANNA.” Sitchin tells of the story of Anu being castrated by Kumarbi.

Anu’s eldest son was EN.LIL. Enlil erected Nippur (also known as Kharsag) as his city. Enlil selected the kings who were to rule over Mankind and Sitchin quoted a writing of Hammurabi which says: “Anu and Enlil named me to promote the welfare of the people...to cause justice to prevail in the land.

“When I approached the land, there was much flooding.” Both Enki and Enlil claimed to be the first born. Ea or Enki was known as a “mighty hunter, a fighting god renowned for his martial abilities”. The English-Sumerian Dictionary by Adapa says that Enki was a Serpent God. [End quoting]

In The First Great Civilizations: Life In Mesopotamia, the Indus Valley, and Egypt, written by Jacquetta Hawkes, we read: [Quoting]

It was the God Enki, the Sumerians knew, who had taught men the arts of writing and geometry, how to build cities and temples. He had also filled the Tigris and Euphrates with sparkling water and stocked them with fish. Moreover:

*The plough and the yoke he directed
The great prince Enki
Opened the holy furrows.
Made grain grow in the perennial field.*

[End quoting]

Let’s return to Sitchin, this time from The Lost Realms: [Quoting]

Frustrated in his effort to assume supremacy in civilized Sumer, Marduk/Ra seized upon the granting of civilization to the Egyptians to return to that land and reclaim its lordship from his brother Thoth. Now Thoth found himself a god without a people; and it is our suggestion that accompanied by some of his faithful followers he chose an abode in the New Realms—in Mesoamerica.

And we further suggest that it happened not just “circa 3100 B.C.” but exactly in 3113 B.C.—the time, the year, and even the day from which the Mesoamericans began their Long Count.

Counting the passage of time by anchoring the calendar to a major event is not unusual at all. The Western Christian calendar counts the years from the birth of Christ. The Moslem calendar begins with the Hegira, the migration of Mohammed from Mecca to Medina. Skipping over the many examples from various preceding lands and monarchies, we shall mention the Jewish Calendar, which is in effect the ancient (and first-ever) Calendar of Nippur, the Sumerian city dedicated to Enlil. Contrary to the common assumption that the Jewish count of years (5,748 in 1988) is from the “beginning of the world”, it is actually from the beginning of the Nippurian calendar in 3760 B.C.—the time, we assume, of Anu’s state visit to Earth.

Why not then accept our suggestion that the arrival of Quetzalcoatl, i.e., the Winged Serpent, in his new realm was the occasion for starting the Long Count of the Mesoamerican calendar—especially since it was this very god who had introduced the calendar to these lands? [End quoting]

The name USHUMGAL is recurring in Sumerian literature, which means, literally, “great fiery, flying serpent.”

We read in the Myth of Enlil and Ninlil, as laid forth in the scholarly work The Intellectual Adventure Of Ancient Man, written by Henri Frankfort, H.A. Frankfort, John A. Wilson, Thorkild Jacobsen, and William A. Irwin: [Quoting]

In compliance with the penalty which has been imposed upon him (for the rape of Ninlil), Enlil then leaves Nippur and makes his way out of the land of the living toward the sinister realm of Hades. [End quoting]

One Sumerian text reads like this: [Quoting, again from The Intellectual Adventure Of Ancient Man]

*Who came to life yesterday, died today.
In but a moment man is cast into gloom, suddenly crushed.
One moment he will sing for joy, and in an instant he will wail—a mourner.
Between morning and nightfall men’s mood may change:
when they are hungry they become like corpses,
when they are full they will rival their god, when things go well they will prate of rising up to
and when in trouble, rant about descending into Hades.*

[End quoting]

Returning to Sitchin, this time from The Wars Of Gods And Men, we read: [Quoting]

Anu himself then intervened. The god hiding inside, he warned her, possessed awesome weapons; “their outburst is terrible; they will prevent you from entering.” Instead Anu advised her to seek justice by putting the hiding god on trial.

The texts amply identify this god. As in the Ninurta texts, he is called A.ZAG and nicknamed The Great Serpent—a name and a derogatory Enlilite epithet for Marduk. His hiding place is also clearly identified as “The E.KUR, whose walls awesomely reach the skies”—the Great Pyramid. [End quoting]

ENOCH

Let’s shift gears for a moment and take a brief look at The Book Of ENOCH: The Prophet, as there may be some later reference to a portion of this information. [Quoting from the Appendix:]

The history of the evolution of the Satanic myth (clue) would not be complete if we omitted to notice the character of the mysterious and Cosmopolitan Enoch, variously called Enos, Hanoch, and finally Enoichion by the Greeks. It is from his Book that the first notions of the Fallen Angels were taken by the early Christian writers.

The Book of Enoch is declared apocryphal. But what is an Apocrypha? The very etymology of the term shows that it is simply a secret book, i.e., one that belonged to the catalogue of temple libraries under the guardianship of the Hierophants and initiated priests, and was never meant for the profane. Apocrypha comes from the verb crypto, “to hide”. For ages the Enoichion (The Book of the Seer) was preserved in the “city of letters” and secret works—the ancient Kirjath-Sepher, later on, Debir.

Some of the writers interested in the subject—especially Masons—have tried to identify Enoch with Thoth of Memphis, the Greek Hermes, and even with the Latin Mercury. As individuals, all these are distinct one from the other; professionally—if one may use this word, now so limited in its sense—they belong one and all to the same category of sacred writers, of Initiators and Recorders of Occult and ancient Wisdom. Those who in the Kuran are generically termed the Edris, or the “Learned” (the Initiated), bore in Egypt the name of “Thoth”, the inventor of arts, sciences, writing or letters, of music and astronomy. Among the Jews the Edris became “Enoch”, who, according to Bar-Hebraeus, “was the first inventor of writing”, books, arts, and sciences, the first who reduced to a system the progress of the planets. In Greece he was called Orpheus, and thus changed his name with every nation. The number Seven being attached to, and connected with, each of those primitive Initiators, as well as the number 365, of the days in the year, astronomically, it identifies the mission, character, and the sacred office of all those men, but certainly not their personalities. Enoch is the seventh Patriarch; Orpheus is the possessor of the phormix, the 7-stringed lyre, which is the seven-fold mystery of initiation. Thoth, with the seven-rayed Solar Discus on his head, travels in the Solar boat, the 365 degrees, jumping out every fourth (leap) year for one day. Finally, Thoth-Lunus is the septenary god of the seven days, or the week. Esoterically and spiritually, Enoichion means the “Seer of the Open Eye”.

The story about Enoch, told by Josephus, namely, that he had concealed under the pillars of Mercury or Seth his precious rolls or books, is the same as that told of Hermes, “the father of Wisdom”, who concealed his books of Wisdom under a pillar, and then, finding the two pillars of stone, found the science written thereon. Yet Josephus notwithstanding his constant efforts in the direction of Israel’s unmerited glorification, and though he does attribute that science (of Wisdom) to the Jewish Enoch—writes history. He shows those pillars as still existing during his own time. He tells us that they were built by Seth; and so they may have been, only neither by the Patriarch of that name, the fabled son of Adam, nor by the Egyptian god of Wisdom—Teth, Set, Thoth, Tat, Sat (the later Sat-an), or Hermes, who are all one—but by the “sons of the Serpent-god”, or “Sons of the Dragon”, the name under which the Hierophants of Egypt and Babylon were known before the Deluge, as were their forefathers, the Atlanteans.

[Still quoting, later on:]

Some say Enoch was a great Saint, beloved by God, and taken alive to heaven (i.e., one who reached Mukti or Nirvana, on Earth, as Buddha did and others still do); and others maintain that he was a sorcerer, a wicked magician. This shows only that Enoch, or its equivalent, was a term, even during the days of the later Talmudists, which meant “Seer”, “Adept in the Secret Wisdom”, etc., without any specification as to the character of the title-bearer. [End quoting]

EGYPT

Turning to The Lonely Planet series of travel books, this one on Egypt, we read a very clear statement about trying to understand the Egyptian mythology. [Quoting:]

Ancient Egypt produced a wealth of gods and goddesses, animal deities and magical practices that has both captured modern imagination and defied attempts to create for it neat and tidy categories. Ancient Egyptian deities could be local or universal or both; they could assume the characteristics of one another; they could be at once destructive and beneficial, evil and good. The ancients themselves seemed to have accepted such contradictions with equanimity. In their world, the Sun brought light and life to the world, but its rays could also scorch and kill.

The deities, on whom the preservation of cosmic order depended, required constant attention, which meant for mortals strict adherence to rite and ritual. Detailed descriptions of how particular rituals were to be carried out are today the major source of information we have on religion in Pharaonic times, the thinking behind them having been largely lost. Nevertheless, the impression gained is of a people to whom order was everything; as they saw it, their world rose out of chaos and was daily in danger of returning to it. Their intermediary between the cosmic and the mortal worlds was the Pharaoh (regarded as a god himself—the living Horus) and in theory (if not in practice) he was responsible for ensuring the necessary rituals were performed. His reward for successfully fulfilling this role was wealth and power in this world; and a safe passage to the next.

Describing the gods, goddesses and belief systems of Ancient Egypt is a tricky business. First is the sheer amount of time to consider—its history spanned some 3,000 years. It's little wonder that, looking back from our vantage point today, what we tend to see is a chaos of conflicting ideas. [End quoting]

With all of the above stated, I will kindly spare the reader a rendition of Egyptian mythology. It is important, though, to list a FEW key characters by name, followed by a brief description. These figures will be popping up from time to time, and it is best to have some idea as to what they represent. Portions of the descriptions listed below are derived from two sources, the first being The Lonely Planet series, the second, The Traveler's Key To Ancient Egypt: A Guide To The Sacred Places Of Ancient Egypt. Taken in alphabetical order, we have:

Horus: Sky god and Lower Egyptian counterpart of Seth. Horus came to be acknowledged as the son of Osiris and Isis. He sometimes appears as a hawk, but more often as a man with a hawk's head. Horus' antagonist Seth (god of chaotic forces and indeed Horus' own brother), during one of their legendary conflicts, cut out Horus' eye.

Restored with royal saliva, the eyes came to symbolize perfection (the udjat eye). The udjat, represented as a human eye with hawk-like markings, was considered potent protection against evil. As one of the earliest state gods, Horus was closely connected with the king. In fact, the king was regarded as the living Horus (a notion that makes sense in the context of the story of Osiris) and from the earliest times he took a Horus name or ka name (one of five names) that declared his divine status.

Isis: Isis, sister/wife of Osiris, mother goddess and (as mother of Horus) symbolic mother of the king, possessed great magical powers.

Isis is depicted as a woman wearing either a throne on her head or a Sun disc flanked with cow's horns. Sometimes she appears (along with her sister Nephthys) as a kite, mourning the dead.

She used her magical powers to restore Osiris to life and to protect the young Horus. Those seeking protection or healing for children therefore appealed to her for assistance.

nut

Nut: Sky goddess and both sister and wife of the earth-god Geb. Mother of Osiris, Isis, Seth and Nephthys.

She usually appears as a woman, but sometimes as a cow, and is often depicted stretched across the ceilings of tombs, swallowing the Sun and creating the night.

Osiris: God of the underworld and of fertility. He generally appears in mummy wrappings holding the crook and flail (representing kingship) and wearing a conical headdress that includes a pair of ram's horns and a tall plume.

He is the brother of Isis and father of Horus. The Greeks equated Osiris with Pluto and with Dionysos.

Ptah: Anthropomorphic creator god of Memphis. Ptah was the Cosmic Architect, the giver of form, the cosmic shaping force. He is patron of crafts, trades and the arts. Though Ptah is the Cosmic Architect, he is not free to do as he pleases. His job is to give form to the words of Re as spoken by Thoth.

Ptah appears wearing a tight cap on his shaven head and he carries a scepter on which are the emblems of power, life and stability. Ptah is sometimes linked with the solar-god Sokar. The Greeks identified Ptah with Hephaestus, the divine smith.

Ra: Sun god and creator god of Heliopolis. Ra takes many forms (for example, as Khepri, Aten), and other deities also merge with him, enhancing their own powers (for example, Amun-Ra). He is generally shown as a man with a falcon's head upon which rests a Sun disc. The ancient Egyptians believed that Ra traversed the sky in a solar boat, rising from the underworld in the east and re-entering it in the land of the dead in the west.

Set: The initial act of creation presupposes a sundering of the original and primordial unity. This rupture creates multiplicity—the world. Multiplicity is, by its very nature, opposed to the original unity.

Set is the personification of that opposition. Opposition takes place on every level, from the most abstract and metaphysical to the personal and mundane. Peace, harmony and order, in whatever realm, are all aspects of or movements towards that original unity—the return to the source, goal of all initiatic teachings.

All that opposes or obstructs that movement takes place in Set's domain or under his aegis. Thus Set and his innumerable cohorts represent the forces of darkness, chaos, barbarism, and war.

As lord of the wilderness and arid wastes, desert animals fall under the domain of Set, as do the black pig, the ass, the crocodile, and the hippopotamus, each of which symbolizes different aspects of the carnal or material world. The Set animal also sports a forked tail. The Greeks identified Set with their Typhon (the Snake God), but Set's spiritual, as distinct from his cosmic, role is nearly identical with the Christian Satan, a name derived from the Hebrew word for adversary.

His birth was indeed violent (he wrenched himself apart from Nut, his mother) and one of ancient Egypt's most enduring legends relates his ferocious fights with his brother, Osiris, who he eventually murders. God of chaotic forces (and associated with wind, rain, storms and thunder).

Thoth: God of writing and counting, and patron of scribes. Thoth was worshipped in the form of a baboon or an ibis. It is thought this is due to the ibis's reputation for devouring serpents and/or because of its aquatic (lunar) habits and nature.

As divine scribe, Thoth is frequently encountered in judgment scenes recording the verdict returned by the balance, or in temple friezes recording the deeds of the kings into eternity.

THE EYE OF RA

For those of you who have always been curious about the cobra depicted on the head of Pharaohs, perhaps this little story will offer at least one explanation. In A History Of Ancient Egypt, written by Nicolas Grimal, we read: [Quoting]

The result of this was a complex tangle of myths which dictate the actions of gods reigning over the world and effectively subject them to the whims of humans. With one exception, there is little discussion in all this of the actual creation of mankind, which seems to have been thought of as having taken place at the same time as the creation of the world. In this exception, the legend of 'the eye of Ra', the Sun loses his eye; he sends his children Shu and Tefnet to seek out the fugitive, but time passes and they do not return. He then decides to replace the missing eye with a substitute. When the lost eye reappears and finds that it has been replaced it begins to weep with rage, and its tears (remut) give birth to people (remet). Ra then transforms the eye into a cobra and places it on his forehead—this is the uraeus, which is given the task of striking down the god's enemies. The anecdotal nature of this story of the creation of mankind is exceptional and its origins may well lie in the punning of the Egyptian words for 'tears' and 'people', which seems to have proved too tempting for the theologians to ignore.

The cosmological theme of the 'damaged' or 'replaced' eye went through several stages of development: it provided an explanation for the creation of the Moon, the second eye of Ra that was entrusted to Thoth (the ibis-headed god of the scribes), and for the 'healthy' eye of Horus. It was Horus who lost his eye in the battle against Seth for control of the kingdom of Egypt; Thoth returned it to him and simultaneously transformed it into an archetypal symbol of physical well-being. This is why the eye of Horus was usually depicted on coffins, since it guaranteed that the dead person would have full use of his body. [End quoting]

PTAH

In Zecharia Sitchin's The Wars Of Gods And Men, we read: [Quoting]

Ptah and the other gods were called, in Egyptian, Ntr—"Guardian, Watcher". They had come to Egypt, the Egyptians wrote, from Ta-Ur, the "Far/Foreign Land", whose name Ur meant "olden" but could have also been the actual place name—a place well known from Mesopotamian and biblical records: the ancient city of Ur in southern Mesopotamia. And the straits of the Red Sea, which connected Mesopotamia and Egypt, were called Ta-Neter, the “Place of the Gods”, the passage by which they had come to Egypt. That the earliest gods did come from the biblical lands of Shem is additionally borne out by the puzzling fact that the names of these olden gods were of “Semitic” (Akkadian) derivation. Thus Ptah, which had no meaning in Egyptian, meant “he who fashioned things by carving and opening up” in the Semitic tongues.

In time—after 9,000 years, according to Manetho—Ra, a son of Ptah, became the ruler over Egypt. His name, too, had no meaning in Egyptian, but because Ra was associated with a bright celestial body, scholars assume that Ra meant “bright”. We do not know with greater certainty that one of his nicknames, Tem, had the Semitic connotation “the Complete, the Pure One”. [End quoting]

ORION & HYADES

What, apparently, has fairly recently come to PUBLIC knowledge, is the fact that the entire Giza Plateau is aligned directly toward the (star) constellation of Orion and, nearby, Hyades (Hades). There can be no more direct and obvious correlation with EVIL than this simple fact. This, combined with the fact that Osiris and Isis will figure prominently in the New World Religion which will be dumped on us in the months ahead is cause for serious concern from thinking, “Lighted” people. Let’s take a closer look.

orion

There is a website: orionheart. One of the main articles posted is written by Daniel Winter and is titled, “Does the Golden Spiral Layout of the Pyramids Point to A Black Hole Near Orion, and Why?” Another article is posted, called “Star Birth in the Body of Orion”. As these documents are probably copyrighted, I will merely mention them.

There is another book on the open market titled The Orion Mystery: A Revolutionary New Interpretation of the Ancient Enigma—Unlocking the Secrets of the Pyramids, written by Robert Bauval and Adrian Gilbert. In this book we find the following reference: [Quoting]

Seth...originally connected with the Hyades, the V-shaped, head-like part of our constellation, TAURUS. As the brother of Osiris, his position in the sky was adjacent to ORION...an important court decision gave the office of Osiris to Horus, and Set was banished to a position bearing the ‘southern’ constellation of ORION...—Jane B. Sellers, The Death of Gods In Ancient Egypt.

[Still quoting, later on...]

The pattern of the stellar Duat was defined by the cluster of stars, from the Hyades to Canis Major with Orion in between, all found on the ‘west bank’ of the Milky Way. On land, in the Memphis-Duat, this corresponded to the pyramid fields from Dashour to Abu Ruwash, with Giza somewhere in the middle, all found on the west bank of the Nile. With the three Giza pyramids sited in the center of the sky-Duat, the implication by the layout principle of the master plan. [sic] [End quoting]

vignette

If you access a website called: projectduat, you find a description titled “The Opening Of The Hor-emakhet Chambers, aka: The Hall of Records”. [Quoting:]

A most miraculous project is about to commence this year. A new paradigm is unfolding; a paradigm that has never been revealed during our modern times yet brims over with prolific hermetic familiarity. A sacred blend of sound, geometry, light and love will be attempted to be broadcasted throughout the planet. A sort of ‘cosmic planetary radio’ to be turned on—with our skies as the speakers, the atmosphere as the power source, our ancient temples and geometric earthgrid system as the circuits and wiring. [End quoting] Sound like Project Blue Beam?

Now I’d like to turn to the expert research of Calvin Burgin and his work from the Nov. 30, 1996 edition of his WORLDLINE newsletter (c/o: Calvin Burgin, 404 Gate Tree Lane, Austin, TX 78745). [Quoting:]

nasa logo

“Art, please ask Richard at some point about the mind-blowing NASA Apollo logo on his web site. The Apollo logo Richard Hoagland has unearthed is a block buster. It has precisely the same look, feel, simple elegance and straight forward symbolism of other NASA logos of that era. It is either authentic or a brilliant, masterful fake. NASA logo designs are anything but cryptic, and are intended to be easily decoded and appreciated even by the dumbest member of the taxpaying public.

“Art, having followed the issues and enigmas concerning Cydonia, Giza, and the Moon on your show, viewing this logo on the web blew my socks off. Its simple message of the fundamental connectivity between Earth, the Moon and Orion is undeniable, as is the implication very clear on the Apollo logo that travelling to the Moon is somehow profoundly relevant to our understanding of Orion. To find such symbolism on a NASA logo is about as unexpected as finding a pentagram prominently displayed in a Catholic church. At last, a smoking gun. How will NASA possibly explain away this one?"

Hoagland stated that "what everyone needs to know is that Apollo IS Osiris, IS Orion. They are one and the same." He then explains that Greek names were used because of prejudice, and to deceive. Why use Greek names with Egyptian symbology, he asked? Why is the real root symbology hidden? He said they knew all along, and dared not tell us.

Homer Newell (sp?) was first associate administrator for space science and applications under James Webb (who was appointed by JFK to be head of NASA). He showed Hoagland the first official Apollo Patch in 1967, just before the fire that killed Apollo astronauts Grissom, Chaffee and White. It depicts the belt of Orion as the crossbar of the A, connecting Earth to the Moon.

Hoagland says the A does not stand for Apollo, he says the A stands for the Egyptian god Asar! He says that Apollo was the Greek name for, in this case, a clearly (once you know the details) Egyptian god. In its various spellings, this would be the same Asher or Ashur as covered in more detail in The Hoax of Judeo-Christianity.

In the Hoax document I show evidence that the "god" who gave Moses the Ten Commandments, and who spoke to Moses on Mt. Sinai, was Asher. That is what the Hebrew manuscripts state. Other evidence shows that the "fallen angel" in the Garden of Eden story was also Asher. I refer you to The Hoax Of Judeo-Christianity for more detail on that subject.

ASHER— GOOD GUY OR BAD?

Was Asher then a "good guy" or a "bad guy"? The answer depends on your viewpoint and perception and on which documents you accept. There is evidence to support both viewpoints, and the stories have obviously been tampered with over the years. Asher (Babylonian spelling) or Asar (Egyptian spelling) can mean absence of light, dark. It can also apparently mean light, as sar or sur mean light or the Sun. Whatever the truth of this situation, I suspect we are about to learn much more about this whole situation!

Hoagland has books and tapes with much more information for anyone who wants more information, that show a connection between the "face on Mars" and the Sphinx/Pyramids in Egypt. I refer you to him for considerable documentation on this. The Giza complex at Cairo, Egypt, matches the Cydonia complex on Mars. It is also laid out to match the Constellation and belt of Orion. Cairo, in fact, is Egyptian for Mars.

Hoagland is also involved with trying to learn what is behind the door that has been recently discovered under the Sphinx in Egypt. On second thought, I should say the door is in the Great Pyramid, and there is another passage under the Sphinx. Now some are reporting more passageways have been found, while others deny it. The stories seem to be purposely confusing.

One would think that scientists would simply open the door and take a look, but instead there is arguing and infighting and strange silliness going on in that situation. It seems someone is afraid of what might be there. Could there be something having to do with, for instance, Aton? Just wondering.

ATLANTIS

Psychic Edgar Cayce, who died in 1945, predicted that a “Hall of Records” would be found at Giza, and there was speculation that it would contain information from ancient Atlantis. There are many square miles of Egyptian hieroglyphics that tell that the monuments were built to preserve information from a previous civilization, often called Atlantis. A Space Shuttle is called Atlantis.

Hoagland says that the July 20 (8:17 pm GMT), 1969, Apollo Moon landing when Neil Armstrong took that giant leap for mankind, was actually chosen as to location and timing to honor Asar of Orion. He says that John F. Kennedy knew, nearly a decade earlier, in his famous we-are-going-to-the-Moon speech, exactly when and why the spot was to be chosen.

Hoagland says that the July 20 date is extremely important, as it connects to Osiris, and Orion. Egyptian cosmology is centered on Osiris. July 20, with Osiris and his twin sister Isis, which is Sirius, the brightest star in the sky, the most important star in the Egyptian calendar, is the one date that commemorates Osiris over the Pyramids at Giza, and for that reason was chosen as the only possible Moon Landing date.

Hoagland was dumfounded to discover that the Moon Landing programs were connected to Egypt. July 20 is an important Egyptian date! He says the A was coded as Apollo but was really the Egyptian Asar. The name of the lunar lander was Orion (the only lander that was not crashed back into the Moon). You will need to consult Hoagland’s information for all his proof. He found that when Neil Armstrong took manual control of the Eagle just before it landed, it was not for the reasons told to us, but was to insure that the Constellation Orion was precisely at the right spot on the horizon, when Isis (Sirius) and Osiris were precisely at 19.5 degrees. On every Apollo mission something stunning with regard to Osiris occurred, he says. According to Buzz Aldrin, after the landing, Neil and Buzz celebrated for 33 minutes on the Lunar temple site, with a chalice and wine, when Isis was precisely tetrahedral 19.5 degrees. The hieroglyph in the Egyptian language for Isis (Sirius) is an equilateral triangle, the two-dimensional representation of the tetrahedron. It means “a doorway” in Egyptian, specifically a doorway between dimensions.

AN EGYPTIAN PICKED OUR MOON LANDING SITES

Who picked the Apollo landing sites? It was Dr. Farouk El Baz, an Egyptian geologist, from Cairo. He and his father were also Egyptologists. He came to NASA by way of Germany in 1967, and was hired by Bell Communications under AT&T. There appear to me to be possible Paperclip connections (does anyone remember about the Nazis that went to Egypt after the war?), but I have not had a chance to try to check it out. He was placed in charge of determining the Apollo sites based on Orion meridian configurations. After the Apollo Moon landing projects ended, El Baz went to Boston and set up a department called the Remote Sensing group, a group using radar, sound-waves, remote viewing, etc. In 1987 he appears in Egypt in a project jointly sponsored with NASA, in charge of the Giza pyramid and Sphinx investigations!

In 1993, a German designed a robot that went up an 8-inch-wide tunnel shaft from the Queen’s Chamber of the Great Pyramid and found a door with two handles, one of which had eroded away. This shaft was aimed directly at the transit point of the star Sirius (the passage from the King's Chamber is aimed at Orion). A door would indicate there is something behind the door, probably another chamber. The Egyptian authorities stopped the investigation and have not allowed anyone near for over 4 years (we are told). The door has not been opened (we are told).

The Egyptian head of the Giza area said that the door would be opened in September, 1996, under the direction of Dr. El Baz, the man who chose the Apollo Moon Landing sites. I do not know what the current status of the opening is, as I am not on their mailing list. I do suspect, however, that this is serious (Sirius) business!

When Dr. Farouk El Baz was hired at Bellcom, he got into a fist fight with his boss, a Jew, who did not want him. A superior over Bellcom had to intervene and force Bellcom to accept El Baz. The superior was Ed Nixon, President Richard Nixon's brother! President Nixon is the one who later stopped the Apollo missions. Farouk El Baz's brother is currently on the senior staff of Hosni Mubarak, President of Egypt.

Recall from previous Fire From The Sky writings, the man accused of killing John F. Kennedy (who started the Apollo program), was Lee Harvey Oswald. Oswald worked on the U2 spy plane crew with Francis Gary Powers. Another of the U2 pilots was Roger Chaffee. Roger Chaffee was the U2 pilot who took the pictures of Cuba that started the Cuban missile crisis. I do not believe I have previously revealed this, but the man reading the pictures who first determined that Russia was installing missiles in Cuba was Bobby L. Coffey, currently working with the Texas Department of Transportation. He confirmed to me some of these connections.

It has come out that there is evidence that at the time the Apollo missions were started, there were eight or more astronauts killed, probably murdered, including the fire which killed Grissom, White, and Roger Chaffee. It does not take too much digging to find connections between the murder of John F. Kennedy, and the Nazis, Richard Nixon, George Bush, the Apollo Moon landings, the Pyramids in Egypt, and the "face on Mars"! [End quoting]

RETURN OF THE PHOENIX

In the first volume of the Pleiades Connection, titled Return Of The Phoenix, we read: [Quoting]

phoenix

It is not separation in the Universes as such, for Pleiadian ancestors, and YOURS, come from a common heritage, descended from the refugees, if you will, from the great Sun-system—some of whom fled at one time to the Pleiades, some to the Hyades—oops!—and a number of other places where they found hospitable planets in their escape from destruction—oh, yes, human entities have a hard time getting the point! But in the ending—the point shall be thoroughly gotten and the lessons of behavior—well learned!

[Still quoting, further on.]

We are further developed forms of life, and no longer are able to move in such levels of mind perception as do Earth beings. This is not a pretentious point on our part, but simply a law of Creation. It is the same with all forms of life; also with Earth humans. They, as well, are no longer able to move within still lower, to them, levels, thus they are not able to integrate in any manner with lower beings. The concept would be insane. To adjust to all tasks in the existing laws of Creation each world creates, according to its level of evolution, one or more creatures of advanced development through whom necessary facts may be transmitted. These higher developed creatures have been called “Prophets” on Earth who, unfortunately, in their times, were almost without exception persecuted and pursued, which condition still has not changed. And because this is the way it is, there is no necessity or intention to make ourselves further known to all ones.

Besides us, there are still other extraterrestrial intelligences who move in the Earth realm, but who are in uniquely different positions in evolution than are you, and who are sometimes advanced over Earth humans by only a few centuries. These creatures may thus come into contact with Earth humans and reach total integration. Because some of these intelligences are not much developed beyond Earth mankind, they may behave like “Commanders” and such, and more advanced creatures may actually participate with humans of Earth to prevent evil consequences.

Some Earth humans do have real contacts with such extraterrestrials, and others take such reports and elaborate them with fantasy, thus creating new stories. There also appear lesser developed intelligences who thirst for command and want to keep the scepter over Earth humans and, conscious of the affinity for religions on Earth, they learn to apply them for their own purposes. These advanced, let us refer to them as negative (for lack of better description) beings who would manipulate the human populace are indeed clever and, being advanced in technical knowledge and abilities, are able to influence and direct your own species. These ones have become great menaces to Earth man’s development for they are basically destroyers. Earth man can begin to better sort out the tools of these ones by observation at times when wars and catastrophes befall them. The powerful leaders of Earth at this time are unconsciously, or consciously, or in absentia, led totally astray by such intelligences.

To understand the relationship of Earth beings and your cosmic brothers, you must use logic and the gift of true reasoning deduction processes. I’m sorry, chelas, but the stories you have been given are simply not even logical and furthermore, they form a mystical aura about God and Creation which is absurd. Why do you have to couch God in mysticism when there is none? The wonders of the Universe are so magnificent—why require it to be mystic and magic?

Specifically, extraterrestrials or star-people, whatever you desire to call your cosmic counterparts, are very much like you. Knowledge and “WISDOM” are superior to yours, as well as technology—no more and no less—each moving through experience. Space and time are not overcome by space and time—BUT BY SPACELESSNESS AND TIMELESSNESS, which means that space and time collapse into one another and become equally directional to zero-time. By that, a few fractions of a second are enough to rush through billions of light-years, practically without loss of time, because the zero-time neutralizes space and time simultaneously. We do not even need to discuss “etheric” beings at this point, nor thought transference—good old space and time will do nicely.

Many deceivers pretend they are in contact with other planetary human beings in your solar system, and even having flown with or in their ships. This is nothing more than false, as most of the stars (planets) indicated are so desolate that human life is no longer possible on their surface or, as with Venus—the planet itself is not old enough or evolved enough to sustain life-forms of human. It is most unfortunate that the contacts which might well be valid are discredited by lack of understanding of the truth by the receivers themselves. Of course this is the total intent of the base energies efforting to control your planet.

Our mission is to alert you to the presence of the deceivers and warn you of your declining ability to reverse your negative path—these are not “little gray aliens” from somewhere “out there”—they have become real and incarnate beings with intent for control and destruction of your planet as you know it. THAT is NOT mystical.

The time of conflict with these energy forms is coming in imminent experience and you are, by great numbers, at disadvantage if you are IN truth and just behavior. You have become dominated by evil intent and actions, your human spirit is greatly underdeveloped and the lessons of false teachers continues the decline of the overall.

Above all, there remains but ONE that possesses the power of life and death over each creature. This is the CREATION alone, which has laid its laws over ALL. Laws which are irrefutable and of eternal validity. The human being can recognize them in nature when he troubles himself to do so. They expose for him the way of life and the way to spiritual greatness, embodying the goal of life. While the human indulges in his religions, and by this a heresy, he pines more and more away—in spirit—which finally leads to a bottomless pit—abyss.

The human being may recognize that a God can never take over the part of the Creation or destine the fate of a human being. God is NOT the CREATION, but as well, only a creature of it, like all Creation-dependent creatures. But the human being hunts for his religious wrong beliefs and affirms God being the Creation ITSELF. He goes even further and pretends a normal Earthman by the name of “Immanuel”, who is also called the “Jesus Christ”, is God’s “son” and the Creation itself. Still different sects of the new time go on to maintain these same things, which already approach total delusion and the stories get more and more wild in presentation.

It is pathetic for, as already mentioned, deceivers also walk in the same direction and put out incorrect perceptions and total lies unto the world of man—that your cosmic brothers and sisters from other planets of the cosmos would come at the “order” of God (with whom they actually mean that one, “Christ”) and integrate into one element of definition, those “beings” with that of THE CREATION. This is total bunk! Ones mis-project and attempt to allow you unthinking and seeking humans to believe such trash. There are ones who come with the cosmic brothers who do attend these matters of higher dimension and are a higher integration with The Creation. These ones come in attendance at this time with the higher teachers in preparation of return of God upon your place in order for the reclamation.

The CREATION itself gives the commands, dear ones, in ultimate measure, because IT embodies the greatest power in the Universe, and never is in need of commands or silly religions. Religion is only the primitive work of human beings, in purpose, quite frankly and honestly, to lead them into suppression—for exploitation—to which only spiritually deficient life can fall.

One further mission at this time is to bring this truth to the light of the world and make it known. If this does not happen, then mankind will slowly destroy itself and fall into complete spiritual darkness in separation from God and Truth.

God is one thing, Creation another—it is the total lack of balance with the laws of Creation which has brought you down. The Laws of Creation as given unto the human species are presented by God of Creation as guidelines by which you can remain in balance and harmony with that which IS The Creation and you have broken and rewritten them all to suit your lustful, greedy and very base human desires. So be it. [End quoting]

TRANSITION THOUGHTS

It becomes very clear that the planet is in transition. Changes are imminent, both in terms of weather and geophysical developments, and on a more personal note, at a soul level. Sides are being drawn. When The Light hits, the adversary really fights back. Of course, ultimately God wins, but as in any game, while in motion the play continues. It really becomes a question of, who will choose God? And it isn't even really choosing God, it's choosing the right way, the "red road" as our Native brothers say, the spiritual path. The adversary has made his presence known throughout history. You've just read about some of those beings. From here we'll take a few interesting turns in our continuing journey, but in the meantime this series is to be continued...

SOLTEC: STILL THYSELF AND HEAR GOD'S VOICE WITHIN

6/22/98 SOLTEC

Good morning, my friend. It is I, Toniose Soltec, come in the Radiant One Light of Creator God. Be at Peace.

There is much happening in your world as your clocks continue to tick ever so regularly as if “nothing” could ever change. Each moment that passes brings forth change, even if you see it not. The clues are all around you, if you but look and see.

“But,” you say, “there have not been these terrible earthquakes or massive shiftings of the planet’s waters.” I say to you that, from the point of view that we monitor on a regular basis, they are occurring this very moment, as you read this. Maybe nothing drastic has personally impacted you yet; however, the subtle signs of change are there nonetheless.

These changes are perceptible if you tune your attention properly. Most of you never even notice the thousands of subtle Earth shiftings that happen each and every day that are below a magnitude of 1.0 on your measuring scales.

How many of you perceive the decay of your own body from moment to moment? Do you sense the decay of, let’s say, a tooth with a bacteria etching the outer enamel layers? Or, do you wait until the decay has progressed to a level where a nerve is exposed, and only then decide to take note?

We observe that many of you are too mentally preoccupied with the outer world of your existence to take the ounce of preventative “time” that it would take you to still yourselves and listen within to the sound of your own heart-beat or feel the sensation of blood flowing through your veins and arteries.

As caretakers of your planet, how is it that you plan to take preventative care of a massive organism such as she, if you cannot even monitor yourselves? No, you cannot, and your actions, as a whole, confirm this statement.

You can deny that the teeth in your mouth are rotting or that the mineral array in your body is out of balance. But such behavior will not change the fact that the nerves in your teeth will become exposed or that your kidneys will someday give way.

So, too, can you deny that there are any great Earth changes coming. The denial will not change the fact that such are coming; it will only allow you to perhaps continue in your irresponsibility for another short bit of time.

All of the warnings that you ones need have been penned prior, and printed here, over and over again. Those of you who do give a damn about selves and do wish to stand as example for the world to see, have prepared for these eventualities. Those of you who sit on the fence and continue to procrastinate, will soon find your fence shaken-out from beneath your firmly seated and dearly coveted assets.

We witness that many of you have the time and money to go out and purchase new vehicles to drive or fancy clothes to wear, and then go about complaining that you do not have enough money or time in order to prepare for emergencies. The excuses will not feed your children, grand-children, neighbors, or friends. You ones will also be the ones who pray the most for God to come and save you or help you in your time of desperation.

Every day God will tell you that your enamel of protective covering is eroding and that you need to attend this before more extreme measures are needed. Do you listen? For the most part, the answer is—NO, you do not!

Why? Because you do not take the time to still selves and discipline your own minds to receive the vast array of information available to you each. You are each quite capable of connecting within for your own guidance and information, yet many of you rely solely on others to do it for you.

Again, you who refuse to accept your personal inner responsibilities for self will be the ones who cry the most for help. Learn to help yourselves, for in doing so you will be able to deal with any and every challenge that you may ever encounter, regardless of the situation.

Your current environment is as plastic and malleable as is the clay that a sculptor uses to convert an inner idea into a physical representation. It is your challenge to master this form of expression.

You each hold the key to understanding and utilizing the inner ability to KNOW, yet you will shrug-off the memories of doing so and say that it was only a “coincidence” and that you really didn’t do anything. NO! Coincidences are merely the conscious recognition of the synchronicity of your place in the universe and how you relate to all therein.

Coincidences usually stand out in your mind as having some sort of significance even if you do not appreciate the confirmations that they are. Perhaps they are answers to prayers and you just are not connecting the answer with the question. Again, many of you will pray for (focus your desire upon) many different things, and when the answer comes, you most often miss the connection between the desire and the fulfillment. This, too, points to a lack of self-discipline.

If you continue to refuse to learn for yourself, then there is only so much we can do beyond continually asking you ones to go within and connect for self. *GO WITHIN AND CONNECT FOR SELF! GO WITHIN AND CONNECT FOR SELF!!!!

You are the answer. You can modify and change the outcome of the play. You can create the necessary conditions for yourself in order to ride-out the roughest of times upon your globe. Or, you can simply allow yourself to become the “victim” of your own lack of self-discipline and self-worth.

We of the Hosts have held your hand and walked with you through your various stages of awakening. We will continue to offer assistance—but you have to be willing to “hear” the message, “feel” the nudge, and most importantly, pay attention to the clues that are being offered EVERY MOMENT OF EVERY DAY!

When you-the-student are ready, we will always be there for you! ALWAYS, it is our desire and God’s promise to you each. You get “ready” by disciplining yourself and going within and accepting the gifts offered.

Please ALWAYS remember to call upon the Lighted Brotherhood for protection. If you are not comfortable with this term that may sound “New Age” to you, then simply call upon God—the One who created YOU!

It is the intent of the heart that is monitored. Half-hearted attempts will likely bring half-hearted entities and half-hearted results. Remember: like attracts like. When you demand honesty, truthfulness, and clarity, and make these attributes part of your character, then you will ensure a Lighted connection at all times.

Will the Earth changes come as prophesied? Yes and No. Yes, they will appear to some to happen just as foretold, and yet others will see the same events differently. Each person’s ability to perceive is unique and different, therefore you will have varying accounts. Those who are experiencing in underground bases will experience from a vastly different perspective and understanding than, let’s say, ones who live in self-sufficient rural environments or in large cities.

Just as the ancients of your world would perceive our craft as “chariots” (vehicles of the day) of “fire” (the only item to compare the lighting of our craft to), so too will you ones relate to what you witness in terms of your abilities to understand what you are seeing. Learn to accept that there is a greater knowledge beyond your current perception. But more importantly, learn to accept that it is your God-given right too “tap-in” to this knowledge any time you may desire to do so. It is up to YOU to recognize this connection for self!

I am Ceres Anthonious Soltec, elder brother and geophysical scientist overseeing the various transitional stages of your planet’s cleansing and rebalancing into health at this time. She continually petitions that each and every life-form on and within her may find inner peace and their connection to Source (Creator God). When was the last time you petitioned on her behalf?

In Light and Service to the One Light, Creator Source, blessings to you all. Salu.

NEWS DESK SPECIAL REPORT

KORTON: SPOTTING MODERN EVIL'S ANCIENT ROOTS

6/12/98 KORTON

Good morning, Commander Tomeros Maasu Korton here, in Radiance and Light and in service unto Creator Source. A great deal is happening these days in your nations and your world, as the elite factions begin preparations to unveil your new Global Government with its infrastructure of fascist paramilitary police enforcers.

Many are awakening to what is taking place as they witness your way of life going down the drain. As always you ones have the power to stop this mad dash to destruction, but the question is: WILL YOU? Your adversary does not believe enough of you will awaken in time to stop them, hence the blatant presentation of power and manipulation of your freedoms, thinly disguised as justifiable reactions to “random happenings” and “accidents”. Are you forgetting that you are dealing with the prince of deception himself?

TORNADOS, SCHOOL KILLINGS AND TRANSPORTATION MISHAPS

The evil manipulators are using incredible (to you) devices and technologies to bring about their aims through control of that which has always been seen by uninformed and unenlightened citizens as natural occurrences, freaks of Nature, and unprovoked rampant crime. This is how the game is played by your big boys holding the “keys of knowledge” regarding the inner sanctum of their fraternal orders and clubs.

They have developed advanced mind-control techniques to use on the assailants AND their victims (you) so the bloodshed can continue and to ensure that you-the-people believe the lies given forth to explain it all away.

ANY media-hyped shooting incident is set up and devised by your adversary to legally cover their bases when it comes time to forcibly remove your weapons of self-defense. Always the groundwork is laid before a plan is carried out.

As any good chess player knows, many pieces are moved to set the trap for your opponent’s king, most being diversionary tactics to keep your opponent so busy and overwhelmed that he misses the little things. It is always, in the end, a quiet and unobtrusive move which signals the coming defeat—something that could have been circumvented IF seen in time to counter. Please, keep in mind the goal of your enemy; that way you are not overwhelmed by “the little things” designed to distract you.

Does El Nino again get the credit for your new tornado, flood, and climate patterns? Where was this supposedly seasonal El Nino during decades past? Whether you believe it is a natural “freak” occurrence or advanced weather modification at its increasingly deadly and accurate best, you should realize that you are in the days where you are being hit with every conceivable “distraction”—one after another—until you ones are so subdued that it will not matter what “gets you” in the end.

You are already at war, in case you haven’t noticed, and the conventional weapons ARE NOT the first salvos fired at you. Your Bolshevik rulers and the Russian High Command are using their most advanced weaponry of “Star Wars” conception to wage unholy war against each other and the citizenry of helpless pawns on both sides of the playing field. Secrecy is the master strategy for both sides, for it is THE strategy that allows for the biggest prize to be won—a planet whose people are shrouded in ignorance.

Beam weapons of the neutron variety can very easily cause planes, trains, automobiles, and missiles to crash, allowing the incidents to appear as accidents. The public is none the wiser, and lacking a good reason why such a thing would be done purposely, all possible TRUTHFUL explanations are dismissed by way of the “nutty” conspiracy theories designed to facilitate just such a response.

When your airports and train stations are taken from you under the guise of “safety problems” and anti-terrorist countermeasures, you will be sorry you missed these little clues—especially when you had time to act. FEMA needs only one or two good excuses to bring your country under TOTAL DICTATORIAL RULE—WITH NO CONSTITUTIONAL SAFEGUARDS IN PLACE TO CONTROL THE ONES WHO HEAD THE AGENCY!

Surprised that such an oversight of such magnitude got by the political watchdogs? Dear ones, that is why the Federal Emergency Management Agency was created in the first place—as a mechanism to get control over your nation quickly and in a massive way.

FEMA IS FASCISM’S TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY FACELIFT

Fascism has been around for centuries, but your educational system does not teach you enough facts to see the truth of the matter. Your ancient Roman aristocracy is alive and well in your modern political circles, and to this day holds the reins on art, commerce, money, education, and war.

You must understand that your elite power brokers have NEVER lost sight of their goals or their ancestral lineage. You, on the other hand, have no notion of what have been the true historical progressions of your various countries—and their interconnected relations with each other. You do not know why your world destiny (with its kingdoms, empires, and nations) took the turns and made the decisions it has, despite any delusions of input from its supposedly self-governing peoples. Your esteemed history books offer no such outlayings of information.

And why should they? The master criminals would all be exposed for their roles, and their families’ roles, in stealing massive fortunes and lands from the indigenous souls of the world. That is why this specific form of government was conjured; it lends itself so well to the systematic raping and pillaging of a population that the citizens themselves call for the slave masters to increase their hold over you. Under the fascist system of government lies a well thought out political structure that accommodates itself quite nicely to control of the masses by but a very few.

Your own U.S. government is tied LEGALLY to this treasonous system of the ancient moneychangers, and it is through your own political structure that the thieves have stolen a world. Your “Capitol Hill” is a direct manifestation of the ancient Roman “Capitoline Hill”—complete with a reconstructed wading pond, architectural and street layouts corresponding to secret Masonic symbols—even the Roman “money” temple Juno Moneta (where it was decreed “money” will be the “god” of the people) was integrated into your modern political system.

Your Vatican mafia and religious structure owns the buildings and land from which your government operates. Do you think the Watergate Hotel’s easy access and underworld activities escaped the eyes of the very ones who owned the property? My friends, with almost a billion worshipers who follow the papal dynasty, that kind of “easy pickings” is just too tempting for even the most unimaginative crooks to pass up. Control of a planet is their intent and a billion people become a billion pawns of greater human resources to be funneled toward achieving the goal.

The Vatican runs your government, along with the Zionist puppet-masters whose modus operandi is blackmail and bribery. These two groups are presently at odds with each other, as happens with any joint effort between criminals lusting after massive spoils.

However, let us not leave the Russian element out of our equation, for it is they who have the best tools for getting inside a government structure to manipulate the puppets’ puppets for their own agenda. Synthetic replicas of humans do make for interesting “wrenches” tossed into the world political machinery.

Moreover, since you have been partners with the Soviet element in the Kremlin, under the covers, since the beginning, do not underestimate their role in America’s destiny, either. The American Bolsheviks know wherefrom are their roots.

There is a definite religious and political connection between St. Peter’s Basilica (your world’s largest church) and your nation’s Capitol. The fall of Rome, with all its pageantry and betrayal of its governors and unwitting citizens, being likened to Washington D.C., is no coincidence—ROME LITERALLY IS WASHINGTON! The Sun never sets beyond the borders of your adversary’s sprawling empire.

VATICAN MAFIA AND MISHPUCKA
ZIONISTS’ POWER STRUGGLE FOR OWNERSHIP OF AMERICA

The Italian mafia and its CIA bedfellows lost ownership of the U.S. to the Jewish mishpucka (mafia) and their intelligence agency, the Mossad. For a long time, Italy’s U.S. Navy Intelligence has controlled a formidable chunk of America’s arsenal. However, when FEMA was created by Bush, Carter, Oliver North, et al., the stockpiling of weapons—especially nuclear bombs and STEALTH Navy ships—allowed the mishpucka mob to edge the Italians out.

Now the Vatican is being hit at home—mortally wounding its ancient infrastructure. And as their evil empire crumbles and falls, so too will America, because the U.S. infrastructure was built by the Italian mafia through auspices of the Rockefeller Cartel.

Vatican/CIA/Mafia criminals pitted against the Zionist/Mossad/Mishpucka gang of terrorists have become two murderous cancers that have eaten away the moral foundation of civilization itself, and they have brought your world to its deathbed of terminal illness.

There are other crime cartels and families, to be sure; however, these two are the ones which set the pace for the others. They are both ancient in origin and diabolical in means, and both have changed their names with the passing centuries to remain the hidden motivating force behind corruption of religion, politics, and high finance, for it is they who are the heavyweight puppets of the dark master in the battle over men's souls.

Their power is absolute, in Earth terms, and their day is here. There is no one left to enslave; you in the U.S. are already captured-and-paid-for servants and cannon fodder. However, your SOUL—with its ideal of freedom—has not yet been extinguished. Nevertheless, that too looms on the horizon. You don't have to take my word for it—just look around you!

Your automobile industry is largely what created a prosperous modern America. This was THE industry which allowed you the distinction of being a “Superpower”. Of course it, in conjunction with its satellite industries, has also created your planet's super pollution horror.

Another definition of fascism is big business in partnership with big government. Well, the business of war is about as big as it gets, chelas. Thus, when your atomic weapons and other so-called weapons of mass destruction began to be used (in conjured wars) by the munitions makers to further increase their wealth, you no longer depended upon that which you MANUFACTURED for barter and gold exchange to decide your standing in the world.

Behind the closed ivory and gold doors of Lucifer's 40 thieves (that number is not too far off, only a few families and individuals control it all), the policy became “the one with the biggest stick” would sit on the world throne. And you have been in what you call an “arms race” ever since.

THE ANCIENT CONNECTION AND PROOF OF EVIL'S INFLUENCE

Evil's grip on your nation and the countries of the world has a long and tangled but followable history. You don't have to look any farther than your local and state capitols to see the connection. Nearly all those buildings have domes on them because that was the structure decided upon for the “temples” of the ones who would rule over you. The “Domas” is part of the secret Babylonian/Canaanite/Masonic symbol-worshipping used to denote “divine rule”—as the evil ones ordained themselves to always be your masters. You do not question these things because you are not taught anything meaningful about your religious past.

You have no notion of the significance of the very words and symbols used in your houses of worship and government, nor their actual meaning. Your cozy Americanized Christian word “Zion”, for instance, means “permanent Capital”. This is a direct connection to the Roman “Capitoline” Hill. The word “Pope” translates from Latin as “door” or “way” and means the Bishop of Rome represents “the way” to the secrets of Babylon—the ancient totalitarian structure that has become your present form of tyranny. Even his “Cardinals”—”hinges” in Latin—have their place in assisting and guarding this secret knowledge. The Babylonian system of government is very much alive today, though most ones are unaware of it.

The Fasci was derived from an ancient ROMAN symbol of authority consisting of a bundle of rods or sticks and an axe head. Need a better picture of it in your minds? When the House of Representatives next convenes, look on either side of your American flag, behind the House Speaker, and you will see two of them in all their defiant glory, proclaiming to all WHO really runs your nation.

Did you forget you went to war against World Fascism in World War II? This is another war you did not win. Always the international banksters are the victors. The devastation, poverty, and heavy taxation is the reward to ALL THE COUNTRIES WHO PARTICIPATED!

And now, as the spoils of a beaten America are divided between elite victors, you watch as your country’s businesses and major industries are stripped from you. Soon the very ground beneath your weary feet will be in foreclosure—it already is, you just haven’t been told as much. So far it has been done without openly firing a shot, just as Lenin claimed they would do.

Fascism is always symbolized by the bundle of sticks, representing the chosen member provinces or nations, and an axe or hatchet head, symbolizing their absolute and ruthlessly decisive power.

Chelas, this is not what you would term a free, Christ-following political movement. These are the very ones plotting the takeover of your country, and you sit there allowing them to literally laugh at you while they divvy up your property and dole out your national assets. As they hammer out the final details regarding the best way to dispose of you, you argue over issues put forth by the adversary to distract you.

Be it racism, Internet censorship, Jerry Springer, or the latest celebrity murder, your adversary doesn’t hesitate to take out famous faces amidst fanfare and controversy to further distract you. They know how you Americans love your “stars”. Keeping the media focus on these things allows Truth to quietly slip past you at the back of the newspaper page or as a side note in your local news broadcasts.

WHAT ABOUT THE GERMANS?

Where are the Germans in this Global Millennium showdown? Sitting right in the middle, they are the brains behind the world manipulation game. Remember Hitler’s 2000-year Reich? His “New World Order”—adopted by Prescott Bush and passed on down to his son, Sir George—IS A NAZI PLAN. So were the Nazis the originators of the world domination scenario? No, just capitalizing innovators concerning what was taking place around them.

The German banking family of Khazarian banksters, the Rothschilds, have as their coat of arms a red shield (“rot-schildt” in German, from which comes the name Rothschild) with A ROMAN WREATH AND FASCI. This is the very same family who caused the American Civil War so the banking syndicate could acquire the wealth of your South—not to free Black slaves as you were told.

Africans, Chinese, and Irish slaves (and others forced or bartered into servitude) were already in the process of gaining their freedoms. The Spirit prevailing in the New World's "land of the free" was that ALL would be free or none would be safe from the tyranny of would-be slave masters; by the way, it was for the purposes of quelling your peoples that a New World ORDER was created.

In 1857 a pivotal meeting took place in London where the old principle of "divide and conquer" was to be used on a fledgling America. If you require more Earth-based sources for your research, an AUTHORIZED biography entitled The Rothschilds, The Financial Rulers Of Nations, by John Reeves, says it all in the title.

If you are thrown off the trail by the German Rothschilds' "Jewish" (Khazarian) heritage, just keep uppermost in your thoughts that Hitler and the Zionist "Jews" (again, NOT the God-respecting Judeans) were partners. How do you think he got into power in the first place??!

Hitler wanted a more "Zionist behavior" from the regular "Jewish" population. His vision of an Aryan Nation is not told to you exactly the way it actually was. You needn't look any further than Hitler's hair color, stature and facial features to see that he more closely resembles Moses Horowitz, better known as "Moe" from the Jewish comedy trio The Three Stooges, than he does the blond, blue-eyed, tall, so-called Aryans. You have no idea what your races looked like when you were not so blended.

Prussia, a militaristic state of north central Europe that dominated Germany until the rise of Nazism, at the height of its strength stretched from west of the Rhine to Poland and Russia. The Baltic territory later known as East Prussia was Germanized by the Teutonic Knights in the 1200s and later became the duchy of Prussia.

Hessian (German) mercenaries, who fought AGAINST AMERICA (siding with the British) during the Revolutionary War, were the enforcers for the Rothschilds when they began pitting brother against brother for profit. The profit was used to BUY power and influence through SECRET FRATERNAL ORDERS (which exist today and comprise the innermost sanctums of your intelligence groups) to gain control over Europe and all that was considered the "Old World".

When it began to be realized how vast the potential wealth and natural resources of the United States was going to be, the Rothschilds, and their partners among the Royal Families of Europe, pulled together all their means to perpetrate the theft of an entire country. So you see, a certain dark "parasitic" element that controlled Germany was greatly involved with the usurpers of freedom and manipulators of Truth and human history as it unfolded into your modern society and beliefs.

Remember that German "Jewish" scholars gave you your present version of your Holy Bible with more than TWO DOZEN books purposely left out! What more can I say?

GERMAN FASCISM AND THE BAVARIAN ILLUMINATI

Germany has had help (just as have other nations) from "illuminated ones" endeavoring to align themselves with governments who pledge to aid and advance mankind in his technical and spiritual aspirations; and, like many nations before and after Germany, their leaders led the people astray.

Ever since her Hessian mercenary warriors were for hire to the robber barons, and experienced the relative wealth gained from this emerging INDUSTRY, Germany's misguided sense of superiority over their fellow human beings began to flourish. The Bavarian-based Illuminati (with its accumulation of knowledge and minds borrowed or stolen from other places), which aligned itself with Hitler, misunderstood "illuminated people" to be an illuminated race. Just as with the Zionists being denounced at the United Nations for their racist views of all non-Zionists, Nazism was destined to fall because of those same bigoted beliefs.

As with pre-war Germany, Fascists have come to power AFTER a nation has suffered an economic collapse, a military defeat, or SOME OTHER DISASTER—MANMADE OR OTHERWISE. The fascist party wins mass support by promising to revive the economy and to restore national pride. The fascists may also appeal to a fear of communism or a hatred of Jews and other "minorities".

To give you a better idea of what your secret rulers are up to, look at this outline of fascism:

Personal liberty is severely limited under a fascist government. (Keep in mind, readers, this is not Korton's projection; this is your own definition of that governmental system to which you pay your ever increasing taxes as you bow and scrape in front of those fasci symbols—supposedly representing YOUR congress).

A fascist government limits travel to other countries (that includes states and cities too, chelas) and restricts any contact with their people.

A FASCIST GOVERNMENT ALSO CONTROLS THE NEWSPAPERS, RADIO AND ALL PRESENT AND FUTURE MEANS OF COMMUNICATIONS. (This should give you a better understanding of the barrage of bills being written to censure and control your expanding computer Internet).

A fascist government issues propaganda (movies and TV programs being the most effective) to promote its policies, and practices strict censorship to silence opposing views. (This is why there was no follow-up story to the Extra interview with CONTACT—the CIA and FBI know nothing else to do with you ones and further "reporting" only reveals more TRUTH as to how your world really operates.)

A secret police force crushes any resistance (ATF, IRS, FBI, FinCIN—take your pick). Opposition may lead to imprisonment, torture, and death. This is why former political players and insiders are tightlipped and running scared—they know what kind of justice awaits them if they talk. Heaven forbid a convenient scapegoat is needed; Satan has no qualms about sacrificing his own.

All children are required to join youth groups and "boot camp"-style organizations where they exercise, march, and learn fascist beliefs. Does this not sound like the new juvenile correctional/training facilities springing up all over the country in response to the rash of orchestrated and provoked adolescent crimes and delinquency?

Fascists consider all other peoples inferior to those of their own nationality group. As you can see, this political front is easily adaptable to whomever adopts its views; it is an equal opportunity dictatorship.

U.S. DIDN'T DETECT NUCLEAR BLASTS

BECAUSE YOU HAVE NO FUNCTIONING SPY SATELLITES IN ORBIT

The Russians long ago shot down all American spy satellites with their manned killer satellites known as Cosmos Interceptors. You are allowed your banking and certain communications satellites to facilitate financial AND HUMAN tracking systems for the Global Government. However, nothing that could remotely threaten the Russians is allowed to go into orbit—or stay very long if indeed your rockets made it into space. You have many secret rocket launches that are shot down or are simply destroyed on the pad. You are at war, friends, and the sleeping masses remain unaware.

Why don't we show ourselves over your cities and preempt your TV programs to give you Truth? That would be the instant we sign your death certificates; your controllers would jump at the opportunity to ignite the powder-keg your napping population sits on. There is no nice way to put it: YOU ARE HOSTAGES!! AND UNTIL SUCH TIME AS YOUR CAPTORS ARE REMOVED FROM YOUR PLACES OF INFLUENCE AND POWER, THERE IS NAUGHT WE OF THE HOSTS CAN DO BUT INFORM YOU THROUGH AVAILABLE MEANS AND STAND READY WITH THE LIFE-BOATS.

When your advisors say they are sending satellites to “look into the problem”, they are more likely talking about other craft with sufficient surveillance capability and they too are no match for Russian space weapons. At best you are going to get lies and half-truths regarding what your nuclear neighbors are up to.

INDIA AND PAKISTAN HAVE ALREADY BEEN MEMBERS OF THE NUCLEAR CLUB

The governments of India and Pakistan, as well as your other modern warring nations, have been nuclear powers for some time. Whether their weapons are provided through “sweetheart” deals, like what was given to the Chinese, the Israelis, Iran, and others, or acquired through intelligence “cells” (whereby a makeshift device the size of a backpack can easily end up in the hands of a smalltime tyrant looking to make a name for himself in a most spectacular way), the munitions makers have seen to it that just about anyone who wants a bomb can get one.

Your adversary HAS to have a nuclear war; it is the only way to get what they are after without God interfering (too much). You have many thousands of very powerful warheads poised to send you back to the stone age as a civilization. Your elite, however, plan to ride out the war in various terrestrial and non-terrestrial bases, and when its all over, rule over those who are left. What they do not realize is that if your Earth is made uninhabitable, NO Earth humans have the capability to survive very long without the LOVE, support, and presence of their nurturing home world. Your island solar system would be devoid of human life until such time as God saw fit to allow your form of life to again inhabit this small corner of His Universe.

Every day that passes that you do not have nuclear war should be another blessed day you have to prepare yourselves to either prevent the holocaust or safeguard your communities and nation AND PEOPLE by building shelters. Like we have told you before, the very fact of having a shelter deters the desirability and feasibility to nuke you.

This is what is actually meant by the concept of “Mutually Assured Destruction” (appropriately known as “MAD”). Sir Henry Kissinger’s version purposely leaves out the fact that the Russian population would survive the U.S. retaliatory strike in their nice cozy shelters. You-the-people would not last the opening salvos of a nuclear exchange. Every one of your high-level politicians knows this but, as always, the masses are kept in the dark—ABOUT EVERYTHING.

Does this “inevitable” war mean the end of the world as you have known it? Yes and no. Unaverted, your planet and your civilization will undergo massive changes triggered by such an event. Whatever remnant survives will regress back to a pre-industrial time wherein man will be forced to fend for himself the basic necessities of life. Many who are unprepared shall not survive these times.

With no means to rebuild (except for that which your communities brought with them into the shelters), the hapless survivors would become scavengers with no food or potable water. They would experience a calamity unimaginable to your human hearts—no matter how vivid your imagination. When Nostradamus wrote of these days, he saw man turn upon his brother to eat the flesh of his own kind, and man was likened unto the wild beast.

Location would be the deciding factor because, if you are away from the cities, you will not be faced with the desperation and carnage of humans gone mad as they feel sure God has most definitely left them to slowly perish among the ruins of the firestorm. Precious ones, God NEVER leaves man; always, without exception, it is man who abandons God.

If your community is not prepared for its inhabitants to make it through what is coming, then the aftermath will unfold accordingly. No one is going to do it for you, be it saving your assets or your ASS; YOU HAVE TO DO IT! We can only show you the way.

DRUGS AND TV: YOUR BLINDFOLD AND CIGARETTE

By coming up with every excuse imaginable to get you to consume genetically engineered and enhanced dangerous drugs, HOWEVER they are disguised—be they cold medicines, allergy and flu shots, even Viagra (they sure knew how to get the men in a hurry)—your adversary is trying to produce a race of zombies that will not question what is being brought upon them.

Drug- and media-induced “coma” ensures you are not a threat to the manipulators. British Intelligence’s Tavistock Institute and their various branches here in America and around the world have known for decades, through experimentation on unsuspecting souls, what your “doses” are for creating nations of functioning illiterates. (I do not mean to offend, but this is how you are referred to in their think tanks.) The real danger of television is its ability to supplement and reinforce, many times over, the desired outcome of the drugs’ mind-numbing and yielding effects.

They give you what they have told you you want to view on your television boxes. All the while it is THEIR programming and THEIR choices selected to keep you desiring the wrong things in life.

Your national focus has been shifted from the educational and economic progress and stability you all say you want, to focusing on sensationalism and petty squabbles regarding race and sex differences. Your adversarial groups are against all that is decent and innocent in humanity. They cause strife and conflict because that is how they maintain order over you and, most importantly, gain great wealth from your suffering.

The TV program Mission Impossible made popular an above-top-secret international spy agency called the IMF (Impossible Mission Force) which actually stands for the INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND. In real life this nest of covert operatives works for the international banker elite and it is your free-market economy and sovereign way of life that is THEIR adversary.

Of course you need gold to function in your modern “prosperous” society. However, it is through that medium of exchange that your freedoms have been “sold” to the highest bidder—and, my friends, England is the highest bidder. Money (gold) is what drives the evil manipulators, and it is the love of money that has gotten you into this mess in the first place, so many years ago.

Even shows with a tongue-in-cheek attitude about underworld intrigue and espionage, such as Get Smart, are literally thumbing their noses at the public regarding what is going on behind closed doors. This comedy-drama, with its two opposing spy organizations called “Chaos” and “Control”, characterizes the Illuminati’s Latin phrase “Ordo ob Chao” or “Order Out of Chaos”. By controlling and generating conflicts, and then providing the solutions to those conflicts, the masses are at the mercy of the ones pulling the strings.

ALL EYES ARE ON AMERICA

The foreclosure proceedings have already begun and British Intelligence is chairing the “auction”. The goods? England’s most prized colony—the United States of America. The “Nation Under God” will be sorely tested this time around, with all eyes (on and off your place) focused on transpiring events as the world moves closer to the new millennium in your counting of time.

For your Earthly neighbors, this is the show of shows. That is because, as goes you-the-people and your sovereignty, so goes your brothers’ hopes of keeping (or acquiring) same.

You sell your souls for that which is touted as “a better way of life”, not realizing that your evil controllers truly have bargained with your very souls. When you deal with Satan, you must understand that those in service to the Anti-Christ, for the most part, are without souls. Human life is nothing to them and your Liberties and Rights have even less value, as they are only used as bartering chips in the game of global conquest.

Will you not stand and LAWFULLY rescind the transplanted, ancient political system which unjustly pre-sides over your future? How about the future of humanity?

The ones in power have made the proverbial pact with the “devil” but, as it now stands, you still have Constitutional and corporate (utilizing Nevada corporate structure) means to regain that which God has given you. Remember, ALL OF YOU in America have one thing in common: your DESIRE for freedom. It no longer matters what one race did to another or to selves, it is time you thought of yourselves as ONE

PEOPLE WITHIN AND FROM THE ONE SOURCE.

Once your collective consciousness moves up to the frequency of those God-like qualities, you will discover a new power being radiated from your place—a new energy to combat that which is against God and His people, and it will allow ones to feel and see the Power of The One Source, as they stand to reclaim that which stands for peace and harmony.

These times you are now living in are most unique and challenging as opportunities for growth. God-Aton would not send lesser to aid you in your hour of need than we of His Hosts. Ponder that as you witness what MAN'S Armageddon brings upon the Earth, for it will be "faith in the Lord" and "divine right action" that will carry you through.

Blessings unto you who KNOW of that which we present, and may Lighted Inspiration and quick Instinct guide your brothers and sisters who are not quite there yet. Since the "good guys" win in the end, I suspect there will be a lot of celebrating and sharing of experiences when the dark forces finally consume themselves as they compete for top position. As demonstrated from eons past to the present, isn't that how evil always loses? It is the people, God's chosen, who survive to build anew after the fires have gone out or the flood waters recede, and it will be the people who again will continue. You are magnificent vehicles for God's infinite expression, would He have it any other way?

You are at the threshold of a Grand Period of Radiance, wherein all will participate. However, it will be your actions during this cleansing time—as Earth-Shan is also to be renewed—that will decide how smooth the transition will be. We of the Hosts stand by to assist our younger relations. Commander Maasu Korton to clear, please. Salu.

Korton here in the Radiant Light of The Creator Source, ATON, The One Light. May all who seek Truth hear what is shared this day!

The planet you were given for your use, along with the precious creatures who dwell upon the lands and within the seas, that you were to be stewards over, are rebelling against that which has so abused them. Your nurturing Earth, a LIVING BEING also worthy of God's love, has been allowed to heal herself of the negative electrical frequencies—AND THE ACCOMPANYING PHYSICAL MANIFESTATIONS of those negative energies. And I have news for you: it is MAN WHO HAS BECOME EARTH'S ADVERSARY.

All of your wars and violent displays of human interaction have caused the vibratory frequency of the planet to be affected to such a degree that Earth-Shan (as this emerald orb is known by those from out among the stars) is, for lack of a better description, sick with fever.

When a human being is experiencing discord and dis-ease, the first sign of illness is a change in your body temperature. All of manifested creation can be identified by each individual fragment's identity temperature; this denotes location and position on God's "evolutionary scale". All mineral, plant, and animal life forms are created by the SAME process in God's Thought-Projection Light-Wave Universe. This process applies to planets as well.

When you look at planets such as Mars, you are witnessing a world that has experienced extreme “fever” and rendered its atmosphere uninhabitable to human life. Nothing could grow on the surface that could sustain man, and even his animals and plants perished. Your ancestors on that planet left you messages to warn you, “DON’T REPEAT OUR MISTAKES!!” WHAT REMAINS OF THE “GOD OF WAR”, AS MARS IS REFERRED TO IN YOUR ASTROLOGICAL TEXTS, IS A PHYSICAL REMINDER OF WHERE EARTH IS HEADED. The popular “face” on the planet surface tells you WHO lived there and caused what you now see of your once beautiful neighbor.

This is what happens when comparatively unevolved humans utilize physically superior toys (energy weapons and technology) to quell social disturbances or force their brothers into servitude or try to “erase” those among their species who they themselves (in their limited and warped perceptions) deem UNDESIRABLE. (That’s a word currently bandied about at your kindling flashpoints of barbarous confrontations.) It only takes one incident, chelas, to start the chain reaction that culminates with the destruction of your very home.

DOOM AND GLOOM IS NOT THE ORDER OF THE DAY

It is not that WE enjoy bringing you news about what is wrong with your society; it is just that there IS so much being tampered with that is UNACCEPTABLE FOR MAN TO TAMPER WITH! Because of man’s free will choice, he has chosen to tinker with the things that greatly shorten his lessons of manifested experience. It is the willful and wanton destruction of your environment and surrounding indigenous inhabitants—the fish, animals, insects, vegetation, AND HUMANS—which causes great suffering at the hands of your experiments and greedy profit-making enterprises. In order for ALL created things to exist in harmony, BALANCE must be achieved and maintained.

To hunt, fish and over-“develop” your planet into extinction is not logical. To continually TAKE from your nurturing mother and give no thought as to what you are to give back is not a reasonable procedure whereby this host can maintain her own existence without outside help or urgent self-cleansing actions.

Your greedy adversaries have hidden the CONSEQUENCES of your nuclear testings and overproduction of material things. Your Hopi Native American brothers have long told you that continually taking more than you or your people “need” is a sign that you are approaching “the end times”. They have told you these things because they hoped you would heed the warning and turn back to the Law of Balance in order to save your (THEIR) world in time.

Those who are in service to God-Aton would much rather remind you of your Divine Heritage and speak of experiences of your past glories with and among your Cosmic Brethren, but if you have no planet upon which to share these things, it would be a most difficult goal to accomplish.

Is this all you have to look forward to—catastrophes and sufferings and death? No. However, your actions, as guided by the evil brotherhood, are creating just such a future for you. Precious ones, these circumstances ARE PREVENTABLE; THAT IS WHY WE SPEAK OF THE THINGS YOU WOULD

RATHER NOT HEAR—TO SAVE YOU THE EXPERIENCE OF LEARNING YOUR LESSON THE HARD WAY.

I and my compatriots will go on bringing forth TRUTH and instruction until you either turn around your course of self-annihilation, or (depending on which scenario you create) see to it that a remnant makes it through. Hopefully it won't be by removal of every SOULED lifeform from this orb during a repeat performance of your "play" on the red planet.

GIANT TIDAL WAVES AND A WORLD ECONOMY ON THE BRINK

These are your own gloomy headlines and maybe it is YOU who should be more blunt about what is going on these days. You are experiencing the Book of Revelation right before your eyes, yet no one notices the fringe effects and their broad ramifications.

How is it that you have all of these hundred-year, destructive phenomena—never before seen in these parts in current history—coinciding with the incredible downturn your civilization is taking? *These are not coincidences, chelas, and your evil controllers are not wasting any opportunities to make use of the discord, for in their blind, maddened march to gain control of a planet—AT ALL COSTS—they have stepped up the destructive technologies that have gotten you into this predicament in the first place.

The roller coaster behavior and maneuvering of your stock market, as well as the Monopoly-game-like trading of your businesses and industries overseas, are indications that your secret government's executive branch, the elite Bilderberger Society (of which Mr. Bush and Mr. Clinton are high-level members), is implementing their final plan in preparation to unveiling their New World Order.

When you go over the Communist Manifesto, the Protocols Of The Learned Elders Of Zion, the UN Charter, or the various collected mandates for a fascist state, you will note a common theme that calls for the stripping away of all financial and economic stability and national pride shortly before the government URNS UPON THE PEOPLE WHO PUT THEM IN POWER.

You are even betrayed as to the election process of your governmental so-called representatives, for you do not select them; they are picked FOR YOU, guaranteeing that you choose among the dregs of the establishment's elite deceivers. And then electronic manipulation of the voting process insures the "proper" outcome. Their criteria for allowing you the privilege of "choosing" among the candidates IS BASED ON BLOOD RELATIONS AND FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS TIES, ensuring that decisions regarding industry and use of vast national and world resources fall in the hands of one of their own. After all, they can't very well trust you-the-people to safeguard their hordes of gold and property, now can they?

RACE BECOMES THE CARD UP THE SLEEVE

In order to ensure their paltry numbers remain a tour de force, it is necessary for the elite manipulators to sow dissension and mistrust among those not of them. That is why everywhere you turn you are faced with new and ever increasing racial confrontations—each more heinous than the one before, until you are embroiled in another Civil War.

Civil Wars of “ethnic cleansing”, or tribal battles over religion or where your children go to school, are fertile ground to seed dissension. Your adversary knows this and keeps this uppermost in your current events—films, TV, music, and now Internet sites filled to overflow with violence in one form or another.

Children are not born with the idea of racism—THEY ARE TAUGHT IT! And your various forms of media are good teachers, are they not? When will you, as thoughtful American citizens, take back your airwaves and theater and replace that which promotes hatred and violence with what is harmonious to your souls as Godly human beings? When does it become preferable to educate in GOD-ness and mutual respect of your fellow man, rather than glorify the carnal side of human behavior?

If you do not change the content of that with which you are being steadily programed, there will be nothing left of decent example to present as choices for your children—or you. Can you not see that “divide and conquer” is killing your dreams of peace and prosperity?

SEXUAL PREFERENCE:
A DISTRACTION AIMED SQUARELY
AT THE CONSTITUTION

Even your enemies bicker among themselves over differences attributable to color or sexual preference, and have got you hopping on the same bandwagon. Sexual orientation is going to be THE THORNY DIVIDING LINE THAT SIGNALS YOUR DOWNFALL AS A CIVILIZATION.

In other “great” civilizations, rampant homosexuality, bestiality, and abhorrent abuse of children was always the final closing act as a society spiraled into oblivion. Am I against those who love their own kind? Of course not. All of God’s fragments are EQUALLY LOVED and cherished. But even heterosexuality is flagrantly practiced and flaunted as if privacy no longer played a part in the sharing of two humans in that most precious of Divine unions.

WHAT TWO (NOT THREE, FOUR, OR MORE) PEOPLE DO IN THE BEDROOM OF THEIR OWN HOME IS NONE OF MY BUSINESS. HOWEVER, I DO SUGGEST THEY BE SURE THEY KNOW WHAT THEY ARE DOING. AND IF IT GOES AGAINST THE LAWS AS LAID DOWN BY THE CREATOR, AND THEY DISREGARD THOSE LAWS, THEN THE CONSEQUENCES REST SOLELY WITH THEM, NOT GOD. FURTHER, YOU ALSO BECOME ANSWERABLE TO THE ONE YOU SO-CALL “LOVE”. ISN’T SAVING THEIR LIFE WORTH FOLLOWING THOSE LAWS? YOU WERE GIVEN A WONDROUS VEHICLE TO CHERISH AND RESPECT, AND IN SO DOING IT WILL REWARD THE GOD ESSENCE THAT RESIDES WITHIN BY ALLOWING YOU MAXIMUM POTENTIAL TO ACQUIRE JOY AND REMAIN IN GOOD HEALTH. BUT AS HUMANS GO, THIS IS NEVER SEEN AS “ENOUGH”, AND ALWAYS “MORE” IS SOUGHT—GREATER PLEASURES ARE DESIRED UNTIL, FINALLY, THE “FLESH” BECOMES YOUR CENTRAL FOCUS. REMEMBER: TOO MUCH OF ANYTHING CAN BE DAMAGING TO YOUR SPIRIT AND CONTAINER BODY.

If I seem passionate about this subject it is because I am! I am an etheric being with capability to manifest as what you would consider solid physical mass—and I see the effects of these damaging emotional sexual addictions. God did not create your sex organs to be “play things” of immoral impulse. He created them to be the sacred organs with which man CO-CREATES, WITH GOD, HUMAN LIFE. This is a most beautiful miracle allowing you to know participation in God’s ways!

Your adversary uses the resulting debasing and debilitating effects of sexual abuse of the body to further gain control over you. Satan’s workers KNOW what buttons to push.

For those of you buying into the misguided perception of sexual preference being likened to Civil Rights of human beings, it is like apples and oranges. Sexuality has no bearing on the issue of color or race of people. The manner in which you are treated because of what you “look like” versus how you behave are separate and individual grounds for judgement. However, since man is not to judge man in the first place, you should be allowed to have the same “rights” as any other fragment of God’s many and varied manifested reflections. Remember that only man’s ACTIONS are to be judged by man as to whether or not they correspond to the Laws of God and the Laws of Man—AS THEY APPLY TO YOUR PERSONAL TRANSGRESSIONS OR OTHERS ONLY.

When God’s all-encompassing Play of Creation is complete—when all races of beings and all things come back into THE ONE—you will again know that there is truly no difference and no separation between any of you. Just as with the splitting of the One White Light into the many spectral colors, so too is it with God’s Oneness reflected into His many expressions of mankind.

Do not allow these conjured separations to do you in, chelas. Those who KNOW God know of their connection to their brothers, be they the ones across the galaxy, beyond thy borders, or over the fence. This one challenge will be your ultimate undoing through division, or your saving grace through unification.

May Love of thy neighbor and of God guide you and open your eyes to who the troublemakers really are. We can give you information, but if you refuse to look and consider that which we bring, you are doomed and gloomed to evil’s version of the ending times.

God’s Ones prefer to CREATE “beginning times” of harmony and peace and allow Lucifer’s days to wane in the ruins of self defeat. You do not have to participate in your adversary’s game, friends. Further, it is your lack of joining in that hastens his retreat. Ponder that.

These are trying times for you, my scribe, as well as your fellow workers. Hold fast to that which gives you strength and you will witness God’s miracles soon enough. That should be comfort to those who know that Aton, The One Light, wins in the end.

NEVER DO YE WALK ALONE! Commander Tomeros Maasu Korton to standby, please. Salu!

We have been advised on good authority HR 2431 is being moved to the House floor. Be very steady, firm, and in prayer. E-Mail may be the best way to communicate among ourselves, but letters and faxes to Congress must be signed and require an answer to be an effective deterrent. No Congressman fears an anonymous form-letter writer. ACT NOW! Please be graphic and very personal with your Congressman, and mean what you say. We hope you will read and quote from the following news story which contains exceptional research into the evil intent of sanctions.

—Chuck Carlson

From: “elh” <elh@frontiernet.net>

Both Liberals and Conservatives Promote Religious Persecution Monitoring Bill, by Le Ann Sluga.

How can liberals and conservatives agree on anything? Give them a bill that promises bigger government for the democrats and name it “The Freedom from Religious Persecution Act”, to draw conservatives, and you have HR2431.

Congress is promising to pass the bill into law by Easter and hardly anyone is opposing them. Is this bill too good to be true? I think so! The bill will be used to appoint a director of a new office, to investigate and recommend sanctions on countries or groups engaged in religious persecution. It sounds compassionate, but it is anything but.

Lawmakers promise “the Office of Religious Persecution Monitoring” will remain small. Weren’t we told that about the IRS and the EPA too? The sanctions can be imposed without congressional approval. The director need only send a list of items to sanction he “deems necessary”, along with a report of alleged persecution, to the President. The bill gives this director and the President power prohibited by our Constitution. Besides, can you really trust a Clinton appointee on this one? Let’s not forget his push for the “Most Favored Nation Status” of China.

You can’t monitor religious persecution without monitoring religion and defining it, something prohibited by the Constitution for good reason. It’s too easy to use those definitions by a President of any party to “defining” a group that opposes their political agenda, as “religiously persecuting” his party favorites. This bill is bad for all Americans. The bill calls for fines and/or imprisonment on US citizens, businesses, or organizations caught “trading with the enemies”. Sanctions on Sudan in this bill ask for a complete air embargo. That means anyone who sends “care packages” to missionaries or family in Sudan could be jailed up to ten years for this “crime of compassion”. Besides, when do sanctions help a persecuted people? Won’t the leaders of the countries withhold food and medicine, first from those they dislike most?

Though Clinton has feigned opposition to the bill, he nevertheless called for emergency sanctions on Sudan last November, when the bill did not pass last session. What was the emergency?

Some say it was an acceleration of persecution of non-Muslims in a self-proclaimed Jihad by the Sudanese government. Stories of the slaughter and enslavement of millions were told in congressional hearings, and were spread to thousands of churches in America, through videos and films. Meanwhile, Black America was being told stories of government-led slavery rings in Sudan.

Yet, others have reported a different story. Eyewitnesses tell of rebel troops supplied with US and Israeli weapons and an unending supply of mercenaries from surrounding countries, receiving millions in US foreign aid. There are also reports that Sudan has over 95% support of its people to form a Sovereign Islamic Democracy, free of UN interference. Congressmen Matt Salmon (R.-Ariz.) tried to figure out who was telling the truth, through a fact-finding mission in January. Clinton’s sanctions however, prevented the trip. Could the real emergency be that Clinton was going to be caught in another lie?

Could these sanctions and the whole bill have more to do with a UN power-grab than religious persecution? That would explain why the bill refers to UN documents and completely ignores the US Constitution. If this is a picture of how thorough this new office will be “investigating persecution”, I think we ought to think twice.

A handful of opponents are making ripples, in a grassroots effort to warn America about the bill. Black Activists and Muslim organizations like Jamaat al-Muslimeen International are exposing what they call “propaganda of government-led slavery” in Sudan. Meanwhile, small conservative groups, like the American Family Association and “We Hold These Truths”, dispel myths of exaggerated reports of Christian persecution in Sudan, circulating in Christian circles. Why does the mix of opponents seem as odd as the mix of supporters? Comments from Herb Titus of the US Taxpayers Party, may shed some light.

As a Constitutional Lawyer, Titus says, the bill could prohibit the formation of any “Muslim or Christian” democracy. “In fact,” says Titus, “if this kind of law were in place when our country was being formed, this law would have forbidden us to do so.” Nerim Ai’im, who lived in Sudan ten months, says she’s convinced Black Americans are being used by supporters of this bill by “opening up the sore of slavery, that is still healing”.

Chuck Carlson, from “We Hold These Truths”, says Christians are also “being used”. Michael Horowitz from “the globalist Hudson Foundation”, says Carlson admits authorship of the bill and “One World Government promoters like Freedom House”, are responsible for some of the Sudan misinformation in churches, says Carlson.

Ai’im says she admits that radical Islamic sects, sometimes even within the government, have engaged in religious persecution, but these actions are not endorsed by Sudan’s government.

If Carlson, Titus and Ai’im are right, can you think of a better way to keep potential opponents of the bill divided or too confused to counter-attack?

Yet this is America. Anything can happen when Americans decide to “search for truth as for fine silver”, as a Biblical proverb teaches. Carlson urges Americans to read the bill for themselves, “those who do are against it, those who haven’t are for it,” says Carlson. It’ll take a miracle to turn this around. Yet, didn’t this grand experiment in liberty seem just about as impossible over 200 years ago? Let’s remember that our vote still counts in America, as do phone calls to congress opposing a bill that the politically-powerful support.

This is her personal opinion about HR2431 and does not necessarily reflect the opinion of this newspaper.)

Addendum: This article appeared in the Shawano Evening Leader April 7th, 1998. Since then, congress convened for Easter break and has returned without placing HR2431 on the floor for a vote. There appears to be a groundswell of grassroots opposition that is growing, especially in the Senate.

It would seem best, from my viewpoint, that we should try to put a stop to this if for no other reason than the bureaucrats will use this for far more than controlling religious persecution. Let's stop this—NOW!!

DISASTER: CHINA TO START WAR BY 2000?

From the INTERNET, courtesy of Calvin Burgin, <wrldline@texas.net>, 6/16/98: [quoting]

July 96, Kevin F. Roth

Found this very disturbing paragraph in this document (term paper?).

Chinese Development and PLA Enterprises: Security Prospects and Implications. Kevin F. Roth.

“...Another major development has been the discovery (apparently by accident) of a ‘banned’ book entitled Can China’s Armed Forces Win the Next War? believed to have been written by PLA Navy personnel. This book highlights the PLA’s expected future confrontations and the necessary types of modernization needed to win these battles. This work significantly calls upon the PLA to prepare to “start a war for total control of the South China Sea before the end of this decade” (Munro 1994, 356). “The PLA must win the conflict quickly and in a limited manner to avoid U.S. or Japanese involvement. Significantly, the authors argue that ‘China must move by the year 2000....’”

The full article is an excellent summation of Chinese efforts at a military buildup and the resulting implications. Very well documented.

PAT ROBERTSON ADVOCATES STONING FOR UFO ENTHUSIASTS

From the INTERNET, 6/17/97: [quoting]

In a recent pronouncement, television evangelist and head of the Christian Coalition, Pat Robertson, advocated death by stoning for UFO enthusiasts.

Freedom Writer magazine, in its July/August [1997] issue, mailed today, disclosed Robertson’s statement. Freedom Writer is published by the Institute for First Amendment Studies, a group that monitors the [political] right.

Robertson used the news of the July 4th Mars landing to promote his extreme beliefs. A segment on the July 8, 1997 broadcast of The 700 Club featured news of the Mars Pathfinder mission. Employing the historical event as a starting point, the program delved into the possibility of the existence of UFOs and space aliens.

While Robertson viewed the space program with suspicion, on a more serious note, he launched into a diatribe against those who entertain the existence of space aliens and UFOs. He said, in a rambling discourse, that if such things exist, they are simply demons trying to lead people away from Christ. According to Robertson, the threat is so serious that people who believe in space aliens should be put to death by stoning—according to “God’s word”.

“The Bible says the Earth belongs to man, but the heavens belong to the Lord,” Robertson said.

“He has given us the Earth. He also warned, way back when Moses was writing down not only what is the Ten Commandments, but Deuteronomy, which is almost the Second Law.

“Here is what he said to the children of Israel about this whole matter:

“If there is found among you, within any of your gates which the Lord your God gives you, a man or a woman who has been wicked in the sight of the Lord your God, in transgressing His covenant, who has gone and served other gods and worshipped them, either the Sun or Moon or any of the hosts of heaven which I have not commanded you, and you hear of it, then you shall inquire diligently. And if it is indeed true and certain that such an abomination has been committed in Israel, then you shall bring out to your gates that man or woman who has committed that wicked thing, and stone to death that man or woman with stones.” (Deuteronomy 17:2-5, NKJV)

“Now, that’s what Moses said to the children of Israel about those who worship the Sun and the Moon and the hosts of heaven, because these things, at best, are lifeless nothings, or, if they are intelligent, they’re demonic. And, yes, there is a host of heaven. There are angels and there are fallen angels. There is no question about it.

“Can a demon appear as a slanty-eyed, funny-looking creature? Of course he can, or it can. Of course they can deceive people. And if they can lead somebody away from the true God, or away from Jesus Christ, anyway it happens, it doesn’t matter, you will lose your salvation. It doesn’t matter how they get you. The question is, did they get you, and under what guise?

“This is man in rebellion against God, who refuses to take God’s Law. And God [Not Aton!!—Maybe Jehovah?] says, ‘My covenant says you won’t do this. And if I find anybody in Israel’—which is his pure nation—‘If I find anybody in Israel that’s doing this sort of thing, then I want you to take him out and dispose of him.’

Skipp Porteous, Freedom Writer publisher, commented: “As the founder and chairman of the Christian Coalition—a group dedicated to becoming the most powerful political force in America—Robertson’s extreme ideas need to be taken seriously, for they not only negate pluralism, but condemn to death those who dare to believe differently.”

The Institute for First Amendment Studies, publisher of Freedom Writer newsletter, monitors the activities of the radical religious right.

Founded in 1984, the Institute is a nonprofit educational and research organization. [End quoting]

Does this sound like a man of God talking or something the evil elitists would say? Use discernment—God does not advocate killing under any circumstances. Think correctly and the answers to all of man’s problems will always support life.

DEPOPULATION NECESSARY!!

From the INTERNET, 6/16/98: [quoting]

According to the German authors, proponents of racial hygiene theories such as Malthus and Darwin argued that the world was in danger of overpopulation because individuals refused to practice selective breeding.

These inhuman theories were quickly taken up by German psychiatrists in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Speaking from ‘eminent’ academic positions, psychiatrists quickly spread the idea that inferior beings were a burden on the state and that they should be sterilized or subjected to a “gentle death”.

Try reading some of the 280 pages at <<http://www.dieoff.org>>. Mass depopulation is upcoming, brought to you by the same folks who were at the recent Bilderberg Meeting. Global 2000, “Limits to Growth”. Get your heads out of the sand, folks.

It’s not just y2k. They will make it look like an “accident”, “terrorism”, “act of god” or all three.

POISONING WATER

Excerpted from THE MODESTO BEE, 6/16/98: [quoting]

A new report from federal scientists reinforces fears that California is poisoning its water in an effort to clean its air.

Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory scientists found that MTBE, a chemical widely added to California gasoline since 1992 to cut toxic auto emissions, has contaminated groundwater at more than 10,000 sites, persists longer and spreads faster than plain gasoline and may prove a “cumulative contamination hazard” as it builds up in groundwater.

Groundwater provides 40 percent to 60 percent of the state's water supply.

Despite concerns raised by the report released last Friday, state water officials say their hands are tied: The federal Clean Air Act requires the use of chemicals such as MTBE—a suspected human carcinogen—to cut smog and other pollutants. What they can do, they say, is try to keep buried gasoline storage tanks from ever leaking MTBE.

But that effort, too, promises to come at a cost: Hundreds of independent gas station owners, mostly in rural areas, are expected to close next year because they can't meet a December 22 deadline—set a decade ago—to replace or upgrade underground tanks.

In the Modoc County town of Likely, population about 200, John Abbate already has shut his gas station and yanked the tank. He said he couldn't afford the $40,000 upgrade.

“Little mom-and-pop operations are in very serious trouble,” said Abbate. [End quoting]

This really isn't about cleaning up the air. If the elite really wanted to clean up the air or the ground and water, one of the highest priorities would be to stop the nuclear bomb testing and the use of nuclear energy. Pollution is big money, if you follow the money trail.

This is about control and the killing off of the “over” population of this planet by the year 2000 goal—and getting your money in the meantime.

GLASS STRONGER THAN STEEL

From POPULAR MECHANICS magazine, July 1998: [quoting]

Scientists, perhaps acting more like alchemists, have mixed up a new metallic glass alloy that could be the multipurpose material of the future.

Promising improvements in products ranging from electric transformers to golf club heads. Metallic glass not only is stronger than normal metals, but also holds its shape better.

“Metallic glass is at least 10 times more elastic than metal,” says Todd Hufnagel, a Johns Hopkins University researcher.

Metallic glass forms when molten metal cools without crystallizing. Like window glass, atoms arrange themselves randomly. But metallic glass is neither transparent nor brittle.

The alloy could also offer new military applications, such as armor-piercing bullets. [End quoting]

If this material is allowed public announcement, just think of what others are hidden from our awareness and use.

ULTRA-TENSILE STEEL FOR TIRES

From POPULAR MECHANICS magazine, July 1998: [quoting]

Steel cord is replacing polyester as the reinforcement material of choice in the body plies of passenger car tires for the first time, says Goodyear.

The global tire manufacturer has developed a super flexible Ultra-Tensile Steel wire about twice as thick as a human hair (.007 in.). Six of them wound into a cord are so strong that they take the place of four individual polyester cords, which saves weight. And the Ultra-Tensile cord is 40% stronger than conventional steel wire used in tire belts. Goodyear claims 30% better treadwear.

Look for these all-steel tires in popular car sizes under the Aquasteel and Eagle F1 Steel model lines in regular and run-flat Extended Mobility Technology (EMT). On a related note, Goodyear says its new IMPACT (Integrated Manufacturing Precision Assembled Cellular Technology) manufacturing is 135% more productive, 70% faster and 43% more precise than today’s processes. Bottom line: better tires. Goodyear’s objective is to eventually use EMT to eliminate spare tires in 75% of all vehicles. [End quoting]

Sure would be nice not to have to lug around that spare tire. But they’ve been telling us for decades they were going to make tires so that we wouldn't need the space anymore.

YELTSIN PRESENTS
NEW PUBLIC IMAGE

From the INTERNET, 6/22/98: [quoting]

A Russian lawmaker has formally asked the nation's top investigator to look into whether President Boris Yeltsin has been replaced by a double, a newspaper reported Thursday.

Deputy Alexander Saly said the president's appearance and actions have seemed suspicious since his 1996 re-election, the daily Moskovsky Komsomolets reported.

"The difference between the pre-election Yeltsin and the post-election Yeltsin simply jumps out at you," the paper quoted Saly as saying.

Since his second inauguration, Yeltsin has fired most of his old staffers and installed new ones, the Communist Party deputy was quoted as saying.

Yeltsin used to hide his left hand, which is missing two fingers, but now displays it freely, Saly said.

And, Saly suggested, Yeltsin's daughter has become the president's official "image" maker—to advise the "new" Yeltsin how to walk and talk like the original, the newspaper said.

Saly, a member of the lower house of parliament's committee on elections, said he has backing within his party but acknowledged that the support from the leadership has not been particularly vocal.

The newspaper did not say when Saly filed the request, or whether the investigator, the general procurator, has responded.

No one answered the telephone at Saly's parliament office late Thursday. A duty officer at the general procurator's office said he had no information about the report.

"Of course there are more than a few people in this world who see flying saucers every day, who contact the spirit world, who try to catch ghosts in their hands," the paper editorialized. "But usually, they are not deputies in the State Duma who write legislation and take part in the country's political life." [End quoting]

I think all regular CONTACT readers know the answer to this.

FDA ATTEMPTS TO COMPEL DESTRUCTION OF BOOKS

On Natural Herbal Supplement Stevia

From the INTERNET, 6/21/98: [quoting]

“Freedom of the Press embraces the circulation of books as well as their publication.” —from Judge’s ruling in Bantam Books v Sullivan [1963]

DALLAS—May 26, 1998—In an unprecedented move, US Food and Drug Administration officials threatened legal action against Texas-based Stevita Co., importers of the sweet-tasting herbal dietary supplement, stevia—for distributing books and literature about their product.

The latest volley in a bitter battle has been fired at Texas-based Stevita Co. by federal Food and Drug Administration officials. The FDA, an agency of the federal government, is responsible for upholding the U.S. Constitution which guarantees freedom of speech and expression. This responsibility was drawn into question on May 19th when FDA Compliance Officer, James R. Lahar faxed a letter to Stevita Co. addressing the destruction of 2,500 books he deemed “offending”, at a cost to the company well in excess of $10,000. The letter further threatens that investigators will conduct a current inventory and “witness the destruction of the cookbooks, literature, and other publications for the purpose of verifying compliance” upon visiting Stevita Co. for a fourth time this year.

One of three books in question is The Stevia Story—A tale of incredible sweetness & intrigue, by Linda Bonvie, Bill Bonvie and Donna Gates with Foreword by James S. Turner, Esq. Ironically, Chapter Four of the book the FDA wants to destroy is titled: “What’s wrong with the FDA?” An attempt to strongarm critics into silence—similar to book burnings in Nazi Germany? Oscar Rodes, President of the Stevita Company said the FDA ordered the action because the books contain general information that includes history, usage and scientific studies regarding stevia.

Currently, Federal law requires stevia herbal products can only be marketed as dietary supplements without any mention of having sweetening power.

NATIONAL HATE CRIMES
WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

From the INTERNET, 5/15/98: [quoting]

In preparation for the first ever White House conference on hate crime held on November 10, 1997, the president said: “As part of our preparation for the new century, it is time for us to mount an all-out assault on hate crimes, to punish them swiftly and severely.” This cabinet level conference on hate was attended by the country’s top leaders: the president and vicepresident, the attorney general, most cabinet members, and a whole array of law enforcement representatives.

Mr. Clinton announced new federal initiatives to prevent and punish hate crimes. The initiatives focus on: expanding federal hate crimes legislation, ensuring effective enforcement of hate crimes laws, promoting information collection systems on hate crimes, and educating the American people.

Justice Department will increase the number of FBI agents and federal prosecutors for hate crimes enforcement. This addition will more than double the number of federal agents and prosecutors currently assigned to work in this newly expanded category.

The government has created “model training curriculum” for law enforcement in this “war on hate”, in addition to enhanced sentencing for those accused of hate crimes. Attorney General Janet Reno summed up the goal of the conference by saying that the whole agenda is “designed with one objective in mind, to eliminate hate.” [End quoting]

This is nothing but another method to build hate in the communities. The evil feed from the negative energies of fear and hate. Hate is a result of fear and greed. The more evil can cause you to put forth these energies the better they like it. Quit feeding them these energies and you’ll help save your own necks. When you put out negative energies it will always come back to you!

AUSTRALIANS SLAP PLUTOCRATS

POPULIST VICTORY

p.hanson

Australia’s establishment has been rocked by fish-and-chip shop owner Pauline Hanson’s One Nation Party. A grassroots, populist group ignored by everyone in power, the party won up to 12 seats in Queensland, in its first election ever. Prime Minister John Howard may now be forced to put off scheduled major elections as estimates show the new party holds from 15 to 47 percent of the vote in various areas. Its straightforward platform calls for cutting Asian immigration, scrapping special land ownership rights for aborigines, banning foreigners from owning over 49 percent of any local business and tariffs to protect Australian businesses. Citibank economists say “overseas markets may punish Australia” for the latter affront. [End quoting]

Seems to me like they have, at least, one part of the platform they need to look carefully at and that is the taking of lands from the aboriginals

CALL IT CULTURAL ENRICHMENT

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/29/98: [quoting]

In his acceptance speech for an annual Mexican governmental monetary prize for journalistic achievement, Luis Rubio, a think tank analyst and columnist for Reforma newspaper, voiced the open secret that government officials regularly bribe Mexican journalists for “rosy news coverage”. Many poorly salaried journalists, especially the presidential press corps, live high lifestyles. “On the government’s part, the practices of bribery and intimidation persist,” concluded Rubio in the presence of President Ernesto Zedillo, who remained expressionless. [End quoting]

This is common practice in the U.S. also. Check out the hundreds of cushy jobs, etc., that ex-news people have in the U.S. if you don’t believe me.

NAFTA DISASTA’

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/29/98: [quoting]

North Dakota farmers are used to hard times. Weather cycles can be brutally fickle there. This year they face a new antagonist along with two straight years of crop-destroying weather and disease. Farm income has declined 98 percent, from $764 million to $15 million, leaving an average of $500 for a year’s work. Sen. Kent Conrad (D-N.D.), at a Senate Agricultural Committee hearing on trade policy, called it a “stealth disaster”, caused by “disease, low prices and the free trade policy. We have a flood of unfairly-traded Canadian grain coming into this country.” [End quoting]

To my way of thinking it sure is a “stealth disaster” and probably the term was used knowingly, thinking no one would catch the truth of how the elite is stealing the land and destroying crops so we will starve at their desired timing. The Canadians ship their grain here and then the elite destroy it here or ship it overseas.

Don’t forget the elite intend to kill off millions of Americans within the next couple of years—if they can get away with it.

SO DOES THE SIERRA CLUB

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/29/98: [quoting]

By a 60.1 percent to 39.2 percent vote, members of the Sierra Club voted against immigration control. This in the face of statistics showing that 60 percent of our population growth is from immigrants, most of whom have no concern for our environment. Members of the club are more aware than most that each day 3.2 billion gallons of water are taken from our aquifers over and above what nature replaces. But apparently its true agenda leans more toward globalist aims than conservation of our environment. [End quoting]

This should make it obvious what their true agenda is and it certainly isn’t to benefit the immigrants or us. They use any resource they can—humans are just another resource—to take over control and enslave us.

CALIFORNIANS DON’T

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/29/98: [quoting]

The California Coalition for Immigrant Reform has erected a billboard on Interstate 10 near the California-Arizona border which reads “Welcome to California, the Illegal Immigrant State. Don’t let this happen in your state.” That stretch of Interstate serves 18,000 cars and trucks per day. [End quoting]

If more people would speak out and act out their frustrations in non-violent ways we could stop this lunacy of present immigration to downgrade this country and take over full control.

ISRAELI REFUGEES

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/29/98: [quoting]

Canada, against Israel’s protests, still accepts refugees from Israel. Figures are down from previous years as the Israeli lobby is relentless in its insistence that Israel is a democracy and can have no refugees. Ottawa hears the plea, but Montreal is less easily swayed. Most seekers of refugee status are Jews from the Soviet Union who found in Israel no jobs or housing, harassment and sometimes beatings. Refugees from Israel are unheard of in the U.S. [End quoting]

They just don’t call them refugees here.

INTERNET SCAMS

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 6/29/98: [quoting]

The Consumer Response Center of the Federal Trade Commission at 6th St. and Pennsylvania Ave., NW, Washington, D.C. 20580, has put out an alert concerning an Internet spin on the old “start your own business” pyramid scams. The alert is titled Net-Based Business Opportunities: Are Some Flop-portunities? [End quoting]

One of the biggest scammers of all—the FTC—have the gall to call others scammers. They should be an example if they want others to be honest. They’re probably worried because they won’t get their cut when they operate outside the FTC goon-squad laws.

IT’S NOT JUST FOR KIDS

From Focus On The Family, July, 1998: [quoting]

Charles Hobdy was once a business manager. He had a good job, made good money. Then he found drugs.

Jeff Gordon was a corporate vice president. He also had a nine-year cocaine habit. When he received a job promotion and transfer, his friends gave him a significant going-away present: a package of cocaine.

Neither Charles nor Jeff fits the Stereotype of a drug user: They are not poor, they are not unemployed, not homeless. They are educated and successful. Jeff did not consider himself an addict; he was a “casual” user.

* Only kids abuse drugs.

* Drug abuse is a “victimless” crime.

FACE REALITY

Consider this: According to the National Institute on Drug Abuse, if every worker between ages 18 and 40 were tested for drugs on any given day, between 14 percent and 25 percent would test positive. And according to the U.S. Department of Labor, each substance abuser costs a company $9,660 per year.

“It’s time to face facts,” says Milton Creagh, the anti-drug speaker featured in Focus on the Family’s “Masquerade” video, who encourages viewers to “take off the mask” about drug abuse among children and teens.

“In some ways the drug problem [among adults] is getting worse simply because it’s an issue we don’t discuss,” he says. “I usually talk about illegal drugs, but if you add the legal drug of alcohol, then we’ve got a major abuse problem.

“When it comes to adults, we have an additional problem in that there are seniors abusing prescription drugs, which, again, people don’t like to talk about, but it’s reality,” he says.

Focus on the Family has produced a new video with Milton, which addresses adult drug abuse. Called “Face Reality,” it is intended to be used by:

* corporate executives, human resource departments and other groups that need a tool to help address adult drug abuse.

* physicians and therapists, church ministries, and other groups working with adult and family issues.

“By and large, when we talk about the drug problem, we don’t talk about adults, we talk about kids,”

Milton says. “Usually, when we talk about drug prevention or early intervention, we’re either talking about children, or we’re talking about stopping drugs at the border.

“But we don’t talk about intervention strategies or drug prevention regarding adults,” he says. “Believe it or not, some people begin using as adults.”

And make no mistake, he warns. Even “casual” substance abuse is everyone’s problem.

“If I leave my home this afternoon with my kids in the car and a driver under the influence hits us and kills one of my children, the question is not, ‘Was this his first time getting high?’ It’s irrelevant to me whether it was his first time or it was his 500th time. The relevant issue to me is that I’ve lost a child.” [End quoting]

Probably why the elite don’t publicize this hidden drug problem is because there is too much money involved and they are not the “common” robber, rapist, murderer, etc. But CONTACT readers know that our biggest problems are not caused by the “common” mobster—they are caused by the “white collar” mobsters and they in turn blame the “common” ones—whom they control.

JUDGMENT TIME FOR STATE BAR

Restriction by governor on dues has group facing insolvency

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 6/21/98: [quoting]

The State Bar of California is in a jam, and not even the lawyers who belong to it are rushing to defend it.

As cop, tax collector and lobbyist for a profession held in low esteem by the public, the nation’s largest state organization of lawyers has managed to offend practically everyone—chief among them Gov. Pete Wilson, who in fall stripped the bar of its authority to collect dues.

As a result, the bar has laid off most of its employees, stopped taking calls about incompetent or dishonest lawyers and is about to run out of money.

Wilson, a lawyer himself, is untroubled by the prospect. In vetoing the dues bill last October, the Republican said that the bar was “bloated, arrogant, oblivious and unresponsive” and that it meddles in liberal causes such as same-sex marriages, reduced drug penalties and racial diversity in law schools.

Now, whenever Wilson gets on a plane, “every lawyer gets on a conga line to high-five him for his efforts to reform the bar,” Wilson spokesman Sean Walsh said. “There is no more good will left in the Legislature or the Governor’s Office for the Bar.”

The bar “got so big and so arrogant, that it deserved the dumping”, said Joseph J. Malandra, a 28-year lawyer who has a one-person general practice in San Francisco.

He complained that he has to pay the same dues as the big firm, high-income lawyers, as well as escalating prices for the 12-hour, state-mandated, continuing-education course, a requirement he called useless.

The bar, with 160,000 members, is a victim of both its own missteps and problems not entirely of its own making.

Its mandatory membership rule, contained in the California Constitution and shared by many other state bars, was only a minor annoyance for most lawyers 15 years ago, when dues were under $200.

But dues soared to $458—more than twice the national average—after the bar, under pressure from the Legislature, overhauled its volunteer-run system of disciplining lawyers by hiring professional investigators and judges.

The bar's biggest political blunder was probably its endorsement of an unsuccessful bill that would have allowed bigger damage awards in medical malpractice cases. The move only antagonized the medical profession and the insurance industry, which lobbied Wilson to veto the dues bill.

The governor's antagonism for the bar dates back to at least 1982, when as a Senate candidate he was censured by a bar group for threatening to lead a recall of the state Supreme Court if it overturned a crime initiative.

More recently, Wilson got angry when a bar commission that evaluates candidates for the bench gave an "unqualified" rating to his most recent Supreme Court nominee.

Two weeks ago, Wilson announced his terms for saving the bar. Among them: reducing dues to $295 a year and transforming the bar's policy-making board into a body appointed by the governor. Wilson said the bar's functions should be limited to admissions, discipline and education, and it should drop political advocacy.

But bar leaders, joined by Democrats in the Legislature, rejected the proposal, saying that the dues cut would be crippling and that the change in the board would end the bar's 71 years of political independence.

"There is no place for politics in the administration of justice," said Marc Adelman, the San Diego lawyer who is serving a painful one-year term as bar president.

The bar's chief legislative ally, Assemblyman Robert Hertzberg, D-Van Nuys, said the impasse will probably continue until a new governor takes office next year.

In the meantime, the bar has virtually shut down its lawyer discipline system. Nearly 500 of the bar's 620 employees have gotten layoff notices, most effective next Friday. By mid-July, it said, the bar will run out of money and halt practically everything but testing and admission of new lawyers. [End quoting]

I'm glad to hear they are getting their actions cramped, but I'm not holding my breath for any real reforms until the whole ratpack of politicians are thrown out—just another fracas between the mobsters and we usually lose because of them. Our day is coming—soon!

SUICIDE PREVENTION

From THE MODESTO BEE, 6/16/98: [quoting]

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an attorney who fights psychiatric malpractice. I've seen many families agonize over deaths that could have been prevented. While we have been told that no one is to blame when someone takes his or her own life, many deaths could be averted if mental health workers, physicians and families would simply stop, look and listen.

The American Foundation for Suicide Prevention says up to two-thirds of the people who commit suicide each year saw a medical doctor within a month of their death. Half of those patients killed themselves with medicines prescribed by their doctors. While the suicides of teenagers and members of minority groups are a serious problem, few people realize that fully one-third of all suicides are White men over 50.

Suicide is not a random act. Members of the medical and mental health communities must take notice of the changes that occur when a person is becoming suicidal. Physicians should be as aware of the symptoms of life-threatening mental illness as they are of signs of physical illness.

Families can be lifesavers, too. Seventy-five percent of all those who commit suicide give friends and family members some warning. If you see the danger signs, please take them seriously, and get help for your loved one right away. Those symptoms include:

1. Depressed mood or a dramatic loss of appetite and energy.
2. Talking about death and dying. Saying such things as "You'd be better off without me."
3. Demonstration of extreme anxiety, agitation or rage.
4. Excessive drug or alcohol use.
5. Planning for suicide, such as paying of debts, changing wills or giving things away.

The more we know about suicide, the better able we are to help potential victims seek another alternative.
—Skip Simpson, Dallas

Dear Skip Simpson: You have written a letter that could save lives. If only those who are considering suicide could keep repeating to themselves "And this, too, shall pass"—and believe it, they just might crawl out of that deep, dark hole. [End quoting]

With a little more awareness many probably could be saved.

CITIZENS CAN SUE FEC

From THE MODESTO BEE, 6/2/98: [quoting]

The Supreme Court is letting private citizens second-guess the Federal Election Commission, ruling Monday that they can sue over the agency's decisions not to require financial disclosure from certain groups. But the 6-3 decision spared a pro-Israel lobbying group from telling how money it spent on election-connected communications with its members. Left undecided was whether the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, or AIPAC, is a "political committee" subject to federal campaign regulations on spending and reporting. That determination was left for the FEC under new rules for distinguishing political committees from membership organizations. [End quoting]

But how many lawyers, how much time, and how much money will it take??

OUT FOR THUGS

Excerpted from THE TORONTO STAR, by Anne Dawson, 6/8/98: [quoting]

Almost 400 rapists, murderers and other convicted criminals were allowed into Canada last year under special permits granted by Immigration Minister Lucienne Robillard.

According to the immigration minister's annual report tabled in the Commons, 4,059 minister's permits were issued in 1997. Of those, almost four of every 10 went to convicted criminals.

Opposition MPs and Tory Senator Donald Oliver were outraged that Canada is laying out the "welcome mat" for so many convicted felons.

"We should be keeping criminals out, not letting them in," Oliver said. "Is this the type of people we should be welcoming to Canada?"

Reform MP Deepak Obhrai said minister's permits for convicted criminals should be banned outright.

'RIGHT TO KNOW'

Reform MP John Reynolds called on the minister to make public the details and names of these individuals so Canadians can assess for themselves whether they deserve to be allowed to come to Canada.

"Why don't we have a right to know who they are?" he asked. "Maybe there's a good reason they should come to Canada, but how do we know some of them aren't pedophiles. We don't even know where they go once they get here."

Robillard's report showed a total of 1,497 permits were issued to criminally inadmissible people, a decrease of 4.8% from 1996... [End quoting]

Why would the elite want good honest people brought in? “Birds of a feather stick together.” They can’t easily control the good honest people and the game is all about control and making money off the slaves.

SPECIAL DELIVERY

I walked into the room and gasped. A rough-looking man sat at our kitchen table.

“Bye bye, Daddy,” I called from the curb, echoing four-year-old Peggy Jean. I put my arm around her shoulder, drawing her close, and we waved till my husband drove out of sight. This was Lee’s first day on his new job with Montgomery Ward, and we’d just moved to a rented home in Galesburg, Ill., from Niantic, 130 miles away. I looked at the tidy brick houses around us, suddenly feeling very alone. Until that summer in 1943 we’d lived near family and friends. This was a city of thousands, and I didn’t even know our neighbors yet. How would I cope? God will provide, I reminded myself, thinking of the expression I’d heard my mother-in-law use time and time again.

“Can you help Mommy unpack?” I asked, managing a smile for Peggy Jean. She nodded. Inside I checked on her baby brother. Gordon was sleeping soundly in his crib, so we went to the back of the house, where all the boxes were waiting.

I walked into the kitchen and gasped. A stranger was seated at the table—a rough-looking man with a beard, long hair and worn clothes. I don’t know how he got in. It wasn’t uncommon in those days for hoboes to knock on the door searching for a hot meal, but I never expected to find one in the house.

“Who are you?” I demanded, trying to keep the fear out of my voice. I stood firm in the doorway, shielding my daughter.

“I’m your egg man,” he replied. “But I don’t have an egg man,” I declared. “Oh, yes, you do,” he answered quietly but firmly. “I will bring you two dozen each week.”

“How much are they?” I asked.

“A price you can afford,” he said. Sure enough, it was less than the store charges.

“All right,” I said, still not certain this was the best thing to do.

True to his word, the man began delivering eggs. Every Wednesday after the breakfast chores were done and the children were tended to I’d come into the kitchen and find him sitting at the table. His appearance may have been rough, but his manner was gentle. Each week he chatted with us, his friendly eyes crinkling at the corners, and he always asked to say prayers before he left. I began to look forward to his visits. In fact, he helped me feel at home in this strange, new place.

Then the widow from whom we were renting returned from her travels and we had to move again. We found a two-story frame house far on the other side of town. It had a large yard with room for the children to play. I told the egg man we were leaving, but in the hubbub of moving I forgot to give him our new address.

In the new house my loneliness returned. Lee had been promoted to district manager, which meant he was on the road all week long. Gordon was one year old by that time, and a handful, walking and climbing everywhere. I was in the midst of a difficult pregnancy, and on top of that I came down with the flu. It was all I could do to get through the day.

One morning I dragged myself into the kitchen feeling worse than ever. Seated at the table was the egg man. Never had I seen a more welcome sight.

“I feel terrible,” I whispered.

“Then we’d best pray,” he said.

The man called for Peggy Jean and Gordon. He lifted Gordon with his big, rough hands and set him down before a chair, where we knelt in prayer. With a child on each side, I listened as he asked God to comfort and heal me, his words warming me. When we stood up I felt a little better.

“You are a good woman,” the egg man said as he left. “God will bless you and your family.”

The next morning I was completely recovered. Little Hal soon came into the world, and new friends took care of the children while I rested at home. Later, feeling myself once more, I realized we had not seen the egg man in weeks. Concerned, I telephoned friends in the old neighborhood. They had never heard of anyone who delivered eggs. It was the same when I questioned our new neighbors. Although I never found the egg man sitting at our kitchen table again, he’d been there when I needed him. My mother-in-law’s words had proven true. God does provide. —Margaret D. Anderson, Saybrook, Illinois [End quoting]

CHAPTER 11

NEWS DESK SPECIAL REPORT

DRASTIC CHANGES—OF ALL KINDS— IN OUR IMMEDIATE FUTURE!

by Dr. Al Overholt 6/27/98

Since time is growing very short for the massive Earth changes to begin and many are not aware of the severity we face or want to know more about these changes, I have gathered together portions of articles from the Internet to help inform you.

Most of the elite would like to keep this information from you, so you will find very little of it being put into your normal media channels—and expect any you do receive to be slanted to mislead your thinking processes.

The information about the 12th planet that has come out so far is barely enough so they can say that “we told you about it”. But—not enough to truly educate you about the very severe consequences of its approach and passage.

These articles will give you a background from which to start. You should, however, seek out other sources, since this will be one of the most important happenings ever on planet Earth and it will have a tremendous effect on your life—for all eternity—thus much depends on the decisions you make NOW!!

NIBURU, THE 12TH PLANET, HERCULOBUS, WORMWOOD?

NUMEROUS PROPHECIES

From the INTERNET, Troubled Times <<http://www.zetatalk.com/theword/tword01.htm>>, 6/19/98: [quoting]

Numerous prophecies point to a pole shift around the time of the millennium.

Revelation—in the Bible—warns that the rivers will run with blood. Mother Shipton warns of tidal waves and mankind hoarding food.

Edgar Cayce foresaw land going under the sea.

Per written and oral history, the last such cataclysm occurred during the time of the exodus from Egypt, approximately 3,600 years ago.

Velikovsky reports on this history, and ZetaTalk has expanded on what he learned. [End quoting]

“Rivers of blood” will be caused by: The arriving planet has a tail similar to a comet’s but this is a tail containing iron oxide which is red. Planet Earth's orbital path will pass through this tail which will cover her with this red dust and more importantly poison the rivers and lakes from which we derive most of our drinking water. Needless to say it will be "blood red" and very poisonous.

MYSTERY HEAVENLY BODY DISCOVERED—

Washington Post, 12/31/1983—
A Front Page Story

From the INTERNET, 6/19/98: [quoting]

Excerpts from ZetaTalk and other home pages <www.zetatalk.com>, 6/19/98: [quoting]

A heavenly body possibly as large as the giant planet Jupiter and possibly so close to Earth that it would be part of this solar system has been found in the direction of the constellation Orion [emphasis mine] by an orbiting telescope aboard the U.S. infrared astronomical satellite. So mysterious is the object that astronomers do not know if it is a planet, a giant comet, a nearby protostar that never got hot enough to become a star, a distant galaxy so young that it is still in the process of forming its first stars or a galaxy so shrouded in dust that none of the light cast by its stars ever gets through. "All I can tell you is that we don't know what it is," Dr. Gerry Neugebauer, IRAS chief scientist for California's Jet Propulsion Laboratory and director of the Palomar Observatory for the California Institute of Technology said in an interview. [Key personnel do know but they don't want us to know!]

The most fascinating explanation of this mystery body, which is so cold it casts no light and has never been seen by optical telescopes on Earth or in space, is that it is a giant gaseous planet, as large as Jupiter and as close to Earth as 50 billion miles. While that may seem like a great distance in earthbound terms, it is a stone's throw in cosmological terms, so close in fact that it would be the nearest heavenly body to Earth beyond the outermost planet Pluto. "If it is really that close, it would be a part of our solar system [emphasis mine]," said Dr. James Houck of Cornell University's Center for Radio Physics and Space Research and a member of the IRAS science team. "If it is that close, I don't know how the world's planetary scientists would even begin to classify it."

The mystery body was seen twice by the infrared satellite as it scanned the northern sky from last January to November, when the satellite ran out of the supercold helium that allowed its telescope to see the coldest bodies in the heavens. The second observation took place six months after the first and suggested the mystery body had not moved from its spot in the sky near the western edge of the constellation Orion [emphasis mine] in that time. "This suggests it's not a comet because a comet would not be as large as the one we've observed and a comet would probably have moved [emphasis mine]," Houck said. "A planet may have moved if it were as close as 50 billion miles but it could still be a more distant planet and not have moved in six months time." "Whatever it is," Houck said, "the mystery body is so cold its temperature is no more than 40 degrees above absolute zero," which is 459 degrees Fahrenheit below zero. The telescope aboard IRAS is cooled so low and is so sensitive it can "see" objects in the heavens that are only 20 degrees above absolute zero. When IRAS scientists first saw the mystery body and calculated that it could be as close as 50 billion miles, there was some speculation that it might be moving toward Earth EM. "It's not incoming mail," Cal Tech's Neugebauer said. "I want to douse that idea with as much cold water as I can.”

THE SUMERIAN RECORD OF THE 12TH PLANET

From the INTERNET, 6/19/98, Connecting Link Interview with Zecharia Sitchin, <http://www.geocities.com/Area51/Cavern/5467/make\_your\_page.htm>: [quoting]

From CONNECTING LINK, issue 17. Based upon material from newsgroup alt.alienvisitors Subject: INTERVIEW: Zecharia Sitchin Date: 29 Jul 93, 04:14:16 GMT

View Guestbook

Zecharia Sitchin was born in Russia and raised in Palestine prior to the creation of Israel, where he acquired a knowledge of modern and ancient Hebrew, Sumerian, and the history and archeology of the Near East. Sitchin attended and graduated from the University of London, majoring in economic history. A leading journalist and editor in Israel for many years, he now lives and writes in New York. His books have been widely translated, converted to Braille for the blind, and featured on radio and television.

The Earth Chronicles series is based on the premise that mythology is not fanciful but the repository of ancient memories; that the Bible ought to be read literally as a historic/scientific document; and that ancient civilizations—older and greater than assumed—were the product of knowledge brought to Earth by the Anunnaki, “Those Who from Heaven to Earth Came.” ...I trust that modern science will continue to confirm ancient knowledge.

—Zecharia Sitchin

Connecting Link: What are the Earth Chronicles about?

Zecharia Sitchin: The first book, The Twelfth Planet, refers to the probability that there is one more planet in our solar system. That there are twelve members, counting Sun, Moon and ten planets, not the nine we know of. That people from that planet came to Earth almost half a million years ago and did many of the things about which we read in the Bible, in the book of Genesis.

But that was not my starting point at all. My starting point was, going back to my childhood and schooldays, the puzzle of who were the Nefilim, that are mentioned in Genesis, Chapter six, as the sons of the gods who married the daughters of Man in the days before the great flood, the Deluge. The word Nefilim is commonly, or used to be, translated “giants”. And I am sure that you and your readers are familiar with quotes and Sunday preachings, etc., that those were the days when there were giants upon the Earth. I questioned this interpretation as a child at school, and I was reprimanded for it because the teacher said “you don’t question the Bible”. But I did not question the Bible, I questioned an interpretation that seemed inaccurate, because the word, Nefilim, the name by which those extraordinary beings, “the sons of the gods” were known, means literally, “Those who have come down to Earth from the heavens”.

CL: From the Hebrew word Nafal, which means “fall”?

ZS: Right. Fall, come down, descend. So, what did it mean? This led me to biblical studies and then to mythology and archeology and all the other subjects, including the study of ancient languages, which became my education and avocation. So, my research and my decision to write about it started with a question: Who were the Nefilim?

All the ancient scriptures, the Bible, the Greek myths, the Egyptian myth and texts, the pyramid texts, everything, led to the Sumerians, whose civilization was the first known one six thousand years ago. I focused on Sumer, the source of these legends and myths and texts and information. I learned to read the cuneiform Sumerian texts and came upon their persistent and repeated statements that those beings, whom the Sumerians called Anunnaki, came to Earth from a planet called Nibiru. The planet was designated by the sign of the cross and Nibiru meant, “planet of crossing”.

The question thus shifted in my research from who were the Nefilim and the Anunnaki, to: What planet is Nibiru? Forced to become proficient in astronomy, I had to learn enough about it to deal with the subject. I found out that the scholars were divided. Some said it (Nibiru) was Mars, which of course was described and known to the ancient people, and others said, no, it was Jupiter. Those who said it was Jupiter and not Mars, had very convincing arguments why it could not be Mars. And those who said it was Mars and not Jupiter had very convincing arguments also.

Being able to go directly to those ancient sources, clay tablets and cuneiform scripts, it seemed to me that neither was right, because the description of Nibiru and its position when it nears the Sun indicated that it could not be Mars, and it could not be Jupiter. And then one night I woke up with the answer: Of course, it is one more planet that comes periodically between Mars and Jupiter; it is sometimes nearer to Mars and sometimes nearer to Jupiter, but it isn't Mars or Jupiter.

Once I realized that this was the answer, that there is one more planet, everything else fell into place. The meaning of the Mesopotamian Epic of Creation on which the first chapters of Genesis are based and all details about the Anunnaki, who they were and who their leaders were and how they traveled from their planet to Earth and how they splashed down in the Persian Gulf and about their first settlement, their leaders and so on and so on, everything became clear! The Sumerians had immense knowledge. They knew about Uranus and Neptune and described them and they knew about Pluto. They were proficient in mathematics and, in many respects, their knowledge surpassed modern times. They said, “All that we know was told to us by the Anunnaki.” The first book's innovation, its impact, was the realization that the ancient peoples, beginning with the Sumerians, knew of and described and spoke of one more planet in our solar system. It was not a discovery like that of Pluto in 1930 (of which the Sumerians knew six thousand years ago). Pluto was a very interesting astronomical discovery; textbooks had to be revised. But to the average person, the man on the street, it really made no difference. Nibiru, on the other hand was a different story. If Nibiru exists, (and this is the planet that astronomers nowadays call planet X) then the Anunnaki exist.

So the existence of Nibiru is not a matter of just one more globe in our solar system. This is different, because if Nibiru exists, and the Anunnaki exist, then the Sumerian claim that they come back to our vicinity every 3,600 years, at which times in the past they gave us civilization, then we are not alone and there are more advanced people than us in our solar system.

CL: What will happen next time around?

ZS: Who knows how they will feel about us when they come back. Will they decide to give us more knowledge again, and more technical advancement and more civilization, or will they decide that we are not good, as happened at the time of the Deluge, and try to get rid of us?

So, the first book, laying the foundation and describing Sumerian knowledge and concluding with the existence of one more planet is really the key to understanding what it is all about. What the tales of Genesis are, what the tales of creation are, what our past was, and in a way what our future will be...

PLANET X/12TH PLANET COVER-UP

Excerpted from ZetaTalk:

...If you think they did NOT find Planet X, then why have all the observatories built since, and all the infra-red equipment being put up since, been almost exclusively where it can point to the SOUTHERN SKIES, to Orion? [Where its approach can be observed.]

RE: PLANET X/12TH PLANET RETROGRADE ORBIT

Excerpted from ZetaTalk

Article: <6g2rjO$5ip@dfw-ixnewsIO.ix.netcom.com> Subject: Date: 3 Apr 1998, 14:26:40 GMT

In article <6ful24$mli@pmgm.Stanford.EDU> John Ladasky writes:

Your imaginary 12th planet is more massive than the Earth, but less massive than Jupiter, correct? It's also presently supposed to be many times farther away than Jupiter. How can such an object appear DIFFUSE?

Because it's a brown dwarf, smoldering in a slow burn and emitting a slight glow. See below for some more vintage ZetaTalk.

(Begin ZetaTalk[TM])

Humans are aware of heat and light being produced together as fire, the Sun, and elements heated until they glow. Humans are also aware of light being produced without heat, as with fireflies or minerals that are phosphorescent. And of course, there is heat without light, close at hand as in 98.6 degrees. The 12th Planet has both heat and light, generated from within its core. Life on the 12th Planet, which is inhabited by a large hominoid indistinguishable from humans other than by its size, experiences continuous day. Life that has evolved there does not sleep, but rests. The light is diffused in the atmosphere, and returns to the land surface, but emerges from the core to interact with the atmosphere only via the surface of the deep oceans, which cover the majority of the planet's surface. You may equate this to volcanic activity, where the Earth has numerous places both above ground and under the oceans that ooze molten lava. Just so the 12th Planet has places where the molten and churning substance in its core escapes to the surface.

Fires such as go on in the center of suns do not only proceed full bore. Why would they? Do you not have a fire within you that is maintained at a steady temperature? Do you not find that the fire in your fireplace can be slowed by adjusting the damper? Humans do not understand what is occurring within the Sun, a combustion of sorts that ignited because of the pressure of elements following the big bang, during the congealing period. The Sun was not born, lit. It lit as compression continued to the point where a product of subatomic particle collision did not dissipate, but accumulated, and the degradation of this substance is what you are viewing and feeling in your sunlight. This is a simplistic explanation for a complicated process. The 12th Planet has a similar process ongoing within its core, but being composed of heavier substances than your Sun, this process is slowed. You can equate this to mixing medicine into food, rather than taking it directly. This is tolerated because the incident or rate of medicine reacting with a taste bud is reduced, or slowed.

On the 12th Planet, the heat released diffuses in all directions, so the surface of the planet is warm but not hot. Your feet would not blister, but they may feel cool in places where the rock strata do not provide a good passage for heat, should you visit that planet. Light only escapes the core where what is essentially volcanic activity under the water occurs. Of course, this would occur if there was volcanic activity on the land surface of the planet, but there is little land surface, and this long ago hardened. Volcanic activity would not be on the surface of the Earth, either, should her proportion of water to land be increased. Water is pooling in the low spots, and the low spots have less hardened surface mantle as a barrier. Thin places break, and give release to the pressure from the churning molten core. The oceans of the 12th Planet, therefore, have places where diffused light is rising, and other places where the oceans would appear to you much as your own do here on Earth.

WHERE AND HOW TO FIND THE 12TH PLANET

ORION

From INTERNET, Troubled Times, 17 Mar 1998:

In article <6e9l1d$k5q@bgtnc03.worldnet.att.net> John Harper writes: According to the elements I just plugged into SkyMap, it's magnitude 20 and is between Orion and Gemini.

Here's a word from the Zetas too. In keeping with a policy to begin alerting the populace to the coming horrendous cataclysms that will strike the Earth in her near future, due to the passage of what is often called the 12th Planet, in keeping with a term made famous by Sitchin for the rogue planet coming back for a passage in 2003 [emphasis mine], you will find a reformed government willing to point you in the right direction, so you will NOTICE what you have up until now been directed away from. If this makes you nervous, check out the Troubled Times content, as these folks have been preparing for your panic, and have some answers. (End ZetaTalk[TM]) ...

(I can't vouch for their accuracy.)

POINT OF PASSAGE

From the Troubled Times:

The point of passage has been calculated from information on the Orbit and Entry Angle given by the Zetas. The 12th Planet pierces the Earth's orbital plane, it forms a triangle with the Earth and Sun, with the angles given as 139 degrees at the 12th Planet, 23 degrees at the Earth, and 18 degrees at the Sun.

32 DEGREE ANGLE

From the Troubled Times:

The closest, most easily recognizable constellation close to the 12th Planet's approach is Orion, high in the winter sky in the Northern Hemisphere. During the summer months of June/July Orion is behind the Sun and comes forth just before sunrise in the Eastern horizon as July fades into August. By January, Orion will be high in the southern sky at about 2200 hours. If you stand looking south, search approximately two thirds of the way towards straight up, and wait for Orion and its highly visible "Belt" to cross the center of the sky. Where the 12th Planet approaches from Orion, it dips below the ecliptic during the years just before passage to an angle of 32 degrees below the ecliptic.

BRIGHTNESS

From ZetaTalk:

The Zetas have answered a question on how bright the 12th Planet will be as it approaches.

Your hope for an early brightness will not be met, as the 12th is too far away for reflected sunlight up until 6 months before passage. Likewise, it does not grow in size, to where it is obvious that it is not a fading nova at a great distance, until it begins to reflect sunlight. Thus, up until these last few months, the excuse that this is a faded nova of sorts will be put forth, and even supported by doctored images. Those few who have been watching the path and know they are being fed lies must support each other covertly [emphasis mine], and depending upon the strength of the governments resolve to inform the public to some degree, these individuals may be allowed to present their findings to the public also, in a debate format. However, your best hope of convincing the public in significant numbers will be during the last months, when it is clearly not a nova, and clearly coming closer and on the move.

STAR MAGNITUDE

From the INTERNET, Troubled Times:

The Zetas have given that the 12th planet is presently of actual magnitude 2 and apparent magnitude 10. I have done some research to determine what this means for those of us who want to spot it in the sky. I found an explanation of Star Magnitudes on the web. Here are some interesting things I discovered:

Magnitude of Polaris (the North Star) 20, Magnitude of Neptune 8.2, Magnitude of Pluto 13.7, Typical limiting magnitude 5.2.

This page also confirms that diffuse objects such as galaxies appear to be fainter than their published magnitudes.

So, when looking for the 12th planet we are looking for something that gives off as much light as the North Star, but whose apparent brightness is between Neptune and Pluto. Since the dimmest object that you can typically see is 5.2 (this will vary by location), it will no doubt be helpful to have some kind of optics to magnify the brightness.

Another tidbit I gathered from the above page is that five magnitudes of brightness is equivalent to a factor of about 100 in terms of the amount of light received on the Earth. The scale is logarithmic, so, a difference in magnitude of 8 (between the actual and apparent magnitude of the 12th) consists in a factor of nearly 3000. Given the radius of the 12th is 4 times that of the Earth (which would make its radius  $2.5 \times 10^{-7}$  meters. This is just a bit larger than Neptune, practically equal. Since the 12th is 1.8 magnitudes dimmer than Neptune, it stands to reason that the 12th either has a lower albedo, or is currently farther than Neptune, or both. However, it does not seem to follow that its apparent magnitude should be anywhere near 2.0, since this would require an increase in area of 3000.

I have been watching Orion for quite some time now, looking in the indicated region. I do not think the 12th's actual magnitude is much different than its apparent magnitude, as this is not supported either by experiential evidence or the comparable magnitude of any of the other planets (which, too, give off diffuse light). A magnitude of 10 is reasonable for an object the size and distance of the 12th planet. Given this, it is understandable why it has not been spotted yet—it is dimmer than we think. Magnitude 10 is just beyond the limits of my optics (even with red/IR magnification). I would like to know when the 12th will reach, say, magnitude 9, as I think at that time I should have no trouble spotting it, whether it is diffuse or not. (As it is, stars of magnitude 8-9.5 appear diffuse and hazy to me.)

REDDISH GLOW

From ZetaTalk:

The 12th Planet looks like the fading remains of a dying star, and does not have the pinpoint of brightness of a star. Although the 12th Planet at present is a magnitude 2.0, astronomers should include objects up to a magnitude 10 in their image capture. The image capture results should be passed through a red filter, as most equipment is calibrated to locate the pinpoint brightness of stars, rather than a diffuse glow.

The problem is that the normal eye, even when scanning a photo, would miss it as it is a faint blurr, rather than the pin point expected. Like the insect who camouflages itself against a similar background, and is not seen, this giant will be upon mankind before they realize they have been staring at it all along. Infrared works well, but requires equipment in the hands of few. Red filtering, aggressive red filtering, will bring it to the fore more than anything.

LANDING ON PLANET EARTH

Excerpts from Troubled Times, Landing On Planet Earth, by Zecharia Sitchin, pages 260-263, 178, and 201:

In February 1971, the United States launched Pioneer 10. Pioneer 10 scientists attached to it an engraved aluminum plaque. It attempts to tell whoever might find the plaque that Mankind is male and female, etc., and that (Pioneer 10) is from the 3rd planet of this Sun. Our astronomy is geared to the notion that Earth is the 3rd planet, which indeed it is if one begins the count from the center of our system, the Sun. But to someone nearing our solar system from the outside, the 1st planet to be encountered would be Pluto, the 2nd Neptune, the 3rd Uranus, the 4th Saturn, the 5th Jupiter, the 6th Mars—and the Earth would be 7th.

We know today that beyond the giant planets Jupiter and Saturn lie more major planets, Uranus and Neptune, and a small planet, Pluto. But such knowledge is quite recent. Uranus was discovered, through the use of improved telescopes, in 1781. Neptune was pinpointed by astronomers (guided by mathematical calculations) in 1846. It became evident that Neptune was being subjected to unknown gravitational pull, and in 1930 Pluto (was located).

In Assyrian times, the celestial count of a god's planet was often indicated by the appropriate number of symbols placed alongside the god's throne. Thus, a plaque depicting the god (of Saturn) placed 4 star symbols at his throne. Many cylinder seals and other graphic relics depict Mars as the 6th planet. A cylinder seal shows the god associated with Mars seated on a throne under a 6-pointed star. Ample evidence shows that Venus was depicted as an 8-pointed star. Other symbols on the seal show the Sun, much in the same manner we would depict it today; the Moon; and the cross, the symbol of the Planet of Crossing, the 12th Planet.

Excerpts from Kingship of Heaven, by Zeharia Sitchin, pages 246-248:

The (12th) Planet's periodic appearance and disappearance from Earth's view confirms the assumption of its permanence in solar orbit. In this it acts like many comets. If so, why are our astronomers not aware of the existence of this planet? The fact is that even an orbit half as long as the lower figure for (the comet) Kohoutek, (every 7,500 years), would take the 12th Planet about 6 times farther away from us than Pluto—a distance at which such a planet would not be visible from Earth. In fact, the known planets beyond Saturn were first discovered not visually but mathematically.

The Mesopotamian and biblical sources present strong evidence that the orbital period of the 12th Planet is 3,600 years. The number 3,600 was written in Sumerian as a large circle. The epithet for the planet, shar, also meant “a perfect circle” or “a completed cycle”. It also meant the number 3,600. The identity of the three terms—planet/orbit/3,600—could not be a mere coincidence. The Reign Periods (a Sumarian text) gives are also perfect multiples of the 3,600 year shar. The conclusion that suggests itself is that these shar’s of rulership were related to the orbital period shar, 3,600 years.

Excerpts from Kingship of Heaven, pages 242-245:

All the people of the ancient world considered the periodic nearing of the 12th Planet as a sign of great upheavals, great changes, new eras. The Mesopotamian texts spoke of the planet’s periodic appearance as an anticipated, predictable, and observable event. “The great planet, at his appearance dark red.” The day itself was described by the Old Testament as a time of rains, inundations, and earthquakes. If we think of the biblical passages as referring, like their Mesopotamian counterparts, to the passage in Earth’s vicinity of a large planet with a strong gravitational pull, the words of Isaiah can be plainly understood. “From a far away land they came, from the end-point of Heaven do the Lord and his weapons of wrath come to destroy the whole Earth. Therefore will I agitate the Heaven and Earth shall be shaken out of its place. When the Lord of Hosts shall be crossing, the day of his burning wrath.”

The prophet Amos explicitly predicted: “It shall come to pass on that Day, sayeth the Lord God, and I will cause the Sun to go down at noon and I will darken the Earth in the midst of daytime.” The prophet Zechariah informed the people that this phenomenon of an arrest in Earth’s spin around its own axis would last only one day: “And it shall come to pass on that Day that there shall be no light uncommonly shall it freeze. And there shall be one day, known to the Lord, which there shall be neither day or night.”

The prophet Joel said: “The Sun shall be turned into darkness, and the Moon shall be as red blood.”

COMET VISIBLE

From ZetaTalk:

The 12th Planet is now visible to the human eye, though only the educated eye would see it. At the current time the 12th Planet is approximately magnitude 2.0 in brightness, and appears as large as a star as viewed by the naked eye. It does not shine with the intensity of most stars, but has a dull, diffuse, glow. It appears to be the last gasp of a dying star, a faint, blurry, reddish glow. Your eye would pass over it if attuned to the pin points that are the stars. A star is intense in the center and rapidly diminishes in intensity toward the edges of the spot you call a star. The light from a star comes from a single point and fans out, the periphery a bit less than the center, increasingly, but the center very intense. The 12th Planet, being nearer, is giving you light rays from its entire surface, so the light has an even quality to it. Its distance cannot be measured, but one will notice that as time passes, no other object passes before it.

Your nearby planets are throwing back at you a familiar light, reflected sunlight, and thus your eyes recognize them for what they are. Just as some insects camouflage themselves from those who would prey on them by adopting the coloration of the surrounding area, just so the 12th Planet, to you, is camouflaged against the night sky. Its appearance does not look like the familiar objects you set out to identify when you scan the sky—pin points with intense centers that are stars or the scattered brilliance of an exploding star or the distinctive elongated fantail of a passing comet. Where its size at present is akin to a star, and the diffuse light across its surface would indeed have the spread and consistency that your reflecting planets do, there are significant differences that cause you to pass over it rather than explore it in depth.

The composition is not the composition of reflecting sunlight, but is almost exclusively in the spectrum you would call red light. Thus you will do best if you filter for red light, and by this we mean filtering out all but red light.

Though a large planet, 4 times as large as Earth and thus larger than Mars or Pluto, it is at this time at a much greater distance and thus its visibility is not equivalent to Mars or Pluto.

The amateur astronomer may be disappointed until well after the millennium, as the 12th Planet's motions across the skies are only visible at this time when repeated images are taken and compared by computer, and here the magnification must be huge. Where the naked eye looks upon the sky, the 12th Planet appears to be standing still. The path of the comet is dead on. It is aiming for your Sun, and you are so very close to your Sun. The Earth's movements to this side or that are slight, in the scheme of things, and give to the comet an almost imperceptible wobble at best. The naked eye will not see motion in this 12th Planet until well into the year of the cataclysms, just a few weeks ahead. At that time its motion will give it away as being of a comet's nature. During the last few weeks, backyard astronomers will be able to detect motion of the comet across the skies, something a distant star would not do. Those with telescopes and computer software capable of comparing captured and stored images will know otherwise, but will be silenced or discredited in the usual establishment protective manner [emphasis mine]. This 12th Planet will, however, get consistently brighter, so that an image taken now, compared with an image taken a year from now, would show an increased brightness not expected from a distant star. The naked eye would not capture this. The naked eye will begin to register increased brightness approximately 1 year 7 months before the cataclysms, or late in the year 2001. This appearance will be discounted by most, who will point to the distortions in the atmosphere as a cause or will explain this as an exploding star, the light rays of which are just becoming visible on Earth. Increased brightness will occur gradually, so that without the capacity to register brightness over time, and compare closely the changes, this cannot be proved or even, until close to the end, mentally registered by the observer. High-powered equipment can and has registered this increased brightness. The images must be compared by computer analysis, but the magnification need not be huge, only slight. Here again, this information will not be made public. Quite the opposite. This information will be denied and refuted by those controlling the high-powered equipment needed for proof.

Astronomy is a science based on theory as much as fact, as needs be when one is looking out where one cannot go and measure! Consequently, astronomers essentially make their best guess, and often disagree. How far away is an object? Opinions differ. If one object passes in front of another, there is a solid clue, as the one object is obviously closer than the other. What is the composition of an object? Extruded rays are analyzed against known scientific facts on how matter decomposes, but much scientific fact is as yet not understood by humans. They make their best guess, often so wrong as to be terribly misleading. We are not telling astronomers anything they don't know themselves. There is a science that truly respects the adage—the more I know, the more I know I don't know!

For those discouraged by peering at the sky, and in particular discouraged by the myriad of alternative explanations for what is seen, remember that the approach of the comet is best measured, until the last year before the cataclysms, by the Earth's response to its approach. As we have already explained, the core of the Earth is already responding, and this measurement is recorded in the rising temperature of the oceans, worldwide. The next symptom to look for is increased volcanic activity, and larger and more frequent earthquakes, worldwide. This, surely, cannot be attributed to the Greenhouse effect. It is when the Earth receives red dust from the tail of the comet, as it enters the Solar System and passes between the Sun and the Earth, that denial will no longer be possible [emphasis mine]. At this point, however, there are scant days before the cataclysms.

REVERSED POLARITY OF THE EARTH

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision, by Immanuel Velikovsky:

It is possible to detect in the geological records of the Earth the orientation of the terrestrial magnetic field in past ages. When lava cools and freezes following a volcanic outburst, it takes up a permanent magnetization dependent upon the orientation of the Earth's magnetic field at the time. The reversed polarity of lava indicates that in recent geological times the magnetic poles of the globe were reversed.

DEEP QUAKES

A Troubled Times member shows the exponential increase in deep quakes down to the 600 km level since 1994, using the database provided by a private organization known as The Council of the National Seismic System, working out of Berkeley, CA, which provides earthquake data and answer questions at their web site. Note a depth down to 600 km was taken for this graph, versus a depth down to only 550 km for other pages on this site discussing this issue. This graph is thus more comprehensive, and thus more accurate.

THE SHADOW OF DEATH

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision, by Velikovsky, pp. 127-128:

If the eruption of a single volcano can darken the atmosphere over the entire globe, a simultaneous and prolonged eruption of thousands of volcanoes would blacken the sky. Volcanoes vomit water vapor as well as cinders. Following the cataclysm, the author of Codex Chimalpopaoca, in his history of the suns, shows us terrifying celestial phenomena...followed by darkness that covered the face of the Earth, in one instance for a period of 25 years.

In the Ermitage Papyrus in Leningrad...there are lamentations about a terrible catastrophe, when heaven and Earth turned upside down. After this catastrophe darkness covered the Earth. The “shadow of death” is related to the time of the wandering in the desert after the Exodus from Egypt. The sinister meaning of the words “shadow of death” corresponds with the description of the Ermitage Papyrus: “None can live when the Sun is veiled by clouds.”

The phenomenon of gloom enduring for years impressed itself on the memory of the Twelve Tribes and is mentioned in many passages in the Bible. Psalms 44:19: “The people that walked in darkness...in the land of the shadow of death”.

VIOLENT WINDS

Excerpts from ZetaTalk:

At the shift, the surface of the Earth will move, in just under an hour, more than a quarter turn. Where massive earthquakes and tidal waves occur when this motion “stops”, hurricane force winds, world wide, occur “during” this shift.

During the shift, the atmosphere of the Earth does several things, all at once. It drags along with the Earth, to which it is attracted, being primarily more involved with gravity attraction straight down. Do not the waters in your oceans move with the Earth as it turns? The atmosphere is an ocean too, just lighter and therefore more mobile. It moves as a mass, pushing on air in other places and likewise, itself being pushed. Thus, even in those places on the Earth which are not moving, during the shift, being pivot points, the air is turbulent. It swirls, as circular motion in air masses is the response to conflicting forces, as seen in the circular motion of tornadoes and hurricanes.

BOILING EARTH AND SEA

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision, by Velikovsky, pp. 91-92:

The Mexican sacred book, Popol-Vuh, the Manuscript Cakchiquel, the Manuscript Troano all record how the mountains in every part of the Western Hemisphere simultaneously gushed lava... The rivers steamed, and even the bottom of the sea boiled here and there. The Zend-Avesta says: “The sea boiled, all the shores of the ocean boiled, all the middle of it boiled.”

The traditions of the Indians (also) retain the memory of this boiling of the water in river and sea. The tribes of British Columbia tell: "Great clouds appeared...and such a great heat came, that finally the water boiled. People jumped into the streams and lakes to cool themselves, and died." On the North Pacific Coast of America the tribes insist that the ocean boiled: "It grew very hot...many animals jumped into the water to save themselves, but the water began to boil." The Indians of the Southern Ute tribe in Colorado record in their legends that the rivers boiled.

Jewish tradition, as preserved in the rabbinical sources, declares that the mire at the bottom of the Sea of Passage was heated. Hesiod in his Theogony, relating the upheaval caused by a celestial collision, says: "The huge earth groaned... A great part of the huge earth was scorched by the terrible vapor and melted as tin melts when heated by man's art...or as iron, which is hardest of all things, is softened by glowing fire in mountain glens."

THE HURRICANE

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision, by Velikovsky, pp. 67-69:

Manuscript Troano and other documents of the Mayas describe a cosmic catastrophe during which the ocean fell on the continent, and a terrible hurricane swept the Earth. The hurricane broke up and carried away all towns and all forests. A wild tornado moved through the debris descending from the sky. The end of the world was brought by Hurakan. From this name is derived hurricane, the word we use for a strong wind.

The theme of the cosmic hurricane is reiterated time and again in the Hindu Vedas and in the Persian Avesta. The 11th tablet of the Epic of Gilgamesh says that 6 days and a night the hurricane, deluge, and tempest continued sweeping the land and mankind perished almost altogether. The Maoris narrate that amid a stupendous catastrophe the mighty winds, the fierce squalls, the clouds, dense, dark, fiery, wildly drifting, wildly bursting, rushed on Creation, ... and swept away giant forests and lashed the waters into billows whose crests rose high like mountains.

The Polynesians celebrate a god, Taafanua. In Arabic, Typhoon is a whirlwind and Tufan is the Deluge; and the same word occurs in Chinese as Ty-fong. It appears as though the noise of the hurricane was...not unlike the name Typhon.

THE HAIL OF STONES

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision, by Velikovsky, pp. 51-53:

Following the red dust, a small dust, like ashes of the furnace fell in all the land of Egypt (Exodus 9:18), and then a shower of meteorites flew toward the Earth. We are informed by Midrashic and Talmudic sources that the stones which fell on Egypt were hot. Ipuwer wrote: "Trees are destroyed. No fruits, no herbs are found. Grain has perished on every side." In the Book of Exodus (9:25) it is written: "And the hail smote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field."

The description of such a catastrophe is found in the Visuddhi-Magga, a Buddhist text on the world cycles. "When a world cycle is destroyed by wind...there arises...a wind. First it raises a fine dust, then coarse dust, then fine sand, then coarse sand, then grit, stones, up to boulders as large as trees.” The Mexican Annals of Cuauhtitlan describe how a cosmic catastrophe was accompanied by a hail of stones. [End quoting]

Art Bell recently told of people calling in to his radio talk-show reporting that a meteor stone came through their roof.

FIRESTORMS

Excerpts from ZetaTalk:

“These fire storms are caused by reactions of atmospheric gasses to the turmoil going on. Petrocarbons are in essence created, due to the flashes of lightning and intense heat due to passage over open volcanoes, and these petrocarbons rain down, afire, at times.”

TIDAL WAVE

Excerpts from ZetaTalk:

“Where the Earth, dragged by its core, is shifting into a new, albeit temporary, alignment with the giant comet, its waters resist greatly. Thus the waters slosh over the nearby land, in the direction opposite to the shift. This is lessened by a tendency of the waters directly under the giant comet to rise up to meet the comet. The waters heap up, in what appear to be giant waves. This tends to lessen the sloshing over a shoreline on the comet side, but has no effect on the water’s movement on the dark side of the Earth.”

THE TIDE

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision, by Velikovsky, pp. 70-75:

The slowing down or stasis of the Earth in its rotation would cause a tidal recession of water toward the poles, but the celestial body nearby would disturb this poleward recession, drawing the water toward itself. The traditions of many peoples persist that seas were torn apart and their water heaped high and thrown upon the continents.

The traditions of the people of Peru tell that for a period of time the Sun was not in the sky, and then the ocean left the shore and with a terrible din broke over the continent. The Choctaw Indians of Oklahoma relate: “The Earth was plunged in darkness for a long time.” Finally a dark light appeared in the north, “but it was mountain-high waves, rapidly coming nearer”. According to the Lapland epic, after the sea-wall fell on the continent, gigantic waves continued to roll and dead bodies were dashed about in the dark waters.

The Hebrew story of the passage of the sea (relates that) the bottom of the sea was uncovered, the waters were driven apart and heaped up like walls in a double tide. The Septuagint translation of the Bible says that the water stood “as a wall”, and the Koran, referring to this event, says “like mountains”. In the old rabbinical literature it is said that the water was suspended as if it were “Glass, solid and massive”.

EXCERPTS FROM EARTH IN UPHEAVAL, TIDAL WAVE

Excerpted from the INTERNET, Troubled Times, 6/19/98: [quoting]

Earth In Upheaval by Velikovsky, pp. 51-54:

Fissures in the rocks...all over Western Europe, are choked with bones of animals, some of extinct races, others, though of the same age, of races still surviving. The bones...are mostly broken and splintered into innumerable sharp fragments and are evidently not those of animals devoured by beasts of prey. The Rock of Gibraltar is intersected by numerous crevices filled with bones. The bones are broken and splintered. The remains of panther, lynx, caffir-cat, hyena, wolf, bear, rhinoceros, horse, wild boar, red deer, fallow deer, ibex, ox, hare, rabbit, have been found in these ossiferous fissures. On Corsica, Sardinia, and Sicily the broken bones of animals choke the fissures in the rocks.

The state of preservation of the bones indicates that the animals, all of them, perished in the same period of time. No hardened animal feces were found, indicating that the dead beasts had not lived in these hollows or fissures. No teeth marks of hyena or of any other animal are found in the osseous mass. The bones are those of animals of all ages down to the fetus, nor do they show traces of weathering or exposure.

The extremely fresh condition of the bones, proved by the retention of so large a proportion of animal matter, shows that the event was, geologically, comparatively recent. The fact that animals of all ages were involved in the catastrophe shows it to have been sudden.

EAST AND WEST

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision:

Our planet rotates from west to east. Has it always done so? There is testimony from all parts of the world that the side which is now turned toward the evening once faced the morning. The Egyptians pride themselves on being the most ancient people in the world. In their authentic annals...one may read that...the course of the stars has changed direction...and that the sun has set in that part of the sky where it rises today. In the Papyrus Ipuwer it is similarly stated that “the land turns round as does a potter’s wheel” and “the Earth turns over”.

Plato wrote in his dialogue: “At certain periods the universe has its present circular motion, and at other periods it revolves in the reverse direction.” Plato wrote in Politicus: “There is at that time great destruction of animals in general, and only a small part of the human race survives”. The Chinese say that it is only since a new order of things has come about that the stars move from east to west. The signs of the Chinese zodiac have the strange peculiarity of proceeding in a retrograde direction, that is, against the course of the Sun. The Eskimos of Greenland told missionaries that in an ancient time the Earth turned over.

FIRESTORMS

Excerpts from ZetaTalk:

These fire storms are caused by reaction of atmospheric gasses to the turmoil going on.

Petrocarbons are in essence created, due to the flashes of lightning and intense heat due to passage over open volcanoes, and these petrocarbons rain down, afire, at times.

NAPTHA

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision, by Velikovsky, pp. 53-55:

Crude petroleum is composed of two elements, carbon and hydrogen. The inorganic theory (of the origin of petroleum states that) hydrogen and carbon were brought together in the rock formations of the Earth under great heat and pressure. The tails of comets are composed mainly of carbon and hydrogen gases. Lacking oxygen, they do not burn in flight, but the inflammable gases, passing through an atmosphere containing oxygen, will be set on fire, binding all the oxygen available at the moment.

The descent of a sticky fluid which came earthward and blazed with heavy smoke is recalled in the oral and written traditions of the inhabitants of both hemispheres.

Popol-Vuh, the sacred book of the Mayas, narrates: "People were drowned in a sticky substance raining from the sky...and then there was a great din of fire above their heads." The entire population of the land was annihilated. A similar account is preserved in the Annals of Cuauhtitlan. The age which ended in the rain of fire was called "the sun of fire-rain".

In Siberia, the Voguls carried down through the centuries and millennia this memory: "God sent a sea of fire upon the Earth." In the East Indies, the aboriginal tribes relate that in the remote past "water of fire" rained from the sky. With very few exceptions, all men died. The (Egyptian) papyrus Ipuwer describes this consuming fire. "Gates, columns, and walls are consumed by fire. The sky is in confusion." The papyrus says that this fire almost exterminated mankind.

THE SHIFT

Excerpts from Strangers Among Us, by Ruth Montgomery, pp. 228-230:

The event itself will occur in the twinkling of an eye, as the Earth slurps onto its side. In daylight areas, the Sun will seem to stand still overhead. Those who are capable of reaching safety will see the Earth's surface tremble, shudder, and in some places become a sea of boiling water as the oceans pour upon the land.... Picture a giant wave, higher than a ten story building, racing toward shore. Ferocious winds will howl across the land. The stars will seem to swing giddily in the heavens. As dawn breaks the Sun will seemingly rise from the wrong place on the horizon.

THE COMING CHANGES

Excerpts from Mary's Message to the World, by Annie Kirkwood, pp. 2-3:

As the world turns and changes direction, many natural occurrences will be deemed disasters.

Mountains will move, seas will be upturned; new lands will come out of the ocean, some of the land which is now inhabited will be inundated and returned to the ocean floor to be allowed to renew. These natural disasters have already started, but in the future they will occur more often and with increasing violence.

CATAclysms

From Troubled Times:

I am amazed at the number of people that don't get it. A pole shift is a very, very bad thing. To think you will be able to survive by holing up in your bunker for a couple of years and then come out to plant your crops tells me that one does not appreciate the gravity of the situation. A pole shift will cause permanent climactic change for any part of the globe. The upset to the global ecology will be long term. This is why many species don't make it through. Its not a matter of surviving the shift itself; that, by comparison, is the easy part. For those counting on the lift, be prepared to be thrown from the frying pan into the fire. A primitive existence may be possible in some parts of the world if you are lucky. By primitive I mean you have breathable air, you have water that won't kill you, and you can scrounge for the little bit of protein that wanders your way, that's it.

If Velikovsky is right, there is little hope of having useable sunlight for a long, long time. Volcanoes are prolific producers of noxious gasses and dust. Expect CO<sub>2</sub>, H<sub>2</sub>S, NOX, Arsenic, Lead, and many other nasties to climb to toxic levels just about anywhere. Microorganisms will be tossed into the air [which] our immune systems haven't seen for thousands of years. If that is not enough, dust will linger in the upper atmosphere for many years to come, blocking our life giving Sun. This shift is unique for us, the difference is population, we have available to us more knowledge, resources, economies of scale only achievable by many brains with the ability to communicate with one another. We do not have to settle for a 90% or 99% mortality rate. The fittest among us may be able to survive to propagate with primitive preparations, but we do not have to settle for that. We have know-how called technology, some of it appropriate, some not, which can help us to improve our odds if we are willing to shift from being consumers of the fruits of technology and towards claiming it as our own. This may mean that instead of knowing how to use a water filter you may take the trouble to understand its composition and how it works. It may mean that you will have to take the responsibility to learn the fundamentals of ecology so you can rebuild it where Nature can't or won't for your benefit. We do not have to be at the mercy of Nature where we can command Nature.

For those of you who get it, more power to ya. For those of you who don't, food for thought.

AMBROSIA & MILK AND HONEY

Excerpts from Worlds in Collision by Velikovsky, pp. 134-138:

In what way did this veil of gloom dissolve itself? Has any testimony been preserved that during the many years of gloom carbohydrate precipitated? After the nightly cooling, the carbohydrates precipitated and fell with the morning dew. It had an oily taste like honeycomb, and was ground between stones and baked in pans. The clouds brought the heavenly bread, it is also said in the Talmud.

There was a world fire, says the Icelandic tradition, followed by the Fimbul-winter, and only one human pair remained alive in the north. They fed on morning dew, and from (this pair) come the folk who people the renewed Earth.

The Maoris of New Zealand tell of fiery winds and fierce clouds that lashed the waters into tidal waves that touched the sky and were accompanied by furious hallstorms. The ocean fled. The progeny of the storm and hail were “Mist, the Heavy dew and Light dew”.

The Greeks called the heavenly bread ambrosia. It is described by the Greek poets in identical terms with manna: it had the taste of honey and a fragrance. The Atharva-Veda hymns say that honey-lash came down from fire and wind; ambrosia fell, and streams of honey flowed upon the Earth. The grains also fell upon the water, and the rivers became milky in appearance (i.e. lands of milk and honey).

NEW GEOGRAPHY AFTER THE POLE SHIFT

From ZetaTalk:

After the Pole Shift the Earth begins rotating again, with its new poles in the same relative position to the Solar System as today. In other words, whatever part of the Earth is North, magnetically, after the shift, will become the new North Pole. The Pole Shift, with consequent realignment of the poles, will place the new equator over formerly frozen lands. Greenland, Canada, Alaska, Siberia, and Europe will be affected by the new equator. This will not mean that these areas will be lush, right away. The temperate zones, not all that lush to begin with, will find themselves after the cataclysms in a warm state, but with little vegetation. Past cataclysms have regularly rearranged the Earth’s geography and climate zones, as the Earth attests. The continents, once one large land mass, were torn apart, temperate or tropical areas suddenly freezing up and covering over with ice and snow that never melts, and frozen wastelands gradually melting and warming to sustain life once again. Mountains in mountain building areas were pushed higher and subducting plates were suddenly slid under the overplate.

THE IVORY ISLANDS

Excerpts from Earth in Upheaval, by Velikovsky:

Fossil tusks of the mammoth—an extinct elephant—were found in northern Siberia and brought southward to markets at a very early time. Northern Siberia provided more than half the world’s supply of ivory, many piano keys and many billiard balls being made from the fossil tusks of mammoths.

In 1797 the body of a mammoth, with flesh, skin, and hair, was found in northeastern Siberia. The flesh had the appearance of freshly frozen beef; it was edible, and wolves and sled dogs fed on it without harm. The ground must have been frozen ever since the day of their entombment; had it not been frozen, the bodies of the mammoths would have putrefied in a single summer, but they remained unspoiled for some thousands of years. In some mammoths, when discovered, even the eyeballs were still preserved.

(All) this shows that the cold became suddenly extreme...and knew no relenting afterward. In the stomachs and between the teeth of the mammoths were found plants and grasses that do not grow now in northern Siberia...(but are)...now found in southern Siberia. Microscopic examination of the skin showed red blood corpuscles, which was proof not only of a sudden death, but that the death was due to suffocation either by gases or water.

SINKING ATLANTIC

As we have stated, the Atlantic will widen and the Pacific will shorten. Where the Pacific effect will cause sudden and violent subduction of several plates, which are already subducting, in the Atlantic the effect will be the opposite. A gulf will appear, with plates torn apart and the softer magma under the plates exposed to the cold Atlantic water. Where this will harden the magma, and establish new plate surface, there will be less support for the abridging plates, those that attach however remotely to the shorelines of the Americas, Europe, and Africa. These non-supported plates will sink, somewhat, bringing their formerly above-water land masses down under the water in many places. As an instance, Europe and in particular the western islands of Britain and Ireland will find itself more affected than some other parts of the globe.

WHALES IN THE MOUNTAINS

Excerpts from Earth in Upheaval:

Bones of whale have been found 440 feet above sea level, north of Lake Ontario; a skeleton of another whale was discovered in Vermont, more than 500 feet above sea level; and still another in the Montreal-Quebec area, about 600 feet above sea level. Although the Humphrey whale and beluga occasionally enter the mouth of the St. Lawrence, they do not climb hills.

To account for the presence of whales in the hills of Vermont and Montreal, at elevations of 500 and 600 feet, requires the lowering of the land to that extent. The accepted theory is that the land in the region of Montreal and Vermont was depressed more than 600 feet by the weight of ice and kept in this position for a while after the ice melted. Another solution would be for an ocean tide, carrying the whales, to have trespassed upon the land.

But along the coast of Nova Scotia and New England stumps of trees stand in water, telling of once forested country that (has since become) submerged. And opposite the mouths of the St. Lawrence and the Hudson rivers are deep (land) canyons stretching for hundreds of miles into the ocean. These indicate that the land (has become) sea, being depressed in post-glacial times. When did both processes go on simultaneously, in neighboring areas, here up, there down?

DESCRIPTION OF APPROACHING 12th PLANET AND EARTH FLIPPING ON HER AXIS?

Revelation 8:

5 And the angel took the censer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and cast it into the Earth: and there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and an earthquake.

6 And the seven angels which had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound.

7 The first angel sounded, and there followed hail and fire mingled with blood [iron oxide?], and they were cast upon the Earth: and the third part of trees was burnt up, and all green grass was burnt up.

8 And the second angel sounded, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea: and the third part of the sea became blood;

9 And the third part of the creatures which were in the sea, and had life, died; and the third part of the ships were destroyed.

10 And the third angel sounded, and there fell a great star from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters;

11 And the name of the star is called Wormwood [12th planet with its bitter blood-red iron oxide tail?]: and the third part of the waters became wormwood; and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter.

12 And the fourth angel sounded, and the third part of the Sun was smitten, and the third part of the Moon, and the third part of the stars; so as the third part of them was darkened, and the day shone not for a third part of it, and the night likewise [when the Earth flips on its axis?—not the magnetic flip].

13 And I beheld, and heard an angel flying through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice, Woe, woe, woe, to the inhabitants of the Earth by reason of the other voices of the trumpet of the three angels, which are yet to sound!

ON ENDANGERED SPECIES

Regarding saving DNA from animal species, so that these species will continue after the cataclysms.

Excerpts from ZetaTalk:

This is not a human endeavor we would recommend. In the first place, humans are not adept at regenerating a creature from DNA, nor would you be able to store this DNA effectively, given the nature of the cataclysms. The DNA would be spoiled due to neglect, as humans would have so many greater concerns during the Aftertime. In the second place, animals in one form or another have survived repeated cataclysms. Natural evolution takes place, in any case, and the cataclysms only trip the balance this way or that. Without the cataclysms your Earth's animal species would be different, a different mix, and with some species now long extinct still present. But because these extinct species had survived, others would not have thrived, due to competition. Therefore, beyond protecting nature preserves, do not concern yourself over animal survival. Nature looks after her own. [End quoting]

PLANET COVER-UP MECHANISM

Excerpted from ZetaTalk:

Along those lines, as to why the rich and powerful who set the rules would not want the 12th Planet's threat known by the public, is the existing ZetaTalk topic called Impossible Message, at <http://www.zetatalk.com/govmt/g85.htm>, a portion below (Begin ZetaTalk[™]) The major governments of the world, and we are speaking here of key members of the super powers, and captains of industry already have regular briefings on what the Hubble has viewed and recorded. The path of the 12th Planet continues to confirm our statements, made in private to these individuals just as we have made them public through ZetaTalk, so the angle and movement during the passage are more and more considered predictable.

At the point where many feel they know what will happen and when, what will those members of the establishment in anguish over their past silence do? They will dither and argue among themselves, until the final weeks, for the following reasons: Various plans to harbor and protect the populace will constantly be under discussion and even quietly implemented. Emptying the cities into tents, feeding them temporarily on stores of soybeans and grain, and commanding armies of surviving citizens in rebuilding new cities. One does not want to issue a warning unless a solution can be muttered in the next breath, and the solution will never be agreed upon or feasible. Plans to harbor and protect the populace require a functioning society for the plans to become an actuality. Thus, as issuing a warning will cause panic and disruption, the establishment will invariably choose to delay the warning, especially as their plans to harbor and protect the populace will never become firm.

* The size of any rescue operation is beyond the capacity of governments, a fact they readily admit to themselves. With increasing crop failures, even the stores during times of plenty will become depleted. If the welfare class has become an impossible burden in the US and the homeless die on the streets, how will the government sustain the whole populace for even a few short weeks?

The panic that would ensue from a general announcement of the forthcoming cataclysms would in and of itself be deemed a disaster to avoid. Beyond the concerns of the banking industry, which would collapse due to lack of confidence in the continuing worth of many assets, and beyond the concerns of industry which requires the faithful attendance of its employees in order to function, there is concern about possible looting, suicides, mass migration of peoples, and never-ending demands that the government do something. (End ZetaTalk[™])

DR. AL's SUMMATION:

Hopefully this will give you enough knowledge to encourage you to do some thorough preparations.

This is not in your distant future—IT IS NOW! We are already entering the Photon Belt, the Sun is already erupting with unprecedented amounts of radiation, the number of volcanos erupting and the number of severe storms are increasing rapidly. The winds and hurricanes-typhoons-tornados are more numerous and severe—expect steady sustained winds of well over 200 mph as the jet stream reaches the ground on numerous occasions. All of these will increase in severity rapidly. As stated above, the elite do not want you informed—purposely. Ignorant people are much easier to control.

So if you don't care that you'll probably die if you don't get informed and put your trust in God, then stay ignorant and you can go back to another 3rd-dimension planet and start from scratch and retake your lessons until you do learn.

All on Planet Earth are in for the ride of their lives—which we will remember forever—as this planet rumbles, tumbles, spins and breaks up. Within a very few short years we will not be able to recognize this planet as our home—the changes are going to be so massive.

Let us, also, not forget the—highly probable—major worldwide financial crisis and a major nuclear war to happen soon!

There is a very bright upside to all of this and that is Mother Earth will not have to put up with any of this negativity again since she is being raised into a higher dimension and is being cleansed (washed and scrubbed) and turned over—comparable to the farmer plowing for a new crop—as part of this process. God is renewing Earth to get rid of all the negativity that we put on and into her.

Let's all grow up and vow to never do or allow this to happen again.

MAY GOD HELP US ALL!!
